LETTERS TO BEAR

BEAR BAIT

I just recently discovered your hot magazine. I called and subscribed today, but I felt like jotting a note to let you know how much I enjoy BEAR.

I love the whole attitude and feel of the magazine, from the guys to the hot stories. The approach, like the hot men you feature, seems more down-to-earth and comfortable than any of the competition (i.e., much less bullshit — more real men and thinking). I especially enjoyed Issue #11. Jack Radcliffe was great. I've got a den complete with all the Southern hospitality he can handle if he ever makes it down South.

I'm a young (27), very furry bear and would get off on being in your magazine sometime. Maybe I'll send a photo soon, or come by your office when I'm out California way. In the meantime, I'm figuring out the best bait to use in my personal ad to snare a bear of my own.

You'll keep up the good work, and I look forward to my first issue as a subscriber.

S.S., Atlanta, GA

I sure am glad you like what we're doing here. A suggestion: the best bait in your Bears In Heat personal is a picture, particularly one showing your face. Folks tend to like to see the goods before making the dive. A picture ad is run free for one issue too.

HE WANTS US NAKED

You guys have the best publication on the market. What makes BEAR work so well is the men—they're real rather than beauty contest perfection. They always seem approachable. My fantasies are more intense because I'm seeing hot men I know I could actually meet in the real world, which brings me to my point.

As a loyal follower, I've gone mad seeing real-life naked contributors like Mel Dahl, Furr, Jay Shaffer and Jack Fritscher. How about a Christmas present for those of us who love you all... a staff portrait with dick? Be proud to show it!

C.B., Atlanta, GA

A staff portrait? With dick? Well, if the truth must be told, we're all just too damn ugly. We're flattered that you ask, though.

REMEDIES FOR THE NON-HIRSUITE?

I have a few questions; maybe you know the answer. I have a beard and a moustache and some hair on my chest but I would like to be hairy all over. Do you know how to accomplish this? Shaving? Pills?

T.D., Amsterdam, Holland

I hate to be the one to break it to you, fella, but hair patterns are genetic. The only solution me and the boys came up with is for you to get real close to a very hairy guy (very close, preferably naked), and see how much you can make him shed while you see how much you can sweat. Do the shimmy-shimmy and check to see if you got any droppings.

As if stands right now, there is no known drug that will make hair grow in areas where it's never grown before. You don't say how old you are. Sometimes hormones kick in later in life and folks get sprouts with age. A buddy of mine was smooth til he hit 29, and then grew quite a pelt.

A FELLOW FAN OF FUR AND FANNY

First, let me tell you that I really enjoy your magazine. Before I saw BEAR, I was very frustrated in what was being published. I felt as though I was being punished for what I liked (big, hairy men!) because only certain types of guys were thrust down my throat. No pun intended.

Second, I do realize that people have different opinions as to what is a bear. But I see from your magazine that a lot of guys like the same thing I do. You have some great hunks in there.

I personally am an ass man. I love fucking, and watching some husky, hairy guys getting it on is a definite turn-on to me. I just think that you

REPORT • OWEN DUBOSE • THE BRUIN REPORT • OWEN DUBOSE •

It's hotter than hell in the South and don't let anyone tell you different. Born and raised on this side of the "Manson-Nixon" line (as Robin Williams once called it), you'd think I'd be used to it by now. I don't think you ever do get used to it; you just learn how to handle it. Drink lots of iced tea, water, beer, and/or anything handy, and dress accordingly. And these days I'm beginning to think "accordingly" in this case means "less is more."

All this means is it's high summer bear-watching season in the South and this cub is probably warmer than usual because of it. Take, for example, the other day. It was payday. I had to get to the bank to deposit my check to cover the rent check I'd given to my roommate that morning. I haven't driven much since 1984 so my boss Eric handed me the keys to his car with the proviso that if I wrecked it don't come back to work.

I race to the bank and do my business. Then when I go to leave, I can't get the car out of PARK. Great. Terrific. A quick call to Eric. He tells me I need to "jiggle the shift." No problem. Well, after ten solid minutes of jerking on that stupid shift, I'm getting pissed off and I have a sneaking suspicion that the old lady who just walked by me on her way to the bank thinks I'm playing with myself.

I place another call. Someone will be by soon to help out. So I sit behind the wheel. I try jiggling the shift again. After a few frantic minutes, I hear a voice above the sounds of my own grunting and cussing.

"Do you need some help?" I look up. Rivers of sweat are running down my body. My glasses are halfway off the edge of my nose, my hair matted to my forehead and my disposition, rather unfriendly. A very handsome bear of a man was staring in at me with a half-amused, half-concerned look on his face.

A voice aaks out of my mouth. "No, thanks. I think I got it. I just need to jerk a little harder and I'll get it out."

He showed teeth. His beard was magnificent in the hot sun. He shrugged, said something like "OK" and walked into the bank. I stopped ramming my forehead into the dash just as my rescuers pulled up. As it turned out, all I really need to could try to get more of that type of guy into a sucking and fucking film. I would be eager to see it and buy it. I am sure lots of other guys would too.

Keep up the good work on a great magazine. Of course, I can't get enough of those big, husky, hairy, bearded bears. Hope you can keep coming up with them.

M.G., Palm Springs, CA

You know, I'm an ass man, too. I like to look at 'em. Like to fuck 'em too. And we're not alone. I've noticed a certain pattern to the sexual tastes of the men that come in to the shop or write to us: most are fans of ass—either their own or their buddies. Kinda gets ya right here, don't it?

WHO ARE THESE MEN?

Would you please stop teasing me? I can't take it anymore. It's driving me mad.

It all started with BEAR #10, page 3. A picture of two bears doing something I'd give my left nut to be doing right now. Did you tell me who these guys are or where the picture came from? Hell no. So I remained frustrated.

Next came page 1 in BEAR #11. This time my heart was really pounding. A nice, husky, cigar-smoking, bearded, trucker-type bear, down on his knees, just begging me to help him get rid of the load he's carrying. I beat off more times to that one photo than to all the others in the rest of the magazine. Is the picture from a video?

And now there's the back cover of BEAR #12. Okay, so you tell me his name is Wildcard. Yeah, right. And my name's Dick Tracy. Will he be seen in a future issue? Or will I have to be content to stare at his bare ass (nice as it is) for the rest of my life? With all the undo stress your magazine is causing me, I just might be pushing up daisies sooner than you realize.

R.W., Northeast, PA

Okay, okay. BEAR #10, page 3: Mike Kloubec and Jason Steele as seen in BEEF. BEAR #11, page 1: a buddy of Richard's from Seattle who came in one day, showed him his butthole and uncut dick, posed for a few Polaroids, and left town. Wildcard (that's his handle) has a story and more nudies of himself featured in this very issue. In fact, you probably turned to that before turning to this, our lovely letters section.

TO PUMP OR NOT TO PUMP

BEAR 11 was excellent and well worth the wait between issues. Of particular interest was Bela. The whole torso hair and man look good, but a little more detail would have been better. The cock is a fine specimen but looks pumped. This does not make it less appealing, but pumpers shouldn't hide their talent or be shy about announcing their ability to get bigger.

If he doesn't pump it, perhaps someone could introduce him to the fascinating opportunities that are available.

Keep up the good work.

Satisfied, Plympton, Australia
Bela told us that he used a pump once and didn't particularly enjoy the physical sensation. It appears that his slab is all natural.

For those of you who follow each issue you might notice that the detail in pictures is increasing. This is due to our change in printers.

HE GETS OFF. WE GET TAKEN.

I got off cheap. Rented and taped your Bear Fuck Party. But you'll still make money off me. Why? Because they had a trailer at the end of baby-face, innocent (!) Keith Bryant. I gotta get it.

Phil, Cleveland, OH

Yeah, I know just how cheap you got off. But, hey, don't worry about lost revenue. It's not like I need to put food on my table. I do this for love.

HE LIKES THE FILTH BUT APPRECIATES IT ALL

May I tell you your sleazy, filthy (but well produced) man-sex magazine gets me so hot and bothered I can barely restrain myself from chewing the pages?

Those guys are so damn sexy I can just taste it. I can't believe you keep coming up with more each issue. Oh, and the editorial content's not bad, especially Mel Dahl's column, although it takes me a few days before I can actually stop and read it. Is that really him?

Well, I'd love to tell you more, but I don't have the same talent your fiction writers have for putting their slimy, naked-bear, raw-rutting, sweat-blowing, man-lust feelings into words, so keep those BEARs coming!

G.G., Massapequa, NY

Yes, that really is Mel Dahl. As you can see, we try to keep our serious editorial content as decorative as possible.

THE BRUIN REPORT • OWEN DUBOSE • THE BRUIN REPORT • OWEN

do was-jerk a little harder.

Never has a car made me feel so small. But, I did get a handsome memory and a smile out of it all, so it wasn't all bad.

Here are a few bears to brighten your day, again, in no particular order:

Fred Goldberg - Got a problem with the IRS? Getting audited? Your refund smaller than you thought it would be? Maybe you ought to talk to this guy. Fred is not only a bear, but the IRS Commissioner.

Brian Blessed - Okay, honesty time here. How many of you went to the 1980 version of Flash Gordon just to see this guy? Remember Vultan, Prince of the Hawkmen? That really skimpy outfit with the harness and the wings? That thick black beard and all that fur? Yeah, I thought so. I'm guilty, too.

Andrew Holtz and Charles Bierbauer - If you watch CNN or CNN Headline News at all, you've probably seen these guys. As far as I know they're the only bear reporters at CNN.

Robert Fulghum - This big papa bear has been called "the Mr. Rogers of modern letters." He's the author of books of essays like All I Really Need To Know I Learned In Kindergarten. His books are a must read for every bear and cub. Trust me.

Jim Henson - One of the most upsetting deaths this year was Henson's—at least for me. I grew up with his humor and his inventions. Henson was the inventor and prime mover of The Muppets and the alter ego of Kermit the Frog. His contribution to American and world culture was immense.

Stephen Caffrey - Winner of the Cute Cub award this time, Caffrey plays the appropriately nicknamed Fuzzy in the film Longtime Companion. He's shaved since the movie.

Vytautas Landsbergis - The president of Lithuania is a bear! The opportunities for bear-watching are endless in news reports about the European restructuring. Check it out.

Mr. Jim D'Hont from Vancouver, British Columbia, stopped by the BEAR office to give his regards and to offer up his orifices to our private parts.

During his visit, Jim had to use the facilities. We peeked in because we're the curious sort. We snapped a 'roid of Mr. D'Hont, his BEAR bonnet, and accompanying exposed genitalia. And now, you too are witness to the vision of pulchritude which met our eyes.

LOG-ROLLING FOR BEAR

Holy shit! I bought my first copy of BEAR today, and I have not stopped playing with my log yet. I was a Drummer fan, but no more. I am true to you.

I am sending you $60 and my personal ad today. I can't wait to meet and start playing with all of those hot, hairy bears out there. Until today I felt no one wanted a big, hairy man like me.

Thank you, BEAR.

G.W., Mesa, AZ

IS BIGGER BETTER?

You deserve a pat on your hairy back! I just got BEAR 12 and Drummer 140 (with special emphasis on bears). For direction and attitude, your mag hits the mark in a fresh, honest way that I don't get from the "bigger" publications, even when they concentrate on what I like. Y'all win hands down!

If there really is a bear movement, I'd like to see BEAR leading the parade.

J.F., Ft. Worth, TX

Thanks for the praise. A fact that might surprise you is that in terms of circulation and press runs, BEAR holds its own among (and exceeds in some cases) the "bigger" magazines.

As far as a bear movement is concerned, I need to ponder that one a bit. A recent letter to the office made some interesting statements. Read on...

¡VIVA LA REVOLUCION!

As a dyed-in-the-wool bear, I am calling for a revolution! To all hairy, furry men: let's get radical and show the world what we've got!

For too long we have allowed the smooth world to set the agenda for how we dress and what we show. Tank tops, muscle-shirts, vests and levi jackets over bear torsos are our native attire. No longer should young men with hairy shoulders and backs feel intimidated for lack of role models as they grow up. What Tom Selleck, Nicholas Cage and Andre Agassi have done for hairy chests, let's do for fur-covered shoulders and backs.

The kind of censorship which urges super-bears like Chuck Norris and Les Stein to "shave down" for movie roles is unmitigated chauvinism. Bears: revolt!

For years now I've been working, running, working-out, and driving in tank tops and other clothes which show a great deal of fur. At first there are stares, but then admiration and attraction. My hair comes up over my collar in the front (even with a tie) and all the way up in the back and over the shoulders.

Compliment one another when you meet. I've rarely met a truly hairy man who didn't appreciate a jocular congratulations from another really fur-covered man. Nothing further need be intended or indicated, unless you want. Just the brotherhood of bears!

T.M., Fairfax, CA

Well, guys, there ya go. If in this context "revolution" means a bunch of guys getting off on each other, I can deal with it. Makes you rethink the Summer of Love.

HE'S PIMPING THE RAG

After getting your "Ground Rules" letter, I thought I'd send a note back to tell you how much I liked the tone of your letter, and that I'm looking forward to getting BEAR. Your stuff comes to me recommended from friends in another

Dear Sir,

Enclosed is a picture of myself which you may print if you like. It's my best side.

I don't think anyone at work would recognize me. But on second thought, if they're reading your magazine, maybe I wish they would.

Sincerely,

state, not from having seen anything of yours myself. I guess the reason I tell you that is to let you know word of mouth is doing you some good in this part of the country.

After getting your intro letter/catalog, I also want to tell you what a difference it makes to me to know that you and the men who put the magazine together are into what the mag represents. I think that means there's gonna be a quality I can count on; there's just a certain wavelength I travel on, and it's rare that I can find anything that comes close to touching that desire.

I've enclosed some money for a couple of things your first mailing mentioned. I want to upgrade my subscription to first class, first of all. Also, I want a T-shirt and one of the videos. (This is like sitting on Santa's knee, isn't it?) I'm looking forward to this order being the first one. And that should make us both feel good.

C.G., Atlanta, GA

Well, little boy, why don't you come sit on Santa's face and tell him what you want for Christmas?

NOT FOND OF ZITTY-BUTTED YOUTH

I had to wait til I was damned near sixty to find a magazine that features real men! All the other magazines that feature the fey young fags with pimples on their face and on their buns are not even fit for asswipe.

A couple of friends from Michigan sent me a copy of #12 and #13. Have damn near worn them out. All stained, dog-eared and worn. Need more! Send me more! Must have more! Plan to get me a bear hunting license and go for it.

If the price of silver continues to escalate, I'll be worth a fortune. Silver hair and beard and chest. Suppose there are any bears out there that like polished silver? Bet there are. Ad will follow.

J.L., Walla Walla, WA

I think you'll find, J.L., that a good portion of our boys hunger after fellow boys with some age on them.

Good thing you got the back issues when you did. Issues 1,2,3,4,5,9 and 13 are out-of-print.

LEAVES HIS FRIEND TO GET IN A GOOD READ

A few weeks ago I was visiting an old friend in New York City. After sharing more than a few cold brews, some warm memories, and catching up on each other, he dragged me into a magazine store off Christopher Street and introduced me to BEAR. Friendship notwithstanding, I couldn't wait to get back to Virginia to peruse your magazine more thoroughly.

Thank you for sharing your foresight and vision in providing a vehicle for all the beautiful men throughout this country. Mature, natural, randy, tanga, hirsute beauty largely goes unnoticed by most magazines, with the exception of biker rags. We're a readership eager to celebrate the erotic imagery and fantasies these men ignite in our hearts, souls, minds and cocks.

Your vision was long overdue and is much appreciated.

HOW TO BUILD A BETTER PLAYROOM

I was just about finished with the last of my purchases when I felt an annoying tap on the shoulder. I was well known at Western Homecenters, having worked there for four years. I was also known by a few hundred customers as the only one who could solve their problems, even on my day off. Today was the first day of my vacation, and considering all I had to accomplish in the next ten days, I was not in the mood for anyone's pressing emergency.

I turned around, about to tell whoever it was just what they could do with their problem. To my surprise it was one of my favorite customers, Ted. Theodore Niles stood before me with a smirk that said "gotcha!" Caught off guard, I had to swallow before I could speak. He was wearing his usual tight T-shirt, scrimmage shorts that accented his muscular legs, and torn sneakers. What always got me was his body hair, and when he was working, his scent. There was thick, black hair all over his chest, and just a hint of it peeked over the top of his T-shirt, something I always found sexy. The best was the full beard and the slight thinning on the crown of his head. He was 6-foot-2, and his eyes were an unusually dark shade of blue, bordering on black. It was times like this that it was difficult to hold my sexual energy in check.

"So, you have nothing better to do than bother me on my first day of my vacation? What's the matter, get bored with your latest project?" I said with a touch of sarcasm. Ted's job, or I should say hobby, was buying old houses and doing a complete remake on them. He had a degree in civil engineering, but he had retired from that after ten years to his real love of fixing up houses. Now in his late thirties, Ted was well off from his ventures. I had given him help on three houses, and had been invited to tour them when they were done. The man had a good sense of what a house should be.

"No, that's on hold right now. With my wife leaving me, I decided to wait," he said sadly. While Ted was a success in fixing up houses, he was a disaster in relationships. I guess he was just soft-hearted, but it seemed that both his first wife, whom I had never met, and his second one, whom I wished I had never met, had been out for his money or something.

While all this flashed through my mind, Ted must have noticed the nature of the supplies in my lumber cart. "Vacation, huh? Spendin' the time doing fixer-upper projects?"

Caught! I was finally going to turn my garage into a playroom. Now, I had never told Ted I was gay. He never asked and I never volunteered. But I had the chance to get him right where I would like him to be.

"Well, yes, of sorts," I said hesitantly. "Want some help? I've got lots of time on my hands and I'd rather keep busy."

"Well," I hesitated slightly, "what I'm doing is something I've been fantasizing about for a while. I'm converting my garage into a room for adult fun and games. Sounds weird, but that's my project for the next week."

"Oh, not really. When I was in college I had friends who had what we called swing pads back then. I'd love to help you. From all this, it looks like you're starting from scratch."

That was true. And even if I didn't corner this big bear, I would still have some company. Not to mention that with Ted's help, I'd have a much more professional looking project.

"In that case, I'd love to have the help," I said, and we headed to the checkstands.

Whoever had built my house must have originally intended part of the attached garage to be a workspace. The space would fit one large or two compact cars and it was unusually deep. There was already a toilet and wash basin with a floor drain in one back corner that I intended to wall off and install tile for douching. In the other back corner I planned to create a cell the size of a twin mattress for keeping slaves for the night. And the leftover area in between I wanted to fill with a walk-in closet. The ceiling consisted of open six-by-ten beams, which were to be left partially exposed. I just had a new roll-up type garage door installed. The last renovation was to install two warehouse-type skylights in the middle of the ceiling.

By the end of the day, Ted had chalked off the areas of new wall on the floor, I had installed the electrical system, and Ted cut the holes in the ceiling for the skylights. I called a halt to the work and fixed dinner. Ted refused to eat in the house with him being a mess from our labors so I served it on the patio. I told him to expect dinner each night he worked, and to bring an extra set of clothes since my clothes, sized for a shorter frame, wouldn't fit well. While I said this, I wondered how I was going to keep my hands off him.

The next day, we insulated, got the new walls up, and dry-walled everything in. We decided to leave the skylights for close to the end, since even with the garage door open it was hotter than hell inside. I really didn't mind that, though; Ted smelled so musky I nearly creamed my shorts three times that day. The garage was an inferno all right, and I was right in Hades unable to relieve myself. I don't go after straight men, especially not straight men I wanted as friends. However, I will admit that I snuck a peek when he was in the guest shower. The textured glass didn't reveal much, but it was sexier than anything I could remember seeing in a long time.

That night after Ted left, I had the best jackoff session since I started as a kid. When I shoot, I don't usually go for distance, but this time mywad went splattering on my head board. This was going to be a long week indeed.

The next day was spent in masking and painting all the walls. This was the worst part of the job, and by the end of the day we were covered in black paint. I showered while Ted finished the last of the job, which he insisted on doing. When I returned to the garage, clad only in running shorts, I found Ted sitting back drinking a beer enjoying his work. After seeing that he had already cleaned the brushes, I sent him inside to clean up.

When I heard water running, I quietly went into the guest room to watch him. Seeing that silhouette, I just couldn't handle it any longer. I slipped my cock out from the leg of my shorts and whacked away furiously. I must have come in less than two minutes. Usually I take my time but the entire day seemed like foreplay at this point. After cleaning my mess up off the floor, I went to the kitchen to fix dinner.

Ted spent all the next day working on the bathroom tile, while I worked on laying the black vinyl floor tile in the garage. I finished before Ted, so I spent the rest of the day moving boxes of toys, leather and magazines into the garage and covering them with a tarp...to keep the dirt and sawdust off them, of course. By the time I finished, Ted was putting the last touches on his tile work. He suggested that I shower while he finished up.

I showered in record time, all the while debating whether to risk another jack-off session. When I returned to the garage, Ted shot upright and tried to hide the magazine he had apparently been checking out.

"I was just sitting down on a box to take a break, but I knocked it over and this slid out," he said with a strange look. Then I noticed that of all my magazines, it had to be the pictorial of the last "Inferno." Now there's a way to freak out a straight man! "I didn't mean to," Ted added hastily.

"Well, I should have told you about me when we started this project. Don't take that mag as being the usual. Most gay men don't get that intense." I tried to sound reassuring.

"Mike, you mean you like to... 'do it' with other men?" Ted asked as if the possibility of man-to-man sex had never occurred to him.

"Yes, Ted. But only if the other person wants to. The pictures you were looking at were of men who were doing exactly what they wanted. No one forced them and no one is going to force you. I want you as a friend. My being gay has nothing to do with that."

We ate dinner in near silence and Ted left immediately after. I wasn't sure if he would show up the next day to install the skylights. I was a little worried about that, and I didn't feel much like jacking off anymore, so I went to bed.

The next morning I awoke to the sound of the doorbell. I pulled on a robe and padded to the door and let Ted inside. He went to the garage while I dressed. When I got there, he was already at work on the skylights. It was early afternoon when I finished installing the toilet, douche, and sink, so I put up some shelves to keep the toys handy. The only contact from Ted was occasional swearing from the roof.

When Ted came down, he made some excuse about having something else to do, so he couldn't stay for dinner. Sometimes it takes people a little time to adjust, ...and sometimes they never do.

Despite my fears, Ted showed up on my doorstep the next day – more talkative this morning, but the talk was trivial. He set out to build a closet that would be a masterpiece while I spent the day doing the leftover jobs – putting the mattress in the slave pen, installing light fixtures and dimmer switches, setting up the stereo system, installing lots and lots of eye hooks, putting up mirrors in strategic locations, and unpacking some of my toys. I didn't realize that I was being watched until I unpacked and hung up my pride and joy, the sling.

I turned around to see Ted shirtless, leaning against the door jam with curiosity written all over his face.

"What's that, Mike?"

"It's called a sling. One of my favorite things for fun and games," I said, hopping up into it. "It exposes a man's or a woman's 'personal places' for ready access," I said with an impish grin.

Ted hesitated for a second, but finally he spoke. "Can I try it?" he said, almost embarrassed to ask.

"Sure." I got him to lean back and he was hanging. "You put your feet here in the bootstraps," I said, taking his right foot and placing it in the strap. "Though I prefer men, I have seen it used with women...."

"Can you tell me what having sex with another man is like?"

I almost fainted, and Ted was bright red. I was getting the distinct impression the he was a little backward in the sex department.

"Well," I was unsure where to begin with this one, "I think that the only major difference may be that men can't fake orgasms. Depending on the type of sex, you can usually see the result of your play."

Ted lay quietly in the sling for a second as my heart skipped a beat.

"Would you want to play with me?" he said quietly with an almost childlike tone. I was almost in tears.

"Why would you think I wouldn't want to?"

"I wasn't sure if you found me attractive."

"Ted, I have been drooling over you since the first day you stumbled into my electrical department. Of course, I find you attractive! My rule has always been, however, to steer clear of straight men. Are you really sure this is what you want?"

"I've been doing a lot of thinking the last couple days, Mike. I don't usually get turned on by much, but then I saw that magazine. I must have whacked off three times that night, although I was a little shaken by the idea of it. I guess I just never thought about having sex with another man. So, to answer your question, yes, I guess this is what I've always wanted."

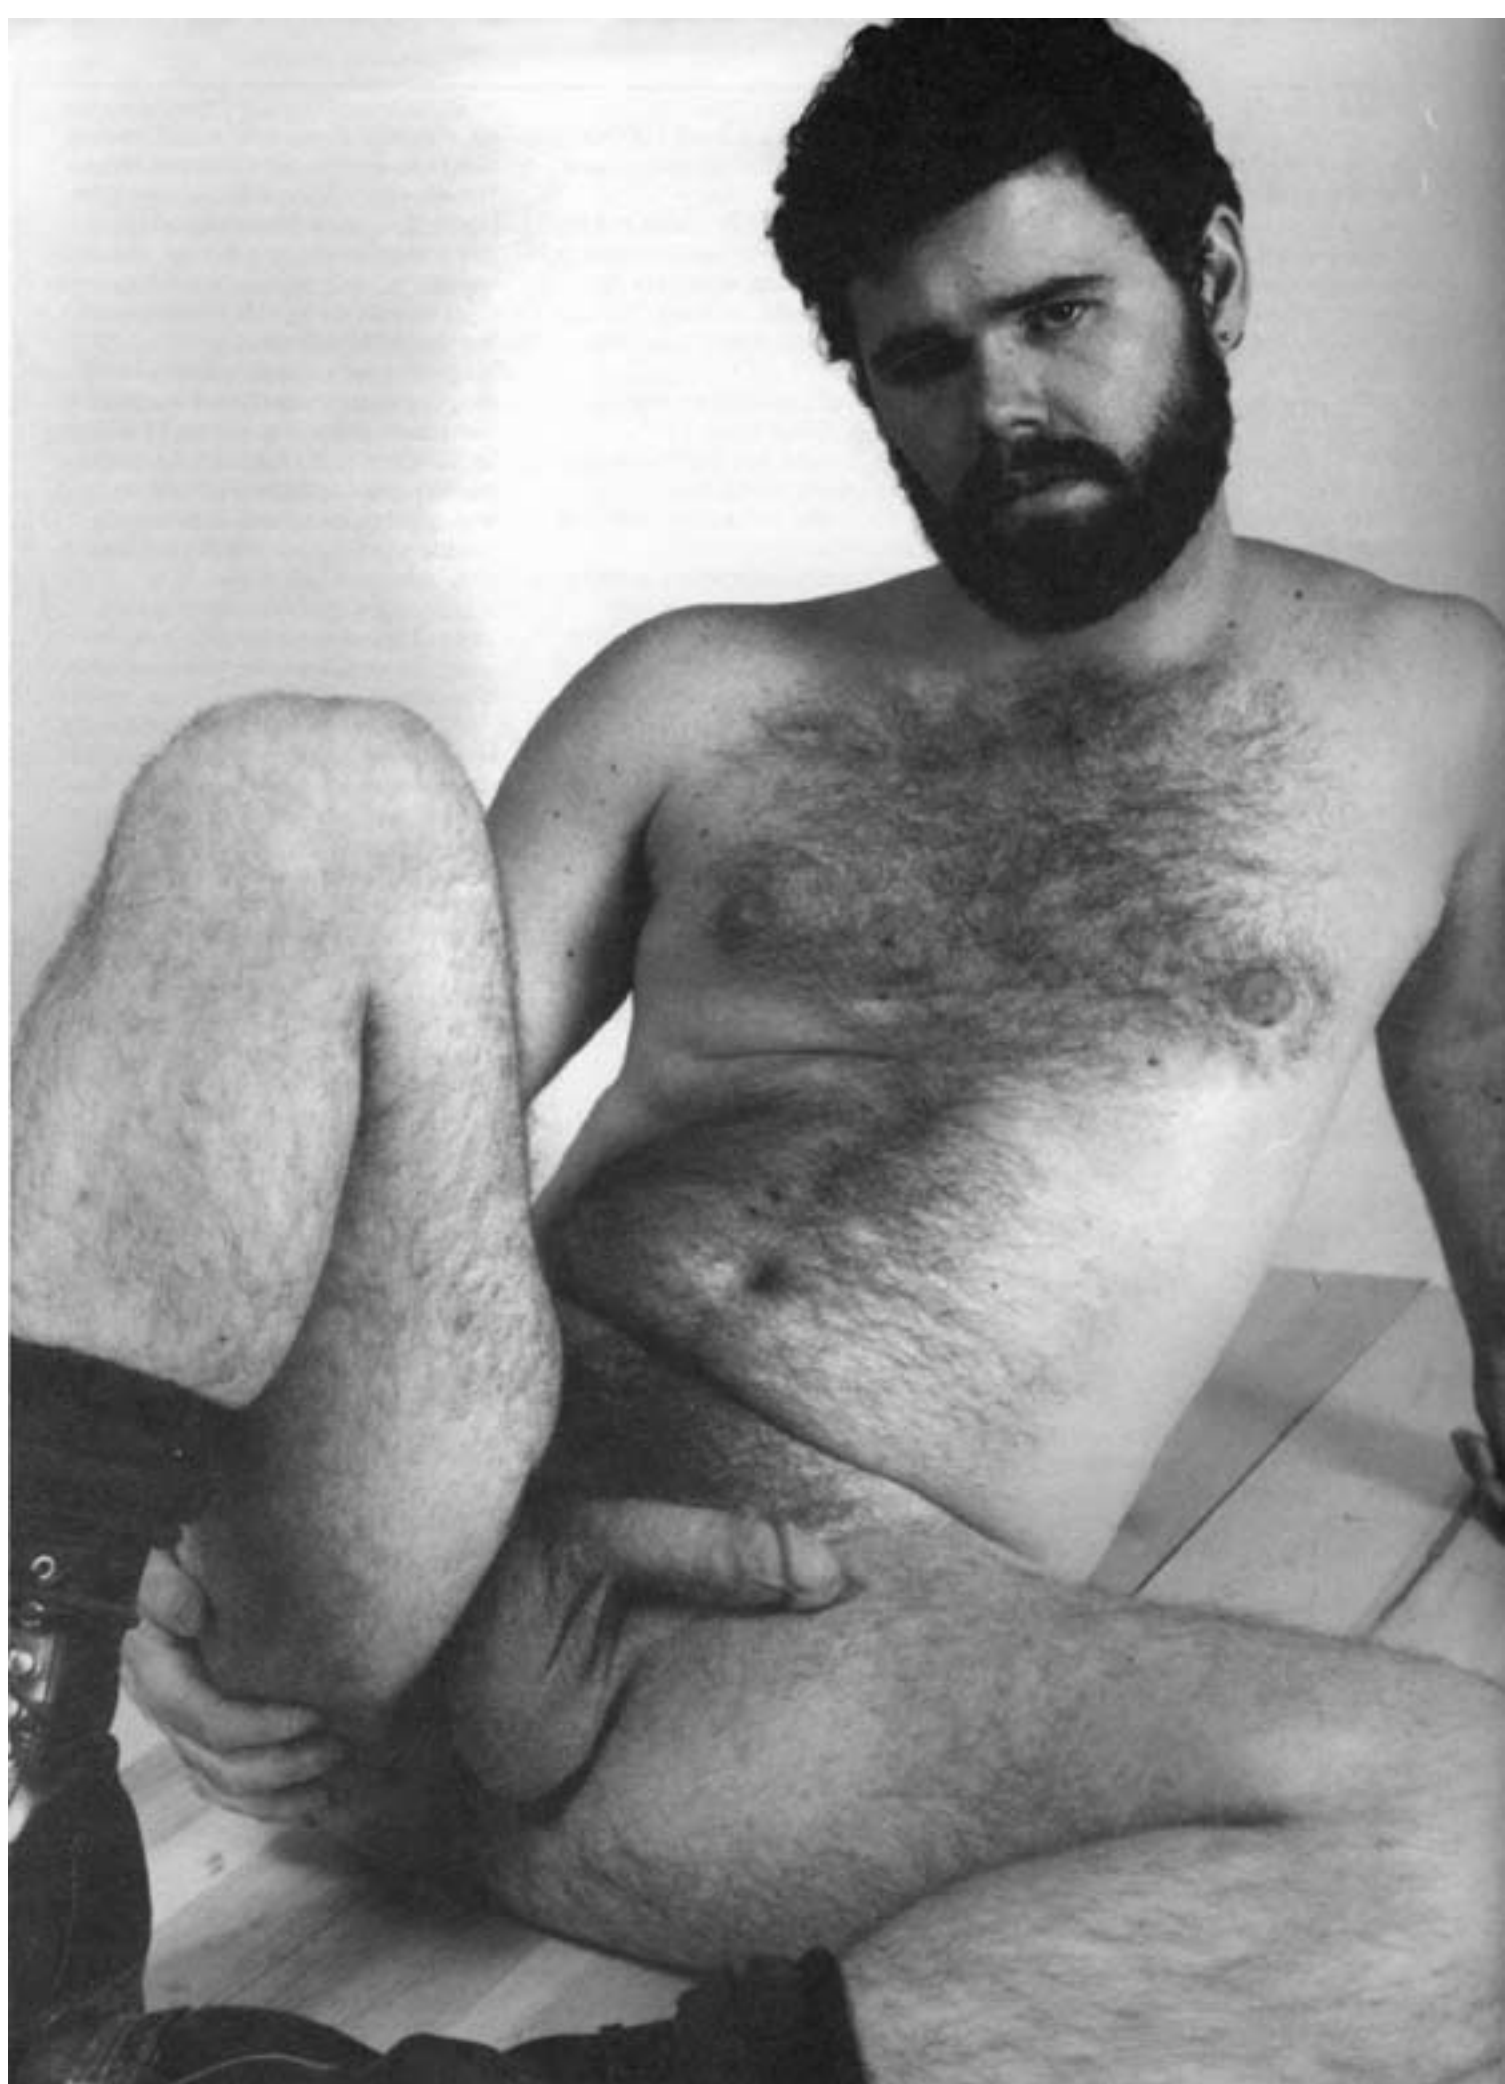

A smile spread over my face and I stepped between his hanging legs. "We won't get anywhere near that intense. So relax and enjoy."

"Shouldn't I go take a shower? I really reek," he said starting to get up from the sling, but I pushed him back down.

"It doesn't bother me. In fact, I find your scent real hot," To prove my point, I dove right in and started lapping those pits that I had lusted after for so long. It surprised and pleased him, and not long after I started he was moaning loudly. When I looked up, his shorts were severely tented out.

"I've gotta take care of your problem down there," I said coming back around to his feet. I took his feet out of the boot-straps, removed his shorts, and then set his feet back into the straps. His cock was a good thick eight-and-a-half inches long compared to my more modest seven. I wrapped my hand around the base and took it all the way down my throat. Ted let out a moan of surprised pleasure as I set to work on working him into a frenzy. After a few minutes his juices were flowing freely.

As I thought he was about to cum, a hand pulled me up.

"That's not how I want to cum," he said and hesitated for a second. "I want you to fuck my ass."

"Are you sure? It might hurt some."

"I've wanted you to do it ever since I saw those two guys doin' it in the magazine."

I nodded and went to get the necessary equipment. My hands were a bit torn up from the week's work, so I got a pack of rubber gloves along with lube and a condom. First I greased up his cock and then I began the slow process of opening Ted's ass, driving him absolutely crazy with desire at the same time. I worked one finger, then two and finally three. All the while Ted was moaning and rolling around on the sling. Now and then I would stroke his cock until I thought he was about to shoot.

A half hour of this treatment and he was yelling for me to fuck him. I stood up, rolled the condom on my cock, and eased my way into that tight asshole. I slid it all the way in to the hilt, and pulled all the way back. I watched Ted to see if he was having any difficulties, but all he said was "Harder!" So my next attack was much more forceful. My hips smacked his asscheeks repeatedly as I savored the feel of that tight ass. Ted was in pig heaven now, and I grabbed his cock and jacked him in rhythm with my thrusts. I was quickly reaching the point of no return when I felt Ted's cock beginning to swell in my hand. Ted howled as we both popped our loads at the same time. His cream sprayed all over him, me, the sling and the garage floor. I gasped and fell on Ted, rubbing my face and beard in his sweaty, hairy, sticky chest. It was the best fuck I had had in a very long time. Ted murmured his approval.

"Now I think we can have that shower," I said with a grin, "together."

I led my furry friend to the guest bathroom. As Ted stripped off his socks,

I got the water just the right temperature. Once we were in the shower, I noticed that his fat eight inches were growing hard again. Since the guest room was where I played, I kept condoms in ready reach.

I pumped Ted's cock a few times until it was fully hard, then I rolled the condom down the shaft. I took a little lube and began to massage his dick until it was well greased.

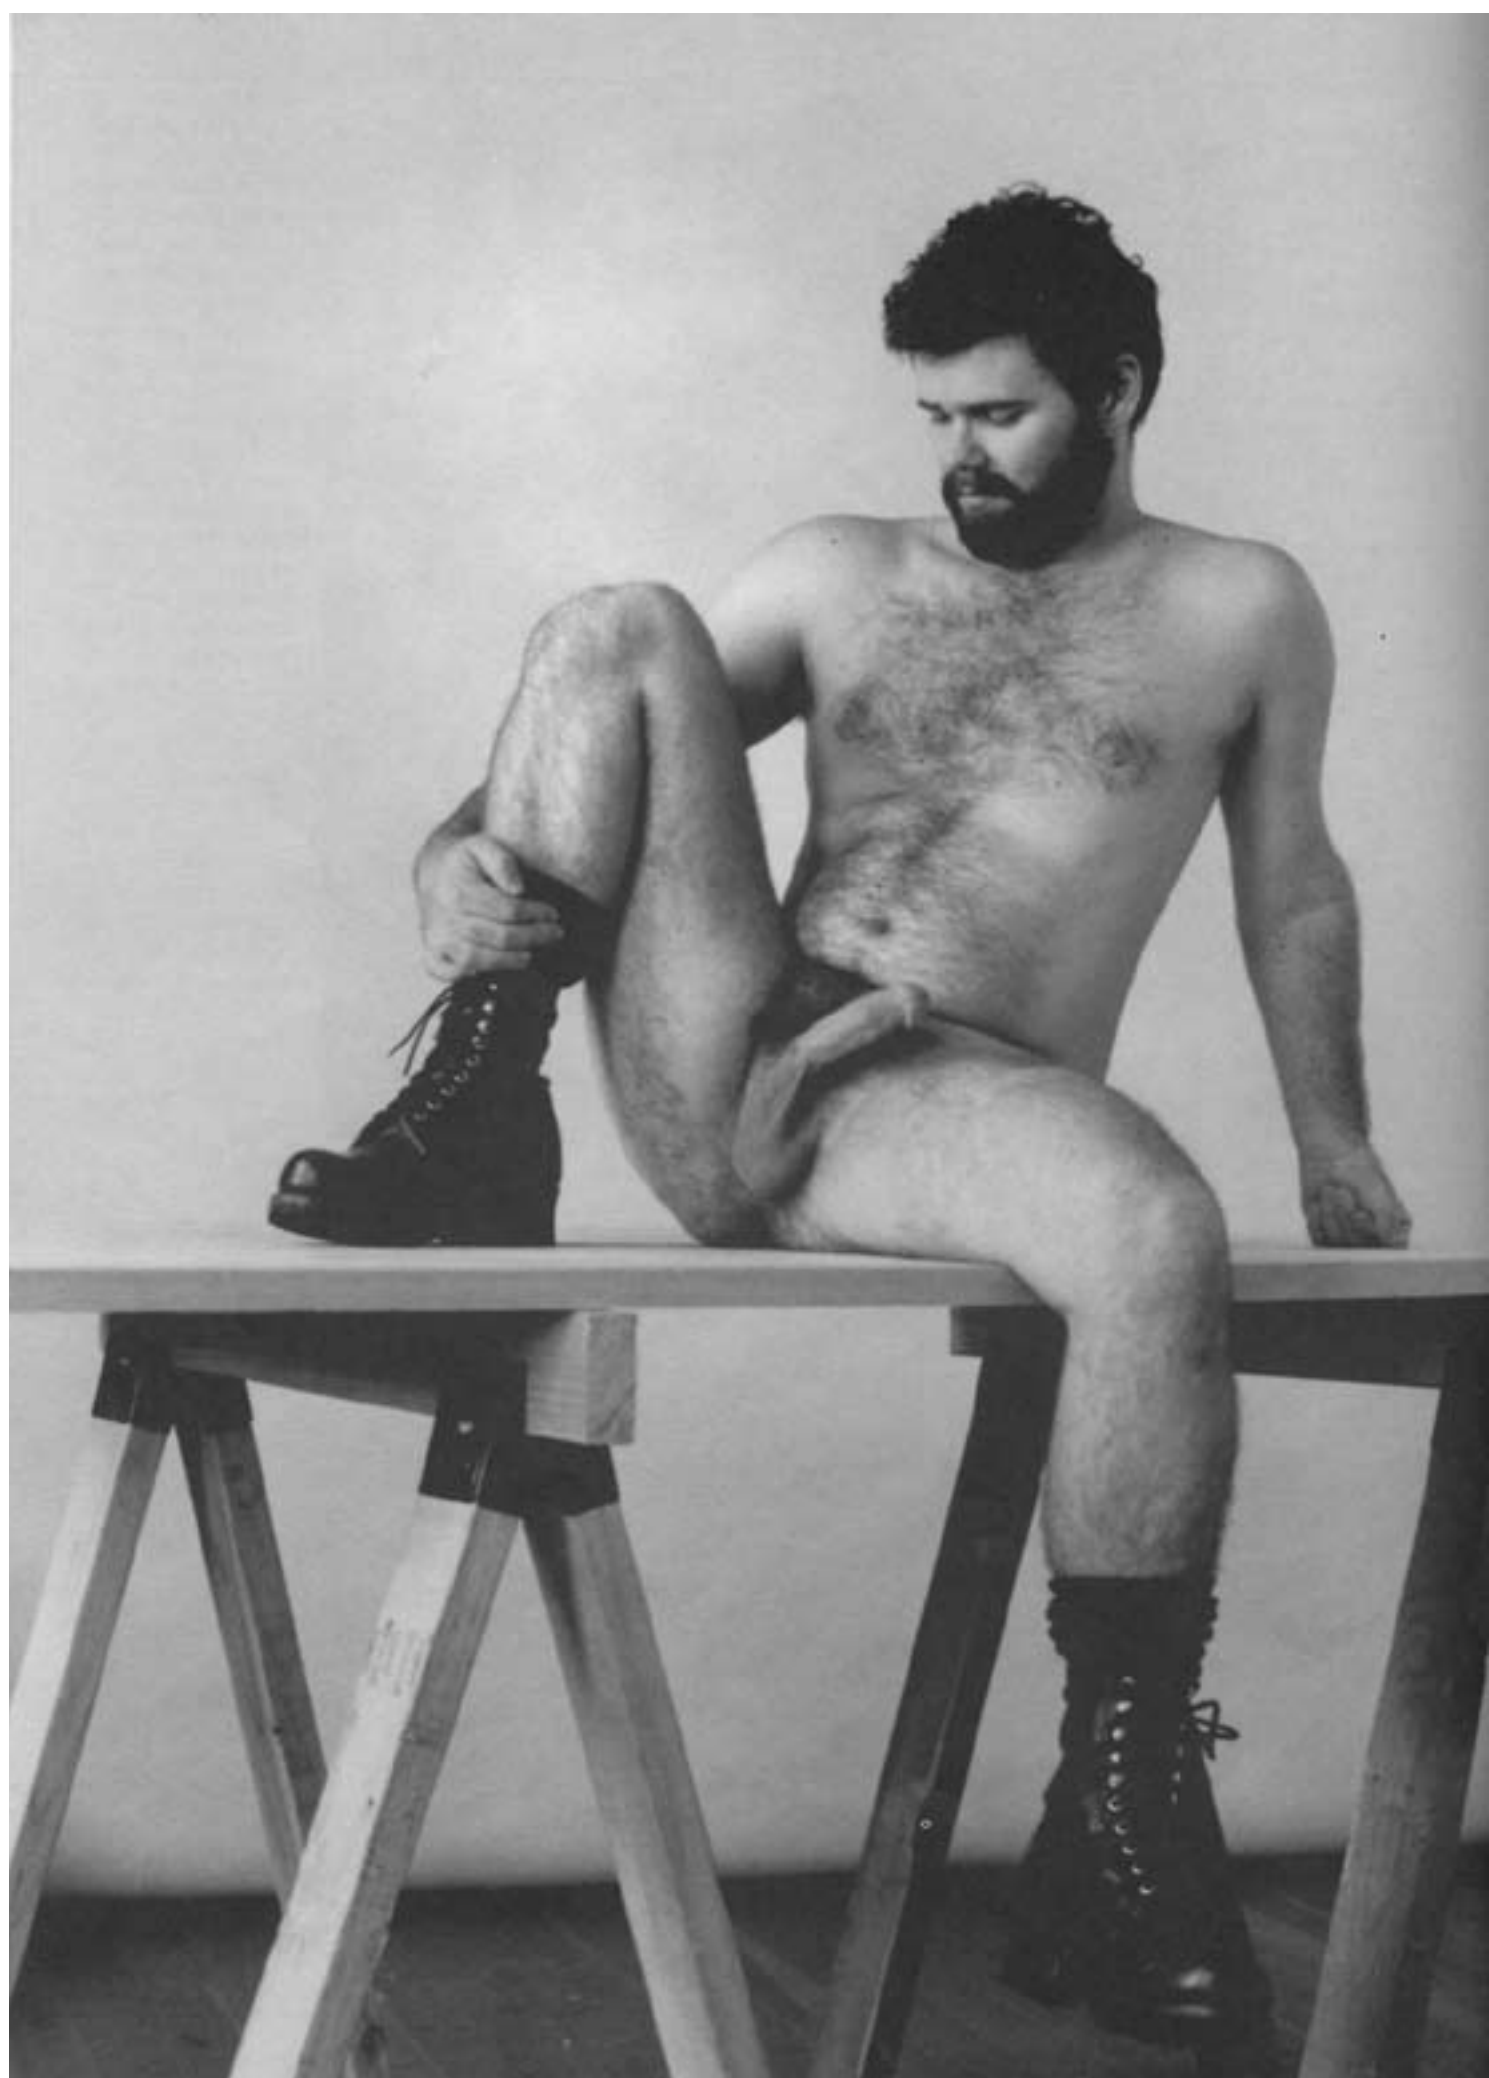

"You're going to have to do the work this time," I said jumping up and wrapping my arms and legs around Ted's torso. I must admit there are advantages to being on the short side. Ted had a handle on the situation as I slid down and became impaled on his stiff cock. Even with his meat buried all the way up my ass, my feet still couldn't reach the floor.

Ted began bouncing me up and down on his cock. His thrusts and groans got me hard in a flash — I didn't even have to touch myself to get off. My cock and balls were rubbing up and down Ted's wet, furry stomach. In a matter of minutes I was spraying us both with my cream. Ted must have really got off on it since it felt like his cock swelled to twice its thickness and then throbbed violently, telling me he had shot his second load.

I smiled at Ted, then grabbed the back of his head and drove my tongue down his throat.

Well, that was almost a year ago. Ted settled things with his wife and moved in with me. During the last year I've introduced Ted to a number of fetishes and fantasies. In fact, I still remember the look on his face when I arranged his first three-way, but that's another story....

RUSSIANS GO BONKERS OVER THESE MEN'S TEES

Our buddy Carl sends us this clipping. I must say that he can spy a good story when sees one.

The fellas—Claude Hall, Trey Aven and Fred Staggs—are tee-shirt designers and printers from Oklahoma. They met some Russians at a party the university was throwing and began discussing their business. Needless to say, the Soviets were impressed and invited them to a Volga vacation. Since the USSR is switching from a collective economy to a market-based one, they need to have producers over there. And they want these boys' tees!

So if all goes well, these three fine representatives of American hirsuity will be creating Russia's first tee shirt printing company.

THE GREAT WHITE NORTH PARTIES

Spearhead is a club located in the city of Toronto. They talked a local bar, Trax, into holding a Bear Night. The place was jam-packed with...well, take a look at these beauties! They are, from left to right, Claude, Richard, Dalton, Jamie and Joe. Yup, Joe Thomas, our coverman from BEAR 12, ventured from New York to Canada for the occasion. Daniel Wylie from Spearhead took the snap. Info on the club may be available by writing Spearhead, P.O. Box 293, Station "A", Toronto, Ontario M5W 1B2 CANADA. ## RELIEF FOR GAPING HOLES

Let it be known that BEAR has never sold or rented its mailing list. However this is not the case for any other mail-order enterprise, as any one in the USA can tell ya. You think the waste involved in bringing you junk mail is appalling? You should see what the business-to-business mail order merchants load on us!

We do get a chuckle from some of the products though. The Garon Company (1924 Highway 35, Wall, NJ 07719) specializes in industrial maintenance items. Pictured is a gallon of Crack-Fil which, coupled with their product Backer Rod, will "fill bottomless cracks instantly." And you can see what their anti-skid product Stop-Slip prevents (below). To tell you the truth, if using this stuff stops men from lying on their backs and throwing their legs in the air, I'm rather glad we don't have it on our pantry shelf.

GOVERNMENT NIXES CONDOM MAILING

What a grand gesture! Sean Strub owns the Community Cardpack. They mail postcards to thousands of gay and lesbian households, advertising the wares of vendors and charities to thousands of gay and lesbian households. Each of the 100,000 recipients was going to receive a free condom as part of the package.

Well, wouldn't you know the government has again stuck its nose into our business; its domestic mail manual prohibits sending rubbers through the mail unsolicited. Like they're gonna hurt someone if they get in the wrong hands? Come on....

If you think this rule sucks write to Postmaster General Anthony M. Frank, 475 L'Enfant Plaza WSW, Washington, DC 20260. And Sean would appreciate a copy at 270 W 17th St. PH-C, New York, NY 10011

COMING TOGETHER IN THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST

We got a letter a while back about yet another fraternal organization devoted to ursus homo. You boys are certainly getting the hang of it. If antique car owners, fans of Spock, and former Miss North Carolinas can have a club, there's no reason why men who appreciate each other can't get organized and hang out a shingle.

This group's called the Northwest Bears and they run out of Seattle, Washington. According to Sonny and Paul, the co-founders, they had 80 guys show at their first meeting. Not bad! Not bad at all. Eighty bear-loving men sitting around for the express purpose of getting to carnally know one another better. For further information you can write Northwest Bears, 1202 East Pike St., Suite 802, Seattle WA 98122-3918 or call Sonny at (206)-827-8173 or Paul at (206)-325-2230.

"WHERE CAN I GET THAT THREE BEARS TEE-SHIRT?"

Ever since issue #12 with Joe Thomas sporting a T-shirt with three bears on it, we have been deluged with requests for the damn thing. Joe said he got his in Connecticut. Big help. Well, sir, one day a fella from Men of Leather, a leather store in Memphis, TN, called and told us where to buy the sucker. It is available from Signals, a mail-order house. Their phone number is 1-800-669-5225. Tell 'em you read it in BEAR. Maybe we'll get an ad outta them.

THE BIG SCIENCE OF PIT SNIFFING

Ever wonder just what it was about sweat that created that sweet musky smell that drives you nuts? The Monell Chemical Senses Center in Philadelphia, a non-profit research institute for the study of taste and smell, announced recently that the culprit is none other than 3-methyl-2-hexenoic acid. This is a new discovery. That's right. Those same tax dollars which have funded trips to Mars and boomerang research have never been used to determine what every human body excretes on a daily basis. And the cosmetic industry has applied its vast resources to figuring out how to stop or coverup our natural bodily functions and their accompanying stink.

The Monell scientists collected samples of sweat from the pits of male volunteers, analyzed these into various component compounds and then sorted them by smell. They isolated the culprit which was ripest, and found methylhex to be the winner. Now if there had been similar experiments when I was in high school, I might have paid more attention.

Stench studies continue unabated. Naturally, the British are knee deep in this field. Their researchers say that a steroid molecule in human sweat, Osmone 1, can induce a relaxed and tranquil state by merely sniffing it. You know, it's like taking a downer when you're down on someone.

So please. No more perjorative letters about stink freaks. These boys know a good time when they sniff it.

Fantasy animals and tribal figures are going through a resurgence of popularity. The fantasy animals are a favorite of mine to work on. They're often spiritually symbolic. I talk to the client for a while before any work actually commences. Sometimes the animal is from myth, sometimes from the client's imagination.

Tribalism has its roots in cultures from Samoa and New Guinea. Again, spiritual symbolism plays a big part.

Hello. It's me again. Y'know, whenever I get my base needs met, I tend to play a lot of country tunes, something I can sing along with, some of those my dick is happy, the endorphins are flowing and the other 83% of me ain't so bad either songs. The boys here ask if I've been laid or lobotomized.

Then there's times when I can't get my needs met no matter what I do. I express my pent-up desire by playing roadhouse music, the stuff they play in places your mama hoped you'd never go because they've got cheap beer, pool tables and let you spit on the floor. Seeing as how I've been in a dry spell, a lot of that music's been playing here at the shop.

One of my favorites is a group called the Beat Farmers. The music is good solid roots rock with a fair helping of outright filth. With a frontman called Country Dick Montana, a man with a penchant for talking about his cheesy uncut dick in performances and interviews, I figure you can't go too wrong. They cite as their influences John

Two-Headed Love Child". Granted, his shtick gets a little tiresome after a while, but he's still fun to listen to. Two of his best are Be- Day-Skus and Root Hog or Die.

A fairly recent release (a rare thing in this column) by the Kentucky Headhunters has caught my ear. They sound like what would happen if Led Zeppelin played bluegrass. The album is called Pickin' on Nashville. Check it out before this group finds themselves damned by their potential.

While listening to an unusually enlightened radio show the other day, I was introduced to a lady named Laurie Lewis. The tune the station played was "Texas Bluebonnets" and on the strength of that tune alone I bought her CD entitled Love Chooses You. It's a fine collection of original bluegrass/country with a touch of western swing tunes. The woman is a very talented singer and fiddler and helluva songwriter. She combines craft and poetry seamlessly. A few weeks ago I caught a performance of hers here in town (and almost won a Wayne, Carl Perkins, Iggy Pop, Leiber and Stoller, and Springsteen, among others. On CD, the titles available are Tales of the New West, Poor and Famous, Pursuit of Happiness and a live album, Loud and Plowed.

Along the same lines is Mojo Nixon. The man is bawdy as all hell. Take a look at some of his song titles: "Louisiana Liplock", "Vibrator Dependent", and the shop favorite, "Debbie Gibson is Pregnant With My date with her banjo player, but that's another story) and she's as strong on stage as on record. If she comes to your area, by all means go. Available on CD, her records are Restless Rambling Heart, Love Chooses You, and Singin' My Troubles Away.

So there you have it - a pretty good indication of my state of libidinous ease. And remember: Apply liberally to affected area twice daily.

ALLIGATOR DADDY

Fiction
by
Rand B.
Lee

I'd been going to the Alligator months now, dragging my beard, tits, furry gut and hairy ass there Saturday night after Saturday night. Hunting guess what. Key West is hot stuff if you dig wasp-waists with stuff on their heads to make their hair blonder; I dig 'em aged, matted, big all ways and I just hadn't been able to find a daddy to save my dick-sitting life.

So I went to the Alligator, Key West's only adult book store, famous for its glory hole video booths and the gamy texture of its 1 to 3 A.M. clientele. It was there or nowhere, and for a hell of a long time it wasn't much even there, just endless reruns of Kansas City Trucking to slap the booth walls with my loads.

The night I found what I was looking for, I'd shagged on my old Army shirt, like always, pulled up my jeans (the real jeans I really did landscape work in), laced up my hiker's boots and set out around midnight, not expecting much. My seven inches, noteworthy for breadth and the thick candy-cane vein, were making their interests known against the buttons of my fly. Ever get so horny that your toes have erections? Every square inch of my skin was aching to be bruised against a shaggy flank, weighed down by sweat-bulk. And my asshole, unentered for some stretch, puckered expectantly ever time I passed anything at all with balls and a dick.

Point made. The Alligator was blank-windowed, as always. I went in, paid my fee, collected my quarters, passed through the draperies hiding the entrance to the booth area, and licked darkness. There's nothing so dark as a fuckplace you've just breached. As my eyes adjusted, they swept over and discounted eight under-thirty types standing in various postures of unease, dragging on their cigarettes like chorus girls waiting for their cues. Not even a goddamn beard in the whole goddamn place. Grumbling, I began to stalk the left aisle, feeling the ache of my denim-bound dick, the pucker of my butt-chute, my tits yelling to be grabbed by some raunchy hard-belly with some gray on his muzzle.

Down the left aisle, past the boys, duck through the arch, up the right aisle. One Latin guy, too young but moderately interesting for his stubble and heavy, lidded eyes; drunk. I stopped not far from him, in front of the mirrors where the boys checked their clothes after exiting the booths, and spread my legs.

Nervously, the Latin guy shouldered off in another direction. I thought of going after him, snaking my right arm around his fat brown testicles, whispering in his ear sweet words of reassurance, but I wanted to get fucked, for Christ's sake! I muttered and slammed into a booth, in no mood for the endless waiting game Kansas City and another youth-crammed night in Paradise. And practically throttled myself on some guy's outstretched forearm.

"Whoa," I said, "sorry," and then I shut up and just looked. I swear I'm not shitting you. He was five feet ten or thereabouts, just my height, shoulders like a bar door-frame, heavy with some smell like sweat and spunk. Fifty-five, maybe; strong, lined face, iron beard, bar vest over white shirt, sleeves pushed up as far as they could go on swollen furry forearms. The man was not alarmed to see me. He said nothing; just nodded, just looked at me from under his bushy gray brows. My throat went dry as the pure deep scent of him surrounded me. Three seconds later, I was down on my knees, beard shoved against his crotch-bulge. I was going to have him whether he wanted me or not, hardly the right attitude, but this was war.

Jesus! I wish you could have been there. His nuts mounded under his Levis; I started chewing them through the fabric while I rubbed my jawline up and down the swell of his penis. Big dick, fat dick, experienced; kids had come out of that dick. He clamped one furry hand at the back of my head and pushed, flexing his thigh muscles. "Good boy," he said, in a voice like gravel and smoke.

He was watching some flick with girls in it; I could hear their on-screen mewling as Daddy undid his fly and fed me his seed-tube. It was semi-solid, not yet fully erect and already the size of my hard 7-incher, I swear. I gobbled it down and he sighed like a man popping a cold beer on a hot day. Thick flesh-tube, salty, pulsing; my mouth was full of it, then straining with it as it swelled with its cream and blood. His right hand hanging inches away, hair lapping the edges of the gold watch on his wrist, strong blunt-nailed fingers in repose; I wondered what they'd feel like exploring my rectum.

All at once, my throat's plugged with pipe. Choking, I take it; his hand on my neck keeps me there. "Yeah," he says, "Daddy's boy's a good cocksucker." His hug the sides of my face. He's sitting back on the bench, raising his legs, shoving my head so far down on his dick that my lips are in the belly-folds at the shores of his pubic mat. He's enormous. He's the world, muscle and pelt and sweat, shirt open now, wide black belt dangling, waist-button released. One of my hands is on his pendulous balls, another's searching his huge chest for nipple. Before I can touch his tits, his left hand grabs my hair and pulls me off his crowbar so fast I gasp with the shock of it. His legs lower.

He holds my hair tightly and looks at me. I think he's going to cuss me out and slap me around for trying to nipple-work him; crazy, but it offends some men. Not him. Under those gray brows, his eyes want something else. He shoves out mouths together. His tongue is like a second dick, filling my throat again. I drink his spit, gulp it, grateful. It's the way I'd gulp his piss, if he'd think to let me have it; anything I'd drink from that bear-body of his. I breathe his bull-breath and suck his spit, and he pulls us apart. He looks me in the eyes and says softly, "All right."

Then his right hand jabs a finger into my asshole. I don't know how or when I got my trousers down. I arch, impaled, then shove down hard. His fist gives a little, but I feel his knuckle against my butt. "You want Daddy's dick up there, don't you?" he asks me.

"Yes."

Retraction of the finger, then another shove in, harder. His eyes flash as I gasp. "Yes, who?"

"Yes. Yes, sir. Yes, Daddy." I grip his finger with my ass, trying to hold it, keep it up me, but he slides it out again, and I feel abandoned. He gets up in a big tower of sweat, hair, leather and flapping dong. I'm on a level with his knees, facing the booth-seat he has vacated. With a sick lurch I wonder if he's going to walk out; then I hear him whispering for me to get up, stand up. I do. "Bend over and brace," he grates. I do this, too, not my favorite way. His big hands find my hips, pat my ass, feel my beer-gut. I hear a chuckle, then his prod bumps against my anus.

His sliding in is steady, not brutal, steady, huge, unstoppable, steady all the way in as far as he can push it while his thick fingers pull me against his nut-sack. Slow, steady, steel in velvet; I'm being split by him. I want to be down on the ground having this done to me, but he makes me stand, so the entrance of him sets my legs trembling and I nearly weep with the hunger of it. "Okay," he says and grunts. He shoves, this time hard, and I feel myself rip and tear, on fire. He was not in all the way, but he is now, and out now, the hole heavy mile of his stiff penis, then back in deep, overlaying in the soreness with battering. Out far, in deep, splitting me, stretching me as I gasp and shudder.

He's been controlled up till this time; now he lets go of control. Still inside me, he bears me down heavily into the slimy debris of the fuck-movie booth floor. On the screen, the sex kittens mew, but his dick's not in them; it's in me, slamming now, slamming, ripping deeper, backed by the hair and mountain of my daddy. My mouth tastes cigarette butts. His belt, still in his jeans, whips and cuts into my flank as he rears back and rams. "Ahh, yeah," he says, "yeah, yeah," and then a final torturing slam of a grind that knocks the wind out of me.

His hose starts pumping. I fill with his sperm, all those kids that could have been. The spunk squirts up around his shaft and dribbles down my furry cheeks. He's weighing me down. I can feel the muscles in his balls and dick squeezing out the juice.

When he pulls out for the last time, it's worse than anything I could have imagined. I just lie there. My father is gone. Dad's not in my any more. I don't turn over or look up or say a word. The after-time is always tough, but this one's the worst, because I want to eat this man, gulp him again, take him into me a hundred times more and bury myself in the sea and taste of his rich soft strength. When the hotness starts, I don't expect it. It falls like rain, releasing pungency in rivers down my Army shirt-back, flowing over my raw ass. It splatters the floor beside me and I can't help myself. I move, stretch to lap it up.

"No," he says, gruffly. I freeze. "Get up." I hoist myself to sitting position and gaze ceiling-ward at my grizzly. "There's more where that came from," he says. Then he smiles.

He pulls me to my feet with a flex of his left arm. He folds me into an embrace, a long strong sweetness. We are both trembling. I realize and that's when I know for sure that I've found what I was looking for. Stupid, huh? One quick screw and you know? Couldn't happen? The velvet of my chute says different, and so does my belly-pillowed beard. Eat your hearts out, baby boys.

CAN I SUE SOMEONE WHO GIVES ME COOTIES?

Recently one of my readers wrote to ask me about the legal ramifications of transmitting a disease to a sex partner. Specifically, he wanted to know whether a person can be sued for transmitting a disease during sex.

The answer to that question is: maybe and maybe not. (I'm sure that by now you've all heard the joke about little George Bush cutting down the Texas oilwell, and when Daddy Bush asked him if he knew who had done it, he responded, "Daddy, I cannot tell a lie. Maybe I did and maybe I didn't.")

If somebody knows he has AIDS or herpes or syphilis and doesn't tell his sex partner, the likelihood is that a court would find him negligent and award damages. The legal standard in such a case is what would a reasonable person do. I've never met this fictional reasonable person, but what he would do determines legal liability. In this case, what is reasonable is determined by whether it is foreseeable that the disease could be transmitted during sex. Since anyone with half a brain can guess that sexually transmitted diseases can be transmitted during sex, it is foreseeable, and therefore assumed that a reasonable person would warn potential partners.

I know, an argument can be made that the reasonable person who wants to have sex knows that his chances of scoring are reduced if he tells potential partners he has herpes, and therefore it might be reasonable to keep quiet. However, the courts won't accept that argument. Having sex with someone, like offering a ride to someone in your car, creates what the law calls a "special relationship": a duty to provide a minimal level of care to the other person.

Just as a hitchhiker who is paralyzed due to an accident caused by the negligent driving of his benefactor can sue for damages, so a sex partner who contracts AIDS from a partner who knows he is infected and doesn't reveal it can bring an action for damages, and for exactly the same reason: the creation of the "special relationship."

Now, this brings us to another point: contributory negligence. Particularly in these days of AIDS, anyone who has unprotected sex, whether or not he knows his partner is infected, is S-T-U-P-I-D. Forgive me for stating the matter bluntly, and I'm sure I've just offended at least some of my readers, but it is the depth of utter stupidity to engage in unprotected sex. If you don't care about your own life, at least care for your partner. I don't care how hot he is, you'll have more opportunities to meet hot men in the future if you're alive than if you aren't.

Now that I have that out of my system, back to law. If you sue someone for giving you a disease, and I am representing him, one of the first questions I'm going to ask when you get on the witness stand is: Why weren't you practicing safe sex? Didn't you know that you could catch a disease if you didn't, and that safe sex is as much your responsibility as his? Depending on the judge and jury, the contributory negligence argument—that you were negligent by not practicing safe sex—may or may not get your case thrown out. It will certainly significantly reduce the amount of damages you collect.

Of course, my non-legal advice is that it is far better to avoid the situation in the first place by avoiding risky sex.

The above is based on the assumption that the partner who gets infected did not know in advance that the other person had a disease. If you know that your partner is carrying something and you have unprotected sex with him anyway, you can forget about suing. On those facts, you can probably forget about finding a lawyer to take the case, unless you have lots of money to pay up front. The legal term for that is "assumption of risk" and means that if you know something is dangerous and do it anyway, you assume the risk of any negative consequences.

I've never heard of a case where a person who did not know he was infected passed a disease to his partner and was sued. I honestly don't know how such a case would turn out, since so far as I know there haven't been any cases like that. My best hunch is that the partner who passed the disease is probably off the hook. The standard, remember, is what the reasonable person would do, and obviously, the reasonable person can't give a warning about a danger he doesn't know exists. The argument on the other side is that it is unreasonable to have unprotected sex at all, whether or not you know you are infected, and so that partner passing the disease behaved unreasonably just by having unsafe sex. But then, so did the partner receiving the disease, who was also having unsafe sex, so that argument cuts both ways.

There are circumstances under which people are held strictly liable for what they do, whether or not they could foresee the consequences, but those circumstances usually revolve around things like products liability, and I doubt if strict liability would apply here. My best hunch continues to be that the defendant is probably off the hook, but we don't really know because there haven't been any cases on it yet.

Finally, there are some states which have made it a criminal offense to knowingly subject a sex partner to the AIDS virus. In order to be convicted under these laws, the defendant must know he is infected, and must knowingly put his partner at risk. In other words, in states with such laws, you aren't going to jail if you don't find out until after the sex act that you were infected; but if you do know you are infected, you have a legal obligation, under penalty of criminal law, to tell your partner and to practice safe sex.

This entire subject is a classic example of an ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure. There is just no reason for anyone to become infected with anything these days just because the need to practice safe sex has been reiterated over and over again.

by T.C.'s Smudge

The latest in our quest for new and exciting ways to stimulate your genitalia. This, the recipe for quite possibly the world's most elaborate cockring, comes to us from T.C.

Ingredients

- 1 Protective Cup
- 1 Thick (1/2" min.) Rubber Cockring
- 1 Pair Diagonal Wire Cutters
- 1 1/2" Round File
- 1 X-Acto Knife
- 1 Regular Jock (Optional)

Any good sporting goods store will sell protective cups that keep your dick from getting knocked in the dirt when you get hit by baseballs, knees, tire irons and the like. There are two basic types: the style made by Defender, which fits tightly up to the crotch, and the style made by Bike, which is considerably deeper and lets your nuts flop around. Anyway, this is what you do:

1. Place the cockring over the front of the cup where your dick and balls would be when the cup is in place. With a felt-tip pen, trace around the inside of the cockring onto the front of the cup.

2. After carefully nibbling away with the wire cutters the plastic defined by your trace, smooth the edges with the file. Your cock and balls should be able to fit through loosely.

3. With the X-Acto knife, very carefully slice a deep groove all the way around the outside of the rubber cockring-about halfway through. Repeat the cut so that a "V" is cut out all the way around. The ring should then be easy to press through the hole in the cup so that the edges fit neatly into the "V" in the ring, holding it in place.

4. Stuff your dick and balls through the ring to hold the cup right up to your crotch. Pull a jock over it all and accessorize with your greasiest levis.

Combine this device with the lube-filled rubber described by C.C. Ryder in BEAR #12. The sensation will get you off five or six times just walking from your bike to the bar.

Hey! You!!

Are you one of those kind of guys whose dick gets hard at the sound of a Harley & ZZ Top? The smell and feel of greasy levis and lived-in leathers? Does the idea of these things and the men who live it make your nuts ache? Me too! That's why I draw them!

I think you'd be interested in the kind of work I do. For three bucks, you'll get my brochures. Ten bucks gets you my fully illustrated catalog. Tell me you're of legal age. Fly me a kite.

J.D. Slater, the producer at Izzat Productions, walked in one day with some stills from his recent movie. This fella here caught my eye. Jake has a "raised- on-a- farm- and-kinky-as-hell" look , if you know what I mean. Innocent, devilish, honest, twisted, cuddly, hungry and eager to please and be pleased. J.D. was kind enough to let us showcase Jake-alone and with a buddy. Enjoy.

HOLY HARLEY AND THAT BOOGEYMAN MOJO

by Joe Barle

model: Steve Kasper

photography: David Grant Smith

I grew up in Georgia. That's where I saw my first Harley Davidson. On I-85 between Adairsville and Atlanta. Ten o'clock in the morning and already hot as hell. The sound first, then just this guy's naked, sun-burned back cruising past my truck. And then the gleam off his engine.

I've never had a Harley. My partner does. It's a '79 FLH with a shovel head. He's proud of this bike, even though it's sat in pieces for the past month, frame down in the garage, engine all over our kitchen table. I've never really understood his hard-on for this contraption that rarely runs. When we met, I sold him my old Kawasaki. A dependable little bike. But it's the Harley that gets all the love, polish, paint, and saddle bags.

I ask him, "What's the big deal about having a Harley, John? Huh?"

John strokes his beard, shrugs. "Well...It's sorta like when I was a kid. I had this Columbia bicycle. A big, old American bike with fat tires. This other kid down the street with an English racer started playin' chicken with me one afternoon, headin' straight at me and stuff. I said, 'Well this guy's really stupid. I can run right over him.' So I did. I ran right over him. My old Columbia didn't even get scratched. Havin' a Harley's sorta like that!"

John laughs.

I know he's just playing chicken with me himself. Guys rarely think about why it is, precisely, they fall in love with something. Or someone. Maybe they're scared the spell might fall apart. But I still think, now and then, about that first Harley I saw back South. It had a god to it. What voodoo priests would call a mojo. The ghost in the machine.

So I wander over to Dudley Perkins, the local Harley dealer, that same day, stroll around the showroom, checking out the new bikes. Lots of chrome and dark paint. Big, exposed engines and even bigger price tags. These bikes all seem dead to me.

The salesman says, "Harley means quality. The American way of making things..."

Blah-blah-blah...

He eyes me dryly. "What model were you interested in purchasing?"

Outside the Lone Star Saloon that night, one row of about seven Harleys. None of them bright and shiny. Not like those gleaming new models. But shimmering somewhere deep down. Inhabited. Possessed. Powerful beyond explanation.

John stands there checking each one out.

"That one's Gary's. That's Kasper's. This is Lurch's. There's Ken's..."

Gary, who owns a 1980 Sportster, is a wiry little guy with a wild, black beard and an infectious laugh. His eyes light up when I mention the bike. He offers, "There's nothing better than having eleven hundred cc's of engine thump between your legs. You're sittin' there and there ain't a whole lot of padding to the seat and your nuts are hangin' down on the tank and your prostate's right there of course and it churns everything up and gets you all hot and bothered 'til when you get off you're all primed and ready. You're ready." He grins. "There's a kind of connectedness between you and the machine. It ain't the same with a Jap bike. It's a real ego boost too." Gary sips his beer. "There's two kinds of bikers. Those who own a Harley and those who wish they did. And, you know, having put it together myself, like I did with my Sportster, it makes me feel really good. Like I've got to where I wanna be. It's also like a way of flipping the bird at convention. Like saying 'Fuck You!'" He makes the sign. "Y'know?"

I remember the second time I saw a Harley. Back South again. My buddy Floyd had just got of boot camp. Marine boot camp. Floyd seemed like a stranger to me. They'd stolen him away. Turned my best buddy into a dumb killing machine. All he talked about was mustard gas, cracking heads, wasting Iranians. We'd had a few pitchers and were standing on the corner outside of what used to be our favorite bar. Speechless. Strangers. Then there was this rumble from up Euclid Avenue. We both turned our heads and followed the Harley's wheels spinning and the look on the driver's face. When it was past, we just grinned at each other.

Lurch is twice Gary's size. At least six-foot five and around three-hundred pounds. He's a gentleman though, and owns two bikes, an '80 Sturgis belt-drive and a '77 Sportster. "You just can't go as far on a rice burner." Lurch folds his considerable arms. "It's an entirely different feeling. And there's a mystique that comes with a Harley."

"Why is that?" I ask. "I mean where does this mystique come from?"

Lurch considers this. "It has to do with the outlaw thing, I think. With freedom. Bikers are, I guess, freer...in general." He considers the question a little longer. "There's a lot of homoerotic play around bikers. Straight guys dry-humping each other as a joke, stuff like...You're too drunk to drive, bro. Better bend over, I'll drive you home! Stuff like that. It's all about freedom. And a lot about sex. There's a line from an old, crappy movie about bikers, the trailer being, 'THEY HUNTED DOWN THEIR PREY WITH A QUARTER TON OF HOT, THROBBING STEEL BETWEEN THEIR LEGS!'"

We both laugh.

"But it's mostly, to me, a certain prestige, the feeling you get from the Harley itself, as a machine."

There were always those movies about bikers. Not Easy

Rider, but the other ones. The ones where the bad guys wore striped shirts and bell bottoms, rode Harleys, and gang-banged blondes. Later in the movie, the hero would show up. He'd be clean-shaved and riding something foreign. Something sensible. He'd have good, clean values, a job, a sense of decency. He always made faces when amphetamines or LSD were mentioned. He'd save the blonde. They'd go to the beach and hold hands. You remember the movie.

Kaspar (pictured on these pages, ed.) has a 1980 Wide Glide and looks like a bad biker from one of those old movies Lurch was talking about. Tough-looking with a club insignia on his back. I ask him what turned him on to his first Harley.

"Well, I used to have a rice-burner, a Honda. But the guys I saw riding Harleys looked more like my kinda people. More honest I think. Trustworthy. It's more of a working man's bike. Most guys who own Harleys do a lot of their own wrenching and stuff, so it's like you really gotta be into the bike to have one. Also, there's a kind of love among Harley riders that I like too. A sort of deep brotherhood. A biker brotherhood I guess."

"So what is a biker?" I ask. "A real biker I mean."

"You wanna know what I think a real biker is?...Well...ok...when you're on your ride and construction workers stop and guys at gas stations stop and give you thumbs up, you feel like you ought to live up to their expectations of you, sort of."

"Expectations? I don't understand."

"Well, I guess there's the idea that you can trust a Harley rider, that he's gonna be a little more down to earth and not so crapped out on a lotta bullshit. That's a real biker. And also, I guess, somebody who likes to take risks. Somebody who's into freedom, yeah. The ideals that America's supposed to stand for. And who's also a little crazy sometimes I guess."

"What about clubs? You been around many other bike clubs?"

"Some. The straight clubs aren't so political. The general idea is to party. But the whole gay thing is political in itself. Right? So gay clubs, when they go on straight runs are always out to prove something, that there really is some actual difference between so-called gay and straight guys, which there really isn't I think. I mean, the heaviest biker dudes I've hung around with don't seem to have any problem with my being sexually liberal. I don't know... Anyway, I also went to the Hell's Angels clubhouse on one of their open nights. I didn't know anybody, so they were sort of cool to me. With most clubs, there's this honor thing, like you've got to prove you respect the club members. So really, I have mixed feelings about clubs. But the bike itself, you do sort of fall in love with that. You've got to."

When my buddy Floyd got out of the Marines, he grew his hair back and bought a Harley. It was a Sportster. We got hyped up on Judo together. We'd practice throws and grapples in his basement. On weekends, we'd go out drinking. When I told him I liked guys as much as chicks, he said, "That's cool. I don't know what I like... my bike I guess."

Leatherbear is a burly man in his forties with a beard like big Zeus. An engineer who built his bike up from nothing.

"A biker," he states, "is a man who's got grease in his veins and dirt under his fingernails."

He settles back in the chair I offer him. It creaks a little.

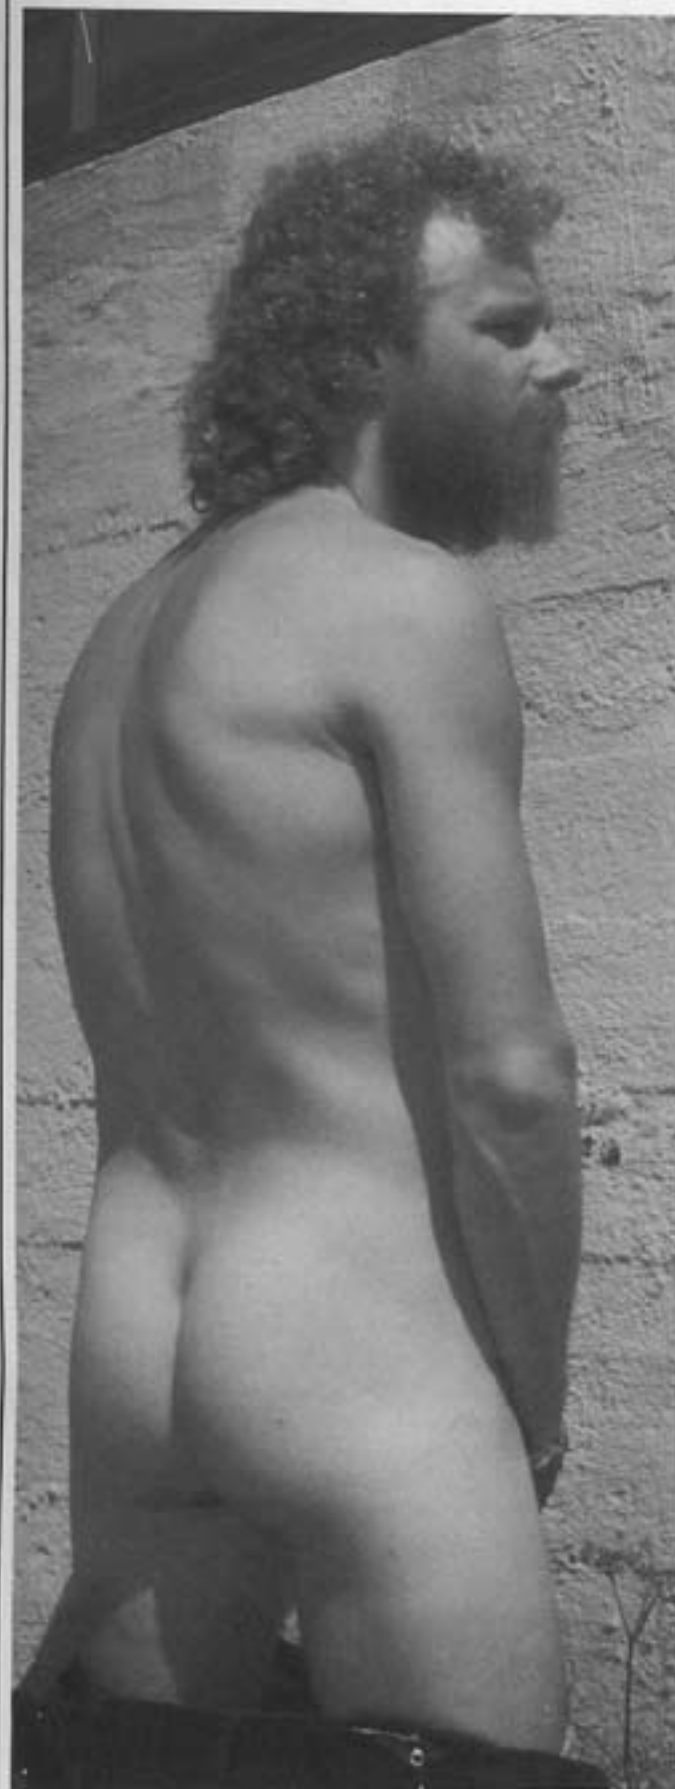

"I grew up on a farm. My sister's boyfriend had a bike. I thought it looked pretty cool, so I decided to build my own, sent away to Mechanix Illustrated. I've never given up that idea of tinkering and building, takin' something from my mind and makin' it with my own hands." He gestures from his head and opens his hands. "Anyways, I remember an article in an old LIFE magazine about the Hells Angels. It said any Angel worth his shit could break his bike down and re-build it in a day. I was impressed. That's definitely something to live for, to understand the manual of arms of whatever trip you're into, to that extent. Anyway, about the Harley...I've had all kinds of bikes. First, that Mechanix Illustrated special I talked about, lawnmower engine and all. Then I got a Suzuki. Vespa. Triumph. BSA. And a Honda that I really liked and ended up chopping. A little later I met this farmboy in Ohio who traded me his Sportster. The damned thing crapped right out on me. I stuffed a rag in it. In '72 I built a really nice Sportster of my own. New engine, new frame. It was fast. Real fast. I've always had this belief I've got to master whatever ride I'm on, and since Harley's such a poorly engineered machine..." He pauses. "...I always ended up chopping whatever bike I bought. You know, in the mid '70's the only guys who were keeping the Harley name alive were us grubby-looking chopper riders. Partly because, by then, we all had that Harley name inked onto our arms. You just can't turn around and buy another bike after that. It'd be like tattooing Christ on yourself and goin' out to follow Allah. Right?"

"Um..."

"But it ain't like that these days. It changed when Harley latched onto a whole different crowd. And the prices went up. Way up. Back in the days of the outlaw, man, money wasn't the issue at all. Now it surely is. The world that I knew is gone. It's become a business, a fashion. You see more yuppies on Harleys these days. Harley's become the thing to have. And the brotherhood ain't there like it used to be. Not at all."

I never did get a bike when I lived back South. My buddy Floyd got sent away. For trying to kill his mother. Nobody knew why he did it and he never said. Maybe he couldn't get the Marines out of his head. Or something. When I came out West, I'd sometimes see a Harley and think about Floyd. And the South. I'd see the lone rider, or I'd see these guys in formation taking up the whole highway looking scary as shit. They always seemed to appear early in the morning. Or late at night. They always seemed to be a sign.

My friend Mike doesn't consider himself part of the chopper crowd at all, just a warehouseman with a Harley. He loves his bike and does most of the work on it himself.

Mike insists, "I know the bike symbolizes things to a lot of other guys. The Harley mystique and all. With me, it's just a diversion. I like it. In fact, it's more of a passion I guess. It feels good and it gets me where I'm going. Having a Harley won't improve your sex life or make you anything you're not already. But riding the bike is great. The feeling of your center of gravity changing and all. The thing I don't like about having a Harley is this lie that you're everybody's brother just because you own a particular type of machine. You know...assumptions about where your head's at and all that."

"Do you think guys who own Harleys are snobs?" I ask.

"Snobs?"

"I mean, like they don't want anything to do with a guy who doesn't ride a Harley."

"Harley snobs, huh? Some are. There're BMW riders like that, too. But that's just because some people are insecure. If you're secure in yourself, it doesn't matter what anybody else is doing, especially with something as superficial as what kind of bike someone has." Mike thinks for a moment. "For me, again, it's not the status thing with the bike at all, it's the way it feels. Also it being the last American bike, it's like having a horse. Like plugging into the cowboy thing in a way. In a way, it's all a paradox. Most bikers live in big cities, just like everybody else. Right? So...they're not living on the frontier at all. And think about it, whenever you give up your individual freedom for the greater glory of a group, like in becoming part of this big biker brotherhood, you're buying into a form of fascism. Isn't that where a lot of the race hatred and stuff comes from?"

I remember sitting in the old Lone Star Saloon the afternoon it was shaken down by the big quake. The World Series was on. The A's and the Giants just warming up. Reggae playing soft and some biker with his shirt off playing pool. On his left shoulder blade a large swastika, on the other shoulder blade the words WHITE POWER. Getting pissed, I thought about the South. How I'd loved and hated it. I thought about my buddy Floyd, about the fights we'd been in together. I wondered why anybody did what they did. Did Floyd have a swastika on his back these days? Was he even alive? I sipped my beer. Maybe he was wondering the same thing about me. Outside, the rumble of another Harley pulling up. At least that's what we thought. But the lights began to sway and the floor to buckle. Plaster dropped from the ceiling. We headed for the door and out into the trembling city streets, breathing fast.

Ken doesn't fit the bad biker image at all. He's a gentle man and dresses like any other guy on the street. He has two small bikes, one a tiny '65 M50 that looks like a toy, the other a '75 XLC with a fluffy foxtail tied to the passenger seat.

On The Road To Sturgis, South Dakota-Photographer, Tim Roberts; Model, Kasper

In BEAR's first photo essay ever, we have the chance meeting of biker and trucker. These shots were actually taken at 70 mph on the road to the country's biggest bike run at Sturgis. This was the 50th anniversary of this annual trek.

"The bike I own, most people would be afraid to ride. It's like a bare frame with a thousand ccs. It'll fuck at me at 60. Not like these newer, rubber-mounted Harleys, like the Sturgis and the newer Sportsters. But riding a Harley, it's less like a waltz and more like a bump and grind. Like a double punch. Because of the two-cylinder engine you know." Ken pauses. "One of the nicer things about having a Harley is that you suddenly become part of this sub-culture just from owning the bike."

"And you like that?"

"Oh yeah. I think it's very democratic. It's like no one cares what you are. Gay. Woman. Man. Nerd. It doesn't matter. If you're on a Harley, they'll come to your aid if you're in trouble."

"Why do you think that is?"

"It's an unwritten rule. The unwritten part of the Harley manual is that anyone else on one is your bro. Now, when I was growing up, it used to be that anybody on any kind of bike you'd do the same thing. Now, because the country's more densely populated, people tend to identify more narrowly, I think. There's also all the history and tradition that exists behind the Harley. It's the oldest American bike still around. It's a part of American history in a way. I mean, Harley markets the bike as the great American freedom machine after all. But, in all, I imagine everyone goes for the power of the bike. It is, after all, the machine that we're talking about and not a lot of the other bullshit. I mean, let's take, for example, the bike runs that I've been on. All the image. Especially with these gay groups. There's a lot of heterophobia among gay bike groups."

I could feel my eyes widen. "Heterophobia? I've never heard that one before."

"Yes. Heterophobia. I've known gay Harley riders who've left Harley bike runs because they couldn't take all the straight men around. They're scared of straight people, which is silly! I mean, I've been at runs wearing a turquoise cap and zipping around on my little M50. To cheers. While a lot of the other gay men just sat around on their hands. Think about it. After all, there're all these guys at these things stripped to the waist, riding their bikes, just wanting to be looked at. They're there to strut their stuff, to be watched, to party, and talk about bikes. Why not enjoy it?"

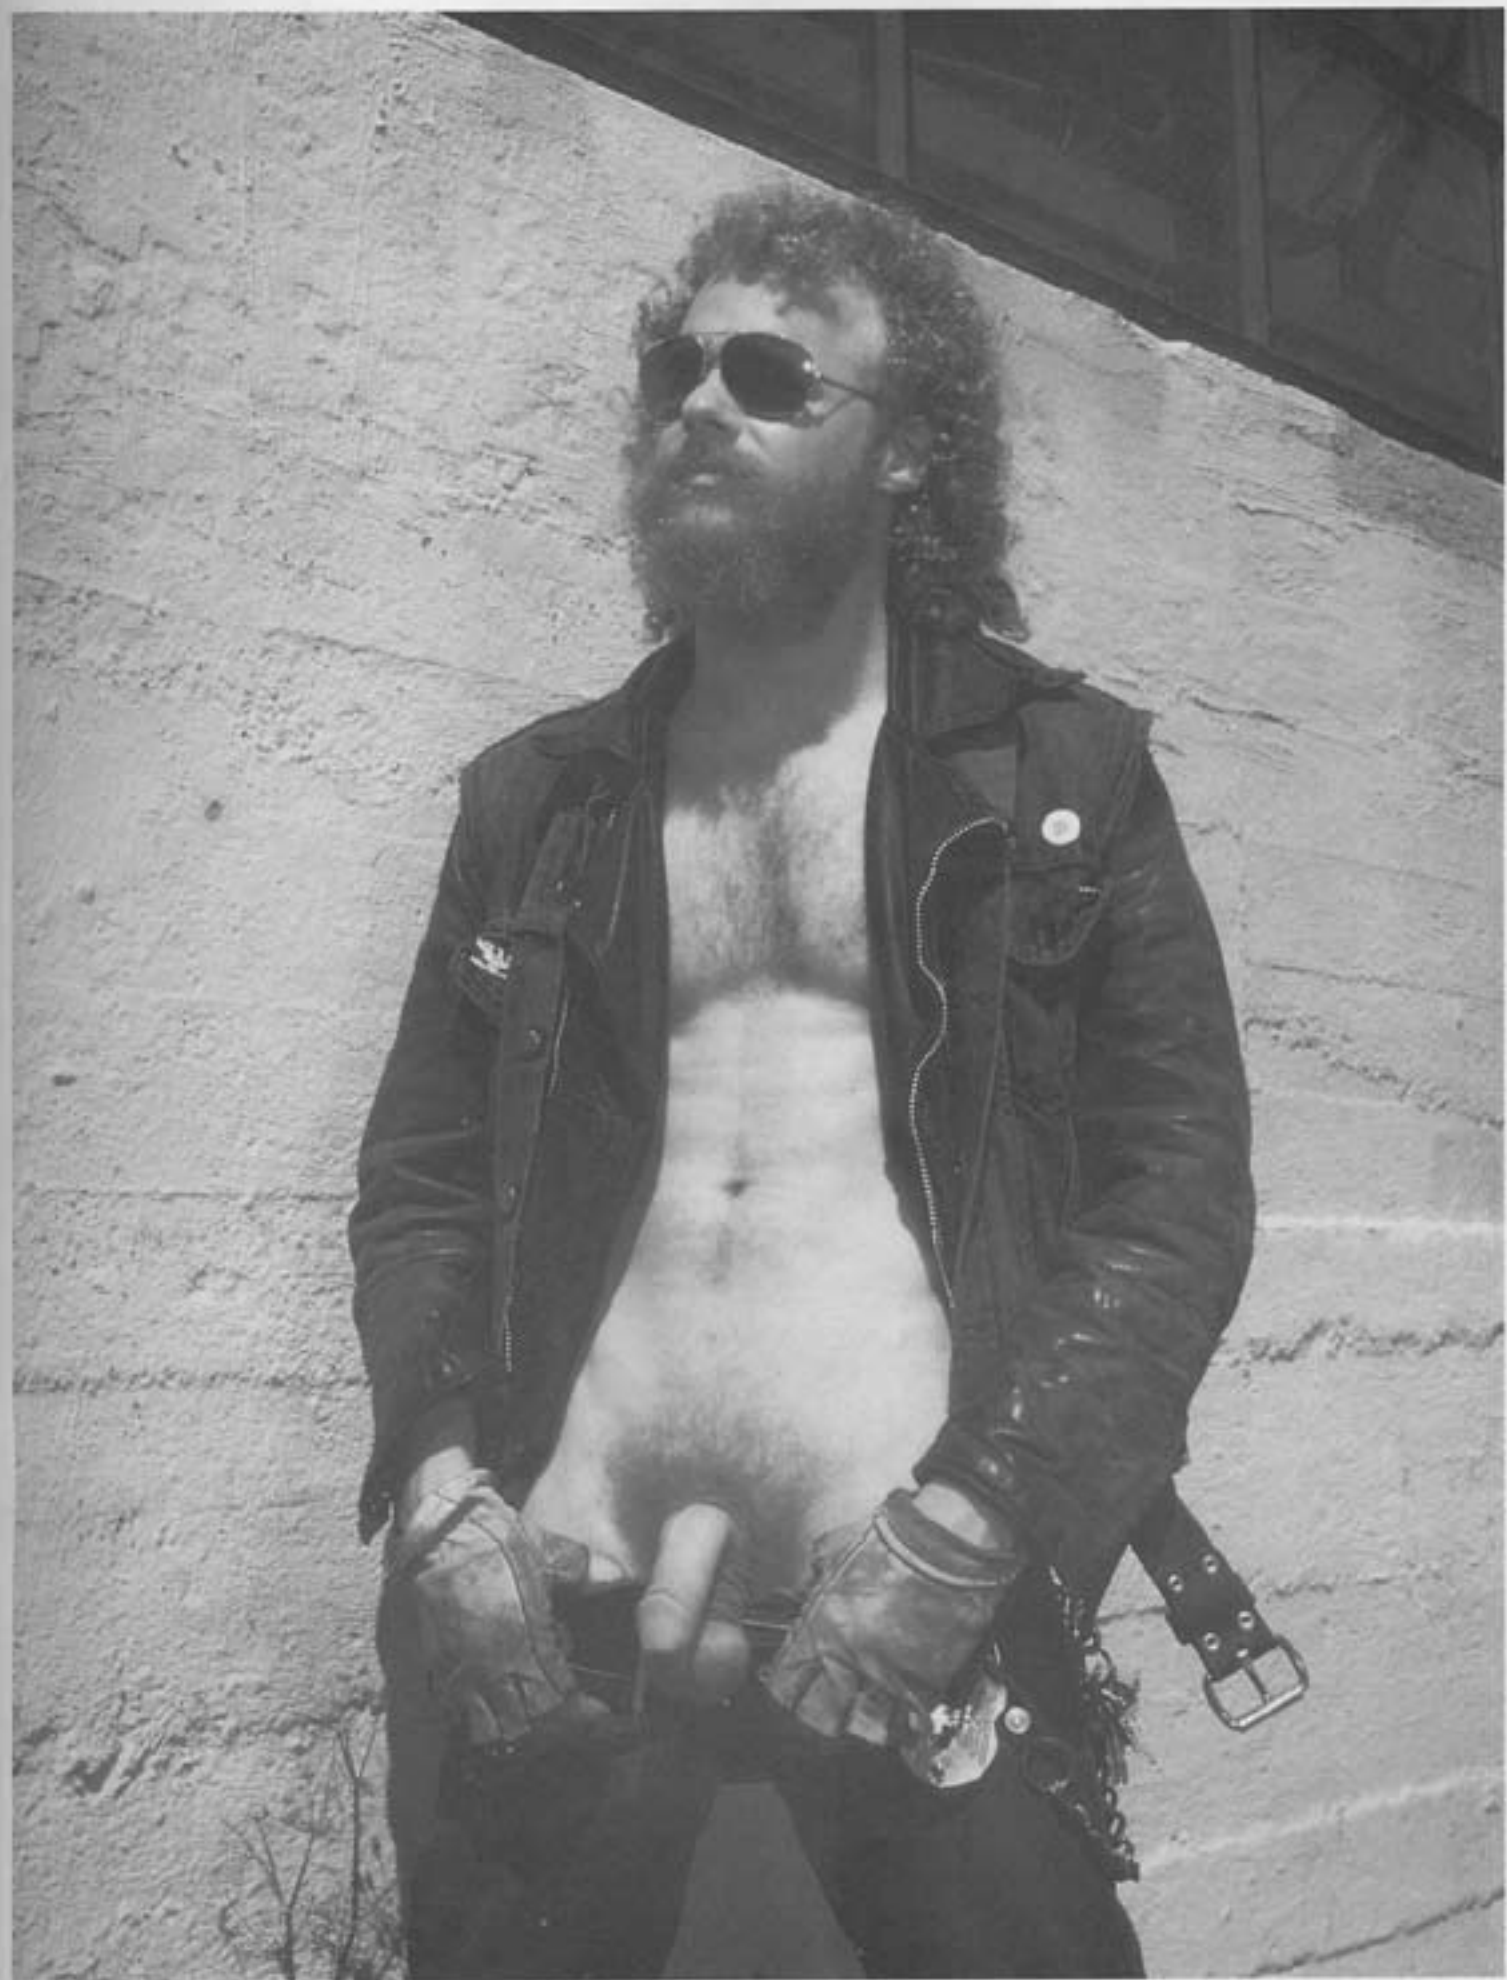

I went back South a little while ago. My friend Kurt had a roofing party. We ate barbecued everything and put shingles on his house, while the women sat in the yard changing babies and frowning at the kudzu.

I asked about Floyd.

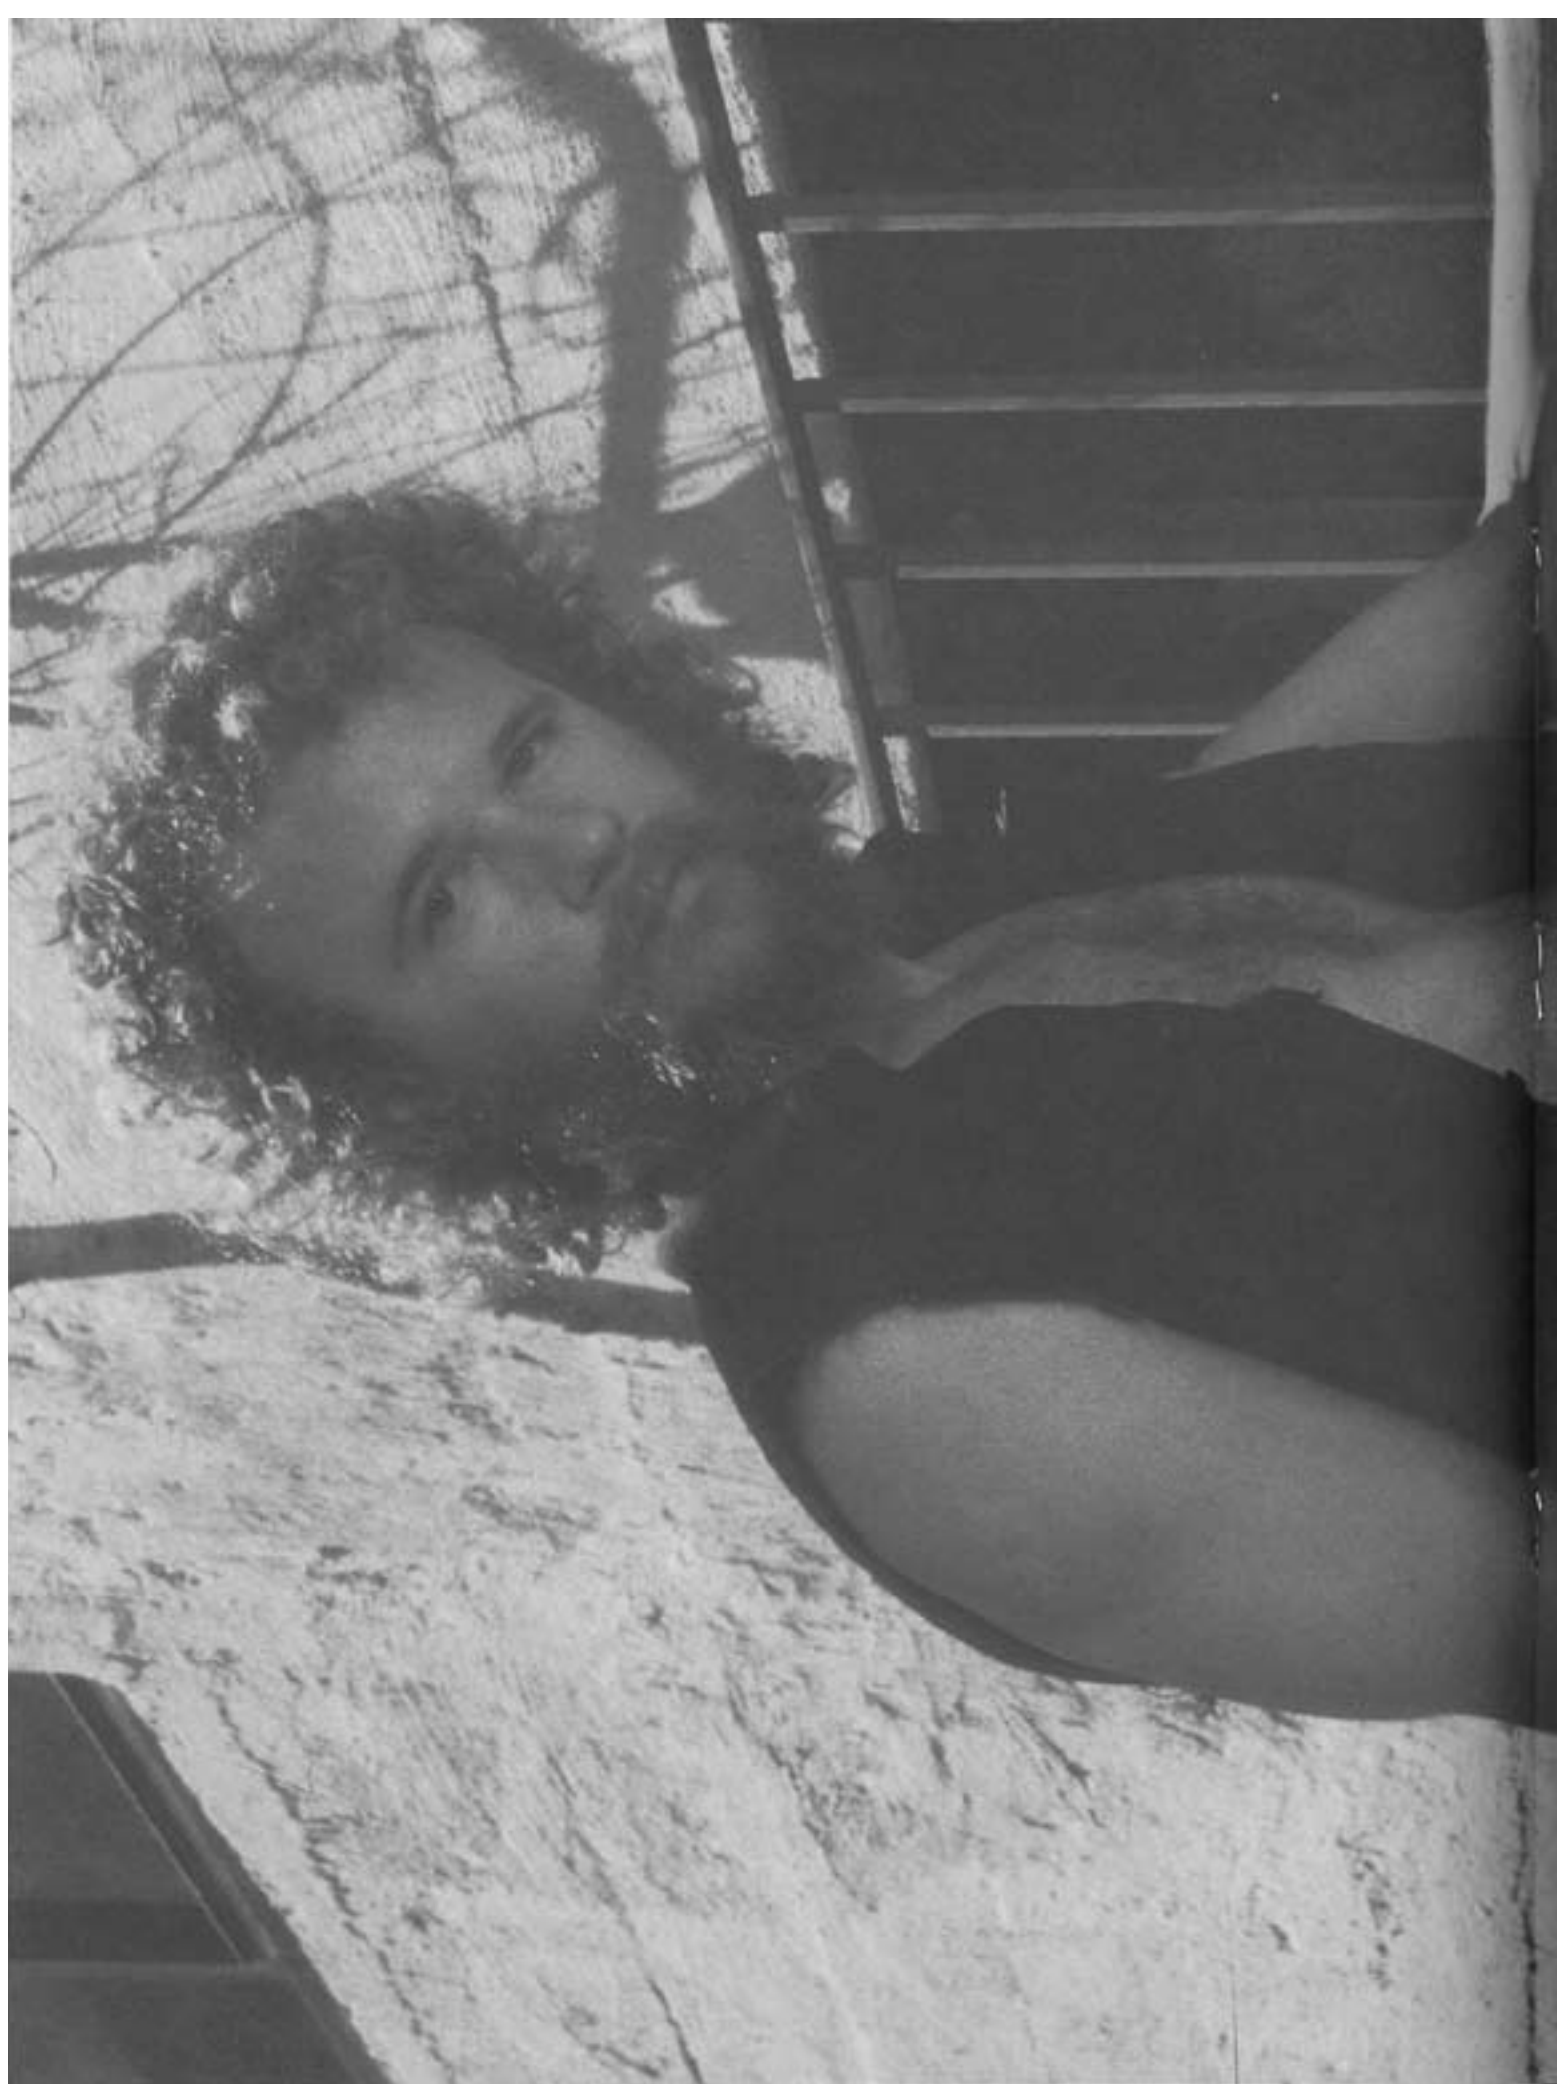

"He's in and out of jail a lot. Nobody knows where he's at right now. He goes off with these bikers all the time. He's always pissed about something. He's weirder than you even."

I think about Harleys disappearing down highways. In the dark. Or under the flickering shadows of redwoods or pines. More like that long-gone cowboy than anybody realizes. More like the big redwoods coming down. And like strange elephants and carrier pigeons hunted down to near-extinction. Off to who-knows-where. Who Knows? Not even the man on the Harley knows, just the ghost in his machine.

BARE PAUSE

John Dibelka

Loaded for B'ar

I am the world's worst wuss when it comes to guns.

I have learned to respect firearms well enough to stay away from them whenever possible. I have pulled triggers at only two points in my life: Once when it was required by the United States Navy during boot camp revolver training and once in the back yard of the small-town cop I had a crush on at the time, when he had decided I needed to learn the manly arts and was trying to teach me to blow away sparrows with a hunting rifle.

Twice was enough.

I have had loaded guns pointed at me. I have even had buckshot fired in my general direction by, of all people, a jealous husband.

I did not much like any of these experiences. But even before I had my first contact with a real gun I had come to feel that anyone who goes gunning for anything that's alive when neither the hunter nor what he's hunting is likely to become the other's dinner deserves - well - to be shot.

This is an opinion. It is also only an expression, but you know what I mean. The opinion is mine, and I take full responsibility for it. It doesn't sit well with a lot of people I know. It may not sit well with you. That's fine, because all it means is that your opinion and mine on this one topic are different. It doesn't mean you're a bad person, or that you're wrong. It doesn't mean, either, that I'm bad or wrong. It just means that we see the world in different ways.

It doesn't even mean you're bad, or wrong, if you tell me you don't agree with me. It's your right to have opinions, and to tell people what they are. I also think it's your duty to think about what you think, but that's not what I want to talk about right now.

What I want to talk about instead is expectations. Or demands. Or something. I'm not sure what I want to call them. Maybe an example will help.

I saw an acquaintance of mine last night at a party. We didn't talk to each other. He isn't talking to me anymore and it would have taken more out of me than I wanted to lose, to walk over and break through his wall and talk to him. We avoided making eye contact with each other, but I knew he was there and he knew I was there and I would be willing to bet my chest hair that he knew exactly where I was the whole time - just like I watched every move he made. We fascinate each other. We just don't get along.

It's not his real name, of course, but I think I'm going to call this man "George". I met George in a bar about two years ago, when I looked up to cruise the crowd and wound up staring right into his eyes. I thought he was one of the most attractive men I had ever seen. I still think so. And he was standing alone.

He still is.

I walked over and started a conversation and got myself overwhelmed. Something clicked, just like in the movies. We spoke the same language. He laughed at my jokes. His jokes were a riot. He moved in a smooth, controlled way that made everything he did look like sex. If you've ever had a first meeting like this one, you know it can't be described. If you haven't, I wish you at least one before you die. He made me crazy. He also made me nervous, but I figured that was only because I was in lust.

I told him I hoped I'd see him again. I didn't think of anyone - or much of anything - else until I did.

I never saw him anywhere but in bars. When I did see him, he was always standing alone, I was always the one to walk over, and the conversations we had were always astounding. I craved his company.

For a while.

Each time we talked I got a little less crazy - and a little more nervous. For a very long time I could not decide why. We observed the same things, very often, the same way. We laughed together a lot. Until one night, when he pointed toward a pool table and pronounced: "That person ought to be shot. People like that deserve to die." I knew all of his tones of voice by that night. The man was serious.

I looked. We were in a leather bar and it was dark, but I knew exactly who he meant. Lit like a spectacle by the lamp over the table stood a queen in full, sequined drag, fluttering a fan in some camp imitation of flirtation. A man in women's clothing no woman would ever wear. A man who, for a whole bunch of reasons which include the fact that he has the balls to dress exactly the way he wants to, is a friend of mine.

I stopped being crazy. I even stopped being nervous. I finally decided I had George figured out and I suddenly didn't like what I thought about him. I excused myself and walked over to spend the rest of the evening, living in full leather, as part of the court of the drag queen, my friend.

About a month ago, George cornered me in another bar and demanded to know why, when I used to seek him out, I had started "avoiding" him, in his words, "like the plague." I wish I'd been witty. I wish I had not allowed him to intimidate me, the way he intimidates everyone so he can stay in control of his own little world and make it run by his own narrow rules. I wish I could have been his friend. Instead, he knocked me off guard and all I could say was, "I can't live up to your standards. I like people too much."

George stalked away, and I left.

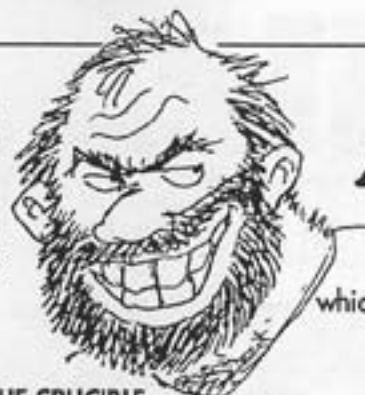

And last night, at the end of the evening, my friend the drag queen walked up and kissed me good night and followed my eyes straight to George, and sighed.

"Darling," he said; "Gorgeous is as gorgeous does." I laughed.

"My mother used to say that," I answered.

"Then," said my friend, "In my opinion, you mother was a very wise woman."

THE CRUCIBLE
PO Box 800053
Minneapolis, MN 55408
$6.00 for sample

I've harped repeatedly on the absurdity of wearing sexual costumes just because one's neighbor has the same outfit on. You know, the leather stuff. I have absolutely no problem with anyone getting decked out in whatever accoutrements and condiments might strike his libidinal fancy as long as he's true to himself.

The Crucible is a newsletter addressing leather sex and magick. I like the mix. If any of you readers know anything about ancient religions, you know that appreciation of nature and worship of archetypes representing significant human states are a part of its hocus-pocus.

This isn't said lightly or with disrespect. Imagine killing an animal. Then imagine using the skins of this animal to adorn one's body. And then imagine wearing these skins in a sex act. With these visions in mind, you may begin to feel the potential power of leather sex and magick.

The Crucible contains some how-to's, letters, true life experiences, drawings, and personal ads. It's an 8-1/2 x 11 xeroxed number, and appears to have a small but faithful following. If you wear your leather religiously, then you might want to take a look at The Crucible. •RB

Subscription: four issues $10, eight issues $18

What a concept. Two men, two cats, a Winnebago and the open road. The result is a magazine called Monk, a bohemian-flavored travel review. Published quarterly, Monk is written on a solar-powered, dashboard-mounted Mac by Michael Lane and Jim Crotty.

Some of the Monks' (Michael and Jim refer to themselves as "monks" for reasons which change with the issue) ongoing projects include a guide to the best phone booths in the country (the Monks use them as field offices), interviews with local characters, and lessons in the vernacular of visited sites. A recent issue featured

How to talk AR-kan-SAW

Lack: similar to. ex., We used to have a pickup truck just lack yawls only differnt'.

I especially appreciate the open-minded fun with which the Monks view their surroundings. Seeing New York as they see New York is a refreshing departure from pompous commercial venues where Robin Leach is shouting about the magnificent Waldorf Astoria. Instead, these guys find out what porn-star extraordinaire Annie Sprinkle is up to. And offer advice like "...if you don't walk the streets of New York you might as well not bother coming. The sidewalks tell it all."

The Monks obviously have a wonderful time. Give the magazine a try, whether you travel or not. It's like spending time with real folk in real places you've probably never even heard of. •LM

Free brochure

In Issue #12 of BEAR, there was an article by C.C. Ryder, Home Cookin'. He talks bout one extra thick condom. I was scrounging around and found a brochure I'd ordered some time ago. It's from Added Dimensions. One book they offer specifically mentions where to buy the only condom that covers your cock and balls. This book is What Size Is Your Condom? It's a 78-page book: $10.

I've ordered before from that company and they're pretty reliable, but the book I ordered, Testicles...The Ball Book is filled with info but light on photos for a book touted as photo-packed.

THE RULES OF THE GAME

- 1. Replying to a COA Box Number. Write your letter, put it in an envelope and seal it. On this envelope, put the fella's box number IN PENCIL where you'd normally put a stamp. Put this letter along with $1 in a larger envelope and mail to us. That's COA, 2215R Market #148, SF, CA 94114. We always forward letters if you've done what's called for here. If you mess up—and particularly if (a) you don't put your note inside another envelope, and/or (b) you don't include a buck—we throw your handiwork away.
- 2. Constructing your ad. When you write out your ad, keep this in mind: talk a bit about yourself and be real clear about the types of folks you'd like to meet through your ad. As much as possible, avoid telling us who you don't want to meet. No "no fats, no feds, no Lithuanians" shit. Be positive. And if you aren't, we edit the shit out of the ad and turn you into more of a Polyanna than you'd care to be.
- 3. Using the phone. If you're calling someone, keep in mind (a) time zone differences—if you don't know them, look in the front of the White Pages in a phone book; and (b) that the guy on the other end may not be able to or may not want to talk to you at the time of your call.
- 4. Abusing the phone. Don't. Or we'll eliminate them from ads.
- 5. Cost and duration. Personal ads are free if you're a BEAR BUDDY for the duration of your sub. Otherwise, they're 25¢/word/issue. Wanna change your ad? Send in $5. Wanna discontinue your ad? Write in and we'll pull it. Regardless of its duration though, you will have to pay to have a pulled ad reinserted.
- 6. Deadline for classifieds. For issue #15 it's December 20.
- 7. COA Box Numbers. Available to US subscribers. Free to Bear Buddies, including Foreign Buddies. Otherwise, tack on $5 to your ad. We forward mail once a week. A word to the wise: responses to your ad will be greater using your own address versus ours.
- 8. Personal vs. commercial ads. You know as well as I do what a personal ad is and isn't.
- 9. We reserve the right to edit personals. This right is exercised for editorial consistency and for clarity almost exclusively.
- 10. We reserve the right to refuse any ad for any reason whatsoever.

FUCKIN' AROUND

We've got a pretty serious health crisis goin' on right now. Many of my friends and yours have died. And it's been proven that certain types of sexual activity have played a large role in the transmission of AIDS.

No one knows all the do's and don't's regarding safe sexual activities in these times. However I'm going to lay out my personal feelings regarding fucking around. How valid are they? Who knows. But I am alive, sexually active in San Francisco, and probably do not have antibodies in my system fighting HIV exposure.

1. Lead a healthy life. Get plenty of rest and an adequate amount of exercise. See a doctor regularly for physicals.
2. Keep your teeth in good shape! Floss regularly (but several hours before cock sucking). Make certain that you're free of gum disease.
3. Assume that your sex partner(s) is carrying a life-threatening, sexually contracted disease. And if you're sexually active, assume the possibility exists for yourself. The selection of your sex partner and the activities that you engage in are YOUR choices and YOUR responsibility.
4. Don't be afraid to say no. It's your life, guy. And conversely, don't be afraid to go for it if you've got a clear mind and conscience.
5. Kiss, hug and spit to beat the band.
6. If your gums are in good shape and your partner's dick is in good shape, stick it in your mouth, if this sort of thing appeals to you. I don't recommend taking someone's load in your mouth or in your ass, protected or not.
7. If you're a butt eater, you're probably not going to get a life-threatening disease by doing it if your immune system is up and running well. However you could come away with hepatitis, amoebas and other nasties. Weigh these possibilities before you make the lunge.
8. Butt fucking should be done with condoms and a water-soluble lube such as KY, spit, or Probe. Trojans have been found to leak like sieves. Just look at all the Trojan babies women have hatched. Try Gold Coin. And cum outside.
9. Number One and Number Two may be in the same category as spit as far as transmission is concerned.
10. Watch your substance use. If you think you're too fucked up to be making decisions, don't fuck around. Remember, there's no Morning After Pill.
11. If you or someone else jabs needles into you, make certain that no blood or only your blood has come in contact with the needle(s) since it was last sterilized.

and bicycling. The man I seek is happy, honest and capable of commitment. In bed, I'm sometimes snuggly, often pretty intense and always safe. Expect some rough stuff and dirty talk, though I can also be real huggable. I've usually been a top who takes on other tops, but I'm open to any hairy, manly guy who will get to know me before we hit the sack. No anal sex, smokers, drunks or druggies. I have a special interest in Italians, policemen, blue collar men and short, built hunks, but all interested rugged bears should respond to 584 Castro St. #451, San Francisco, CA 94114-2588. (16)

TOM'S CUDDLY BIG BEAR must have big, massive, hairy bear belly overlapping belt hanging to groin partially concealing delicate tiny uncut flower all crumpled up, odor-free, boxed in between a gorgeous pair of huge hairless thighs smothering otherwise pendulous nut-sack with intoxicating scrotal aroma encasing your precious oversized family jewels. When flower blooms, leaves give way revealing shiny pink head with swelling dewdrops at tip excitedly awaiting my thick, hot, experienced, Negroid lips, 45 years old; pulsating head atop stiff stem spurts out thick cum to satisfy my insatiable sperm diet. Flower wilts and disappears completely in a luxurious overgrowth of thick, black, bushy pubic hair.

A huge round pair of immaculate and hairless buns, broad manly shoulders, heavy and hairy masculine breasts complete with hard, sensitive nipples and a glorious hairless, pink halo; giant round face double chin gamished with a full & bushy black beard; big, muscular arms and fleshy fingers; two heavy and well-constructed legs supporting 300 pounds of massive American manhood completes this lush, obese scene. That's TOM'S CUDDLY BIG BEAR. If you don't think you can meet all my specifications, don't let that bother you. You're still a human being. Maybe we can work it out - man to man. All you accountants, clerks, bus drivers, taxi drivers, organists, executives, teachers and FAT COPS!! Send me your photos and fantasies to your tit-suckin', cock-drippin' friend. Thomas, PO Box 4317, East
