LETTERS TO BEAR

Oh....Hi, Mom

I have enjoyed BEAR Magazine for a year now. It's so good to see a magazine in which the men are men! Your writers, editors, photographers and staff are second to none! I no longer read other magazines. BEAR is all I need.

My mother came to visit and picked BEAR 25 up off the coffee table. I expected her to put it back after she realized what it was, but to my surprise, she did not. She slowly looked at the men, turned back to the cover and started through it all over again. After a second look she said, "I don't see why you're not in this magazine...you're as good looking as these men, if not more." Well I don't see it but Blanche is never wrong. Thanks, and keep up the great work.

C.B., New York

So your mom liked us, huh? Good for her. A lot of us have good mom-meets-BEAR stories here at the shop. It's great for morale.

We got the pictures you sent in. Nice. We'll probably be in touch later. By the way, you have your mother's eyes.

Howlin' At The Moon

Well there I was, having an unusually shitty day at work when I decided to go to the post office and check my mail. In amongst the bills and advertisements was my new copy of BEAR 26. Always good to see, but even better because I had forgotten that a new issue was due. I got in my truck and opened up the envelope and out in my lap fell the best lookin' bear buddy I'd laid my eyes on in as long as I can remember.

Usually I just kind of glance at the cover and thumb through the magazine in the truck and then put it back in the envelope until I can get home and take a serious look. But not this time. I just sat there looking at those great friendly eyes and that "How y'all doin'?" smile surrounded by that beautiful beard and long hair and had to see more.

Well Gawd Damn! And wouldn't you know his name's Wolf, my eyes nearly popped out of my head at that. I mean, here I am sittin' in my truck rivetted to pages 33 through 39 with a rod as stiff as a tailpipe wedged in my jeans with people pullin' up and walking by and I couldn't have given a shit. My birthday was still two weeks away and you guys gave me the best gift of all.

Eventually I was able to regain my composure and reduce my hard-on enough to use a motor vehicle and drove back to work with Wolf grinnin' the whole way.

Got to tell you guys. If you ever get in contact with this guy tell him that there's a 6'3", 230 lb. country fuck in Carolina who says "Hey," and this bear thinks Wolf Logan is the finest long-haired, boot wearin' leather-vested, Frederick Remington belt-buckled

THE WITKE WIRE

I write this as the cruelest month of the year settles into my neck of the woods, bringing with it the requisite arctic temperatures, heavy snowfall and cabin fever. The winter routine and the feelings that go along with being a snowbound Northeasterner really haven't changed much over the course of my life. I spend a lot of time by myself, in my home looking for distractions.

When I was a horny 13-year-old, that meant harricading myself in my bedroom with my 13-inch black and white television set and scanning the channels for hot images while I manually stimulated my 13-inch sex organ. (OK, I'm exaggerating on the size, but it's what we used to call a theme back in creative writing school.)

Back then, there was nothing so arousing as spending a couple of hours on a Sunday afternoon watching ABC's Wide World of Sports coverage of The Superstars competition. For those of you who never discovered the joys of the Superstars, a little background is in order. The show was a six or eight week mini-series in which famous professional athletes from just about any sport you'd care to mention would compete for cars and cash prizes in areas other than those of their own particular expertise.

In other words, you'd see brawny, hairy football stars strip down to their Speedos (it was in the '70s; that's what they wore) in order to challenge baseball and basketball players and bowlers and jockeys to a relay swimming competition. Agile jocks would stumble through military obstacle courses that seemed designed to stretch their workout clothes tightly over their balls and asses. I was a huge fan of the wall climbing and the rowing. I mean, when you're climbing a wall it's almost impossible to control the occasional exposed ass crack and really, why wear a shirt if it's just gonna get wet when your canoe tips over?

How my gaze would linger over Jim Palmer's luxurious chest hair and famous bulging basket! How I would drool over Pete Rose's beefy, furry forearms and Ben Davidson's coarse chest pelt. I don't know if The Superstars is still around nowadays, but what I wouldn't give to see the Toronto Blue Jays ace Paul Molitor with his shirt off, romping through the water polo competition. The man has arms that look like the fur-covered, well-muscled legs of a thoroughbred race horse. Thick, delectable hair is always climbing up the front and back of his muscular neck. And it would be a dream come true for Molitor to compete with L.A. Raider Howie Long, as tasty a hirsute side of beef as has ever existed.

If I couldn't find coverage of The Superstars competition back in the days of budding puberty, there was always the old syndicated standby of The Wild Wild West. I just caught an episode the other afternoon and I was shocked to realize that I hadn't imagined the homoeroticism. Where on earth did Robert Conrad's character Jim West manage to find spandex riding britches in the 1800s? At a general store? What an amazing pattern of hair on that hard-muscled chest!

As you can see, it's been almost 20 years since those virginal teenage explorations and little has changed besides the virginity. I still find myself combing the airwaves on a cold weekend afternoon, hunting for exposed furry flesh. I've managed to come up with a few recommendations that might help you out if you're on the prowl like me.

If there is a college football game to tune in, you'll be amazed at what you see. Bulky, hairy college men in half-shirts jumping all over each other, rubbing bare flesh against bare flesh. You'll spunk a load before half-time.

Try syndicated, hour-long action adventure shows. I recognize that there's no middle ground when it comes to Lorenzo Lamas; you either find him hot or repulsive, but if you fall into the former camp, his Renegade series gives maximum exposure to his ample fur and intricate Harley tattoos.

The same rule about warm climates applies to these shows, too. Anything hairy-assed great piece of meat country bear I've ever seen.

J.P., North Carolina

On behalf of the North Carolina State Patrol, I'd like to thank you for avoiding a DWEO (Driving While Experiencing Orgasm). Our streets are dangerous enough without cock-weilding, cum-shooting BEAR readers swerving around in their trucks.

We were delighted to be able to boost your day with BEAR 26. More people need to recognize the value of a cute dick and a nice smile. There'd be a lot less anger in the world today. And I did pass your note on to Wolf. He liked it.

Wolf Tales

Thank you for Wolf, BEAR 26 cover model. He's one hot hunk of man. Your photospread of him was great, but there was one thing missing. As an avid fan of manly back sides I am still wondering what his gentlemanly following looks like [his butt]. Guys, solve the mystery and make my day. Just roll him over and show us his butt!

K.J., Georgia

Seems to me that when someone's got their legs spread and pointin' up in the air as high as possible you're goin' to get some ass. Take a second look at page 38. You won't need a flashlight.

Canadian Converts

I used to read all the bimbo magazines until I saw yours. When I saw BEAR 22 on vacation, I was shocked. I enjoyed everything about it. I now think getting older is no big deal. There are gorgeous guys that are 18, 25, 30 and 50.

Since then I've grown a beard. I get treated with more respect; people often favorably comment and my lover has a renewed interest in me. I guess it's like being with a new guy. He really loves me being hairy all over, now.

A friend of mine came over so I showed him BEAR 23. He frowned and said "what are you reading?" By the time he finished, he and his lover became two new converts!

Jeff, Canada

We love converts. You never know where they'll pop up next.

I'm glad you've had favorable response to your new look. I know that when I first grew my beard it was a great way of showing the rest of the world that I was happy with the positive changes that were taking place in my personal attitude.

"Bears Don't Kiss..."

Your remark in BEAR 27 about the guy who complained that "bears don't kiss" is sure to start an avalanche of mail, so here's another one. Hell, bears hug, kiss, suck dick, fuck ass, get sucked and fucked and whatever else two guys who aren't afraid to be MEN and who are turned on to each other can. The key phrase is "turned on to each other." When two guys are turned on, there's no limit to what they can do to please each other. The last we need to is be politically correct and have someone tell us what we should or shouldn't do, or worse, what we can and can't do. Ever hunt for a guy's lips through a bushy moustache and beard? Grrrr! The world needs more love. Let's show more bears loving and kissing!

D.L., Washington

We did get a lot of response about that comment. It's amazing what people will run away from, for one reason or another. I agree about what it's like hunting through a bushy moustache to find a guy's lips. Hell, if you're lucky, you can find some leftover spaghetti sauce and garlic bread.

Thank You, Bill Blodgett

Congratulations on another fine issue. I thought you had reached the top with BEAR 26 and Wolf....But then along came BEAR 27. Bill! That thick fur on his face makes me wild. I think an encore is due. Especially more of that thick cock!

I would also like to comment on a involving lifeguards, The Coast Guard, or Caribbean resorts is usually worth checking out, at least visually.

BY CHRISTOPHER WITKE

For example, drama critics may not be able to handle Baywatch. Except for all of the exposed baskets and body hair it would be virtually unwatchable. I find, however, that if you leave the sound off and pipe in your own music you won't be distracted by plots that make absolutely no sense or the aimless rock video segments that pad out most every episode.

Similarly nonsensical is the Catherine Oxenberg/Fabio vehicle Acapulco HEAT. I swear to God I cannot recommend this show enough. Forget the romance novel model and the Dynasty reject, the real star of this hour-long series about a private security team is an actor named Brendan-something. Your usually observant Wittke Wire reporter wasn't paying close attention to the credits of the recent episode he accidentally stumbled over. I'll get back to you on his identity and my new, growing obsession with him in a future issue. Brendan-something plays the intense and brooding agent named Mike. This guy is, honestly, like Peter Onorati, Fred Dryer and Martin Kove all rolled into one. A short batch haircut emphasizes his receding hairline. A lantern jaw with a perfect cleft chin rests above a neck as thick as a workhorse's. He also regularly shows off a built up hair-covered chest, arms and legs. The guy is clearly Irish (I can say this because I am too) so even when his tight jeans look painted on he pushes a basket. But who cares? Plunging necklines, tank tops and open shirts serve to reveal what is easily the best new chest on television. Check out Acapulco HEAT. You won't be disappointed.

Now I know what you're thinking: Some of us actually like to see smutty, steamy sex between guys like these, instead of being forced to imagine presumably heterosexual actors getting it on on broadcast television. Of course, all commercial, mainstream gay porn still focuses on lithe 19-year-old blonde smoothies, so that's out of the question.

Not so fast my friends. There's finally some good news to report from the gay smut world. The success of specialty producers like Brush Creek Media and Palm Drive Video has finally begun to spill over into (so to speak) and influence the formerly twink-only world of mainstream smut. You know, the kind of gay porn you can find down at your local video rental shop. This year has finally seen the release of mainstream porn that, if not 100% urbane, has begun to include actors and scenes that are not to be missed by fans of the hard and hairy.

Before the mouth-watering Marco did his cover and layout for DRUMMER 168 (which appropriately labeled the stud Daddy for the '90s.) I saw him do a searing solo J/O scene in Catalina Video's (yes you read that correctly) Handjobs 4. I watched it slo-mo. I watched it backwards. I watched it frame-by-frame. I watched it again and again as this beefy, balding version of hunky beauty brought himself (and by extension, me) to orgasm over and over.

Also check out any movie that features Joe Magnum who used to be known as Michael Perreya back when he was International Mr. Leather. I first saw him do the hardcore thing in Catalina's (yes I know it used to be the Twinkle factory) Sex Crimes. Although not well-served by his director, Magnum uses his broad and hairy torso, beefy fur-covered arms and juicy prick to full effect as a psycho who stalks gay men for reasons far too complicated to explain here.

Catalina (I swear, I'm not kidding, Catalina) then cast Magnum and Marco as well as the fuzzy, mustachioed Hank Hightower in The Taste of Leather. The final scene, which includes action between and among Magnum, Marco, and the hot Donny Russo is fairly astounding, given what mainstream porn has fed us for the past 10 to 15 years. There's uniforms, there's fur, there's leather and there's lack of emphasis on skinny, smooth young 'uns. What more could a smut pig ask for, I ask you.

possible oversight on BEAR 27's fiction, "Paul's Opening Night." A fine short story from Bill Blodgett. But other than on the title page there is no credit given to Mr. Blodgett. Please, give credit where credit is due! Talent like this deserves a banner headline.

B.S., Michigan

You're totally right. We spazzed that one. We're damn' proud of our contributors and want them to get all the recognition they deserve. Thanks for rubbing our noses in it. The rolled-up newspaper felt great on our collective snouts.

Religion

In BEAR 26, I read the CYA column several times. Mr. Dahl sounds just like the very people he's taking pot shots at. I've been at the rostrum of Thomas Road Baptist Church many times. My Christian Brother Falwell and I respect each other for viewpoints held. We agree on the mastership of Jesus in our lives. How we practice our beliefs is another matter. I don't come against him for his ways, nor does he, me. I've been a practicing Evangelical for twenty-nine years now, and I've never hidden my penchants sexual, nor have I encountered any heavy-handed remonstrance. Granted, there are a number of very emotionally damaged individuals knocking round in the Evangelical/Conservative/-Fundamental circles, but this is also true among all subcultures and thematic societies.

Keep in mind, please, that the strongest detractors are themselves trying to cover up their own fears. The biggest whip in the right-wing pasture, himself a mental-health professional, figures that because he can't give in to some desires he's afraid of, well, you're not going to be allowed to, either! If he gets his way, that is. He and I used to talk, now we're on the opposite sides of the teeter-totter—I didn't move, he did. No one is perfect, no one has a corner on truth.

Learn compassion, Mr. Dahl. If it weren't for stalwarts like me hanging around in the halls of fundamentalism, our zealots would be a lot worse than they are.

C.H., Illinois

We passed your letter on to Mr. Dahl. I guess we're glad people like you are willing to live in the world you describe. As long as there are people around to provide calming examples, fear and hysteria on both sides will subside.

Fear, if not helpful, at least has a basis in fact: we get countless letters from guys in small bible-belt towns afraid to give us their names. "Please, they open my mail at the post office!" It doesn't sound like any one's respecting anyone's views here.

On a Lighter Note

How much of myself should I compromise when looking for my man? I fear I might be wasting my time and money on personal ads because the reactions I get from people seem horrid! I have always been attracted to the Dark Side, such as Satanism, Vampirism, ritualistic sex and abuse, and many other lovely things. I never realized how fucking difficult it is to find that in another man. Am I expecting too much?

I love BEAR. The men are so mind-blowingly hot, and I am not fulfilled by any magazines but it. My needs are not met by sex alone, but by the things I mentioned above. Should I stop seeking self-gratification, and be happy with just plain-old raunchy sex? Are my needs too difficult for anyone to fulfill? Is all the shit I'm into considered demented to the BEAR family also? I love biker men, and beards make me writhe with desire; but I need more than his body. I need a mean-assed Warlock son of a bitch who takes me body and soul. Do I need professional help, or is there hope?

M.Z., Texas

A couple of things are going on here. Your first question is whether you should compromise. The answer to that is generally "no." You're going to want what you want until you get it. Then you either want more, or move on to something else. So don't compromise. Finish your business.

Your second question is where to find it. BEAR covers a lot of ground. We get nastier than some people like, but aren't nasty enough for others. Until you've talked to everyone in BEAR, you won't know there's no one for you. Keep looking, but most important, be up front about it. People generally don't like surprises when it comes to Satan.

We save our nastiest ideas and put them in POWERPLAY Magazine. This spring, the long-awaited issue 5 is due out and you should check into it. All kinds of men subscribe to that, furry and not so furry. And they get in to some way-out shit. You should do great.

Mr. Hard and His Harley

I've enjoyed being turned on by the articles, fiction and pictures in BEAR Magazine for several years now and wanted to say thank you and to wish you well in keeping up the good work.

When I retired and moved to West Virginia last year, I expected to be surrounded by bears and haven't been disappointed—except in their availability. However, I didn't realize until later that I would be living at the foot of such a well-named mountain. Still have high hopes that some day I'll meet one who wants to take the bike out in the woods for some serious play. But I thought your readers might enjoy the sign.

I look forward to more hot issues. In the meantime, I'll spend as much time as possible on the Harley traveling cross-country and looking for bears.

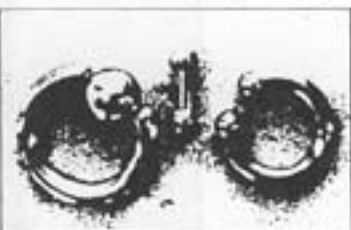

Keep up the good work. And yes, this is my actual name:
C. Hard, West Virginia

BARRY

For some international fare we present Barry, hailing from Kenya. He's 5'9" tall and 180 lbs big. Having been born and raised in safari country, his hobbies include game ranging, horseback riding and photographing animals in the wild. He says that what first attracts him to a man first is a good personality, with the openness and willingness to be exactly himself. Of course it wouldn't hurt if he had a beard and a nice chest. The most unusual place he's had sex is in the bush, in an elevated lookout post. In bed he likes a lot of rubbing and therapeutic touching, approaching sex as a sensual experience.

A Plumber's Cockring

Aside from those wonderful junk yards my favorite place to be is wandering through the isles of a good hardware store. Row after row of things send my imagination into a sleazy frenzy. The plumbing department is full of goodies that have proved to be very gratifying. Many items I pick up will end up being used with something else, making what it's been added to so much better.

Items I've enjoyed are the assorted rubber gaskets used in plumbing. They come in different sizes and shapes and they're so cheap you can easily afford an assortment to experiment with. I originally picked up a few to use as cock rings and soon found out that they can enhance the performance of other toys. For example I discovered that certain kinds of gaskets worked very well with my vacuum pump, and others worked great with my home made Suck-Fuck machine. Both were used to hold the tubes in place without having to worry about them accidentally slipping off my dick. There's nothing better than being able to stand at my table getting sucked while I draw. But we'll save that for another issue and continue talking about cock rings. The sensation these give when worn varies depending on their design and what kind of rubber they were made from. Gaskets that are deeper push your equipment right out front and, depending on what you're wearing over it, can feel so intense you'll spend the entire time with a rock-hard dick. Wearing a latex jock with some grease poured into the cup is like getting a greasy hand-job whenever you walk or move because your cock and nuts are packed right up against the cup. Other designs give more subtle sensations. Now get on down to your hardware store and see what you come up with. If you think you've discovered something that the rest of us would like to try send your idea to BEAR and they will forward it to me. Maybe it can be in the next issue of Home Cookin'.

P.S. As I mentioned in this article I use the equivalent of what is known as the Accu-Jac. If any of you out there own one, especially if it's on your sensual menu, send a letter to me in care of BEAR. Thanks, T.C.

Your Secret's Safe With Me

Story by Mike Golobay Illustration by DaDe

The big all-terrain tires on the rented Blazer hummed a monotone lullaby as they picked up speed outside of Denver. Silverthorn was still 40 miles to the West. It had been an incredible feat of logistics to arrange an extended weekend that all four men could work into their unpredictable professional schedules at the same time.

Stu Falkner sat in back with his long time friend Laramie Baker. Actually, Stu and Laramie were a lot more than friends. They shared an apartment, their time, their joys, their pains, and as often as possible, their bodies. Not needing to prove or explain anything, they had opted to maintain a very low and very straight profile.

Laramie, at 6' 3", was a healthy 195 pounds of lean muscle and bone. He wore a heavy beard that started high up under his cheek bones and continued on down to his toes, changing texture and consistency in various spots along the way. He gazed out the side window with the hint of a smile that seemed to always be on his face, and slowly worked a lump of snuff in his lower lip.

His partner, Stu, sat next to him with his eyes closed and his head draped over the back of the seat. He concentrated on letting his last defense case seep out through his fingertips and into the upholstery. The thick brush of brown moustache tickled his nose, now and then, making it twitch.

Laramie had a way of knowing when Stu was trying too hard to relax so he silently slid his hand under Stu's left butt cheek and squeezed. Stu's eyes opened quickly and first darted up to the front seat to see if the other two had noticed, then drifted over to Laramie who was using both index fingers to mold a smile onto his own face. Against his will, Stu's moustache stretched as a crooked smile grew underneath. Stu quickly swept the smile away and replaced it with a grave, concerned look and shook his head while his eyes pointed towards the front seat. Laramie held up an OK hand sign, sighed, and resumed his random gazing out the side window.

Jim Stawson even drove seriously. An obsessive weight lifter at 205 pounds, he cultivated a mean ol' bear image that he was quite satisfied with. His face was clean shaven, but as early as three o'clock in the afternoon it showed a noticeable shadow of dark stubble that was doomed to be scraped off first thing in the morning.

Accompanying him in the passenger seat, Roy Logan fidget-ed with the radio dial without stopping on any station for more than a couple of seconds. Roy had perfect blonde hair and ice blue eyes that sparkled with ample wit and a razor sharp intellect. His moustache was a very light brown color and grew down to meet his jawbone.

Just a few months prior to their trip Roy and Jim had discovered that their sexual interests extended a bit beyond the artificially comfortable limits that 20th century society was familiar with. Several times they had been drunk enough and horny enough to get off together, as straight guys sometimes do. Each wanted a little more, but neither could tell the other.

The campsite was a little farther west of Silverthorn and was accessible via a path that only cattle and Blazers would find passable. With all four windows down, the vehicle lurched and bounded from deep rut to large stone and periodically tossed the men, equipment and coolers into each other. The air outside was hot and crisp, lightly scented with pine, and briefly filled with dust from the laborings of the Blazer along the path.

At last, Jim pulled the Blazer into a vaguely cleared out place nestled in between the pines. This must be it. The perfect campsite chosen by the perfect Grizzly Adams Outdoorsman Camper. The other three men knew what would happen next. Until Jim relaxed he would simply have to direct and coordinate the campsite setup. It was just his personality. He'd chill out after a bit. He killed the Blazer's engine, and all four men invested a second or two drinking in the music of the silence in the pines.

"Okay men, let's get all this shit unloaded and set up," Jim barked. Laramie and Stu smirked at each other, rolled their eyes a bit, then opened their doors and let their feet find the ground. Laramie worked his snuff some more and worked up a spit that he let splatter thickly on a piece of flat red sandstone. Stu made another face.

"Jeez, Laramie! You almost got me that time," Stu protested.

"Oops." Was Laramie's only reply. He stood there with his thumbs hooked into his belt loops, with that helpless expression on his face that made him look like a burly man and a little boy at the same time. Stu couldn't help smiling as he remembered the thousand or so times he'd seen that stance, and that disarming expression. The emotional impressions of their years together, their passionate lovemaking, their rowdy play, their hellacious fights, and times spent warm and safe in each other's arms without words all combined in those few seconds and reminded him of how almighty and ever present his love for this man was.

"Asshole." Stu smiled and laughed the word out.

"Hey! Laramie. Come over here and get these back packs out of the way." Jim was obviously perturbed at Laramie's apparent lack of interest in sharing the work.

Soon the Blazer was more or less empty and the men marveled at the impressive mound of camping equipment that had somehow been wedged into the vehicle. It didn't take long before Jim began to get real busy again. He became a moving blur of red flannel and denim as he carried tents and equipment to the locations that were perfect for reasons only he knew. The other three could only watch and shake their heads as they listened to Jim's muttering, apparently to the equipment itself.

Stu and Laramie had managed to escape into the forest on their own, while Roy and Jim stayed behind and finished setting up camp. Stu wasn't sure how Laramie had explained to Roy that they were going for a little walk, and he didn't really care. It was their first moment alone and Stu had been fantasizing about it all day.

"We'll have to come back when we're not so distracted", Stu remembered thinking, as the various wild sights they saw whizzed by in a blur. Laramie was practically sprinting into the woods ahead. His hiking boots tore little bits out of the matted pine needle compost carpet that covered the trail. Stu didn't mind having to jog a little to keep up with him. Somehow Roy and Jim had just naturally settled into fidgeting about the last details of the campsite and didn't even try to suggest that they all go on this first hike together.

From up ahead, the sound of running water playing over smooth stones mixed with the songs of the birds to lift the two men up and let them float the last few steps. A large slab of granite formed a shelf over a tiny, crystal clear stream. Stu and Laramie stood there and looked into the water for only a second or two before Stu grabbed Laramie by the belt buckle and pulled him close. His body felt rigid and powerful, yet gentle and firm as his arms wrapped around and squeezed. Laramie felt his arms moving around Stu also until he could fill his palms with the muscles of Stu's back and hold on just as tightly. They rocked in each other's arms silently. Stu felt his throat grow tight and his eyes hotly moist. Laramie's mouth found his, and the wiry hairs of their mustaches mingled, as Laramie's tongue lightly traced the outline of Stu's lips. Stu swallowed.

"It seems like its been forever," he whispered.

"I know."

Silence. Just rocking. A gust of wind. Laramie's dark brown eyes met Stu's. He could barely discern the inky black iris from the surrounding pupil that fluctuated ever so slightly. The world faded away and, for Stu, there were only those eyes. From far away he heard the melody of Laramie's rich, deep voice.

"I love you."

"I love you," Stu echoed, still lost in his eyes.

Back at the campsite, Jim and Roy tried to avoid the subject that they were alone and the day was perfect for some explorations that a guy didn't even need to leave the campsite for.

Jim was nervous and made himself busy bear-proofing the campsite while Roy watched and considered the bear that was already there.

It was purely a miracle that Stu and Laramie had wanted to take a little exploratory walk alone. Roy was sure that Jim would get surly and guilt them into staying there to help, or that he would decide that a walk was just the thing to wind him down. Roy knew how to unwind this big man down. Whew!

Roy crouched on the ground against one of the trees and watched Jim manhandle the campsite. Jim was more of a man than Roy and the other two rolled into one. Silent and brooding, he always seemed to be vaguely angry or terminally serious. He gravely went about whatever unimportant thing it was that he was doing at the time. Just like Dad. Just like a man was supposed to be. No doubt he was a mean ol' bear. Jim took sudden attention in the tree where Roy was crouching, grabbed a knapsack, a hammer and some crucifixion nails and stomped over in that direction. Several of the fat iron nails were hastily stuffed into his mouth, and he hefted the backpack way up over his head and slammed it into the tree, which gave a palpable shudder and rained scaly pine bark into Roy's hair and mouth.

"Ack!" Roy spit tree shit off to his left. Jim continued to wrestle the backpack against the tree. "Jim. What in the hell ARE you doing?"

"Ahhhm ghn out his uhh ere," he said through the mouthful of nails.

"You what?"

"Huuck oou." Came the reply. His efforts seemed monumental even for him, as his whole torso twisted with the effort. The crotch of his overalls was just a foot or so from Roy's face, seriously full of meat and at eye level from his crouching position. Roy slowly reached out and touched the canvas, trying to remember if he dressed left or right. Nope, must be right. Yup.

Right there under Roy's forefinger was some damn fine bear cock. Jim didn't even notice Roy's light touch and began to drive one of the murderous nails into the white flesh of the pine. Roy pressed just ever so slightly harder and rubbed the length of Jim's thick, powerful meat.

"Hey!" Four of the treacherous nail things fell on Roy's head, the backpack swayed against the tree, and Jim jumped back a healthy step.

"What?"

"Get your hand off my dick!"

"Why?"

He flushed bright red, threw his hammer down and stomped over in the direction of the Blazer. Roy got up, brushed more tree shit off of his shirt, and followed. Jim plopped down in the driver's seat with his feet out on the running board and fumed.

"What's the matter big guy?" Roy asked as he leaned against the open door. Jim said nothing and began to drive his thumbnail along the seam of the right leg of his overalls. His face was already quite dark with thick stubble that made him seem hotly virile, dirty, and savage. Roy's cock got a little fuller.

"C'mon, Jim, talk to me about it."

Jim looked up and Roy saw that his eyes were, maybe, a little redder than usual. Couldn't be.

"I just..." he trailed off and looked at the ground.

"What?"

"I don't know why we do, you know, those things. I think about it a lot. I get worried that I'm not OK inside."

"Oh, bullshit. I know why I do. Because it feels good and I like it. You like it too, big guy. Don't you?"

"But I don't want to." Jim sniffed. Roy was sure of it. This big mean ol' man-o-steel bear was crying. He loved it.

"Hey now." Roy said parentally, cautiously wrapping an arm around Jim's shoulder. He let it lie there. Roy used his other hand to hook him under his large square jaw and pulled his face up where Roy could see. Jim's slate blue eyes were indeed red. The track of a tear left the corner of each and ran down into the wild sandpaper terrain of his cheeks where they spread out and got lost. Now he'd seen 'em do everything.

"Jim, you're just a lucky guy. See, you've got so much sex drive running around loose in there that you know how to have a good time better than most. I'm sure you know how to show a lady a good time, and now you're learning how to horse around with your buddies a little, that's all."

"You think so?" He sniffed again.

"I KNOW SO" Roy said as he gave his neck a couple of brief squeezes with the arm that still lay draped around it. So manly and still so boyishly cute with his slightly pouty lip and runny nose. He needed a hug.

"Come here you." Roy growled as he hefted Jim to his feet and wrapped him up in a killer bear hug. For the first time since Roy had known him, he hugged him back! At first it wasn't a serious hug, just a little squeeze, then it built till Roy had trouble breathing and the skin on his face began to tingle a bit.

"Help," Roy croaked hoarsely. Jim chuckled, and relaxed enough in his hug so Roy could catch his breath and quickly become aware of a massive slab of hot bear cock that prodded him slightly above his own pubic bone. What a man. His daddy must have been a horse.

"Hmmm, seems like this ol' fella is feelin' better," Roy said as he ventured a hand down to the tight bulge that arched up and to the right. Jim's face never flinched. In fact, every muscle seemed to tense as if he would suddenly bolt out into the trees like a wild animal. Roy gently rubbed the underside of the stocky shaft until the canvas was hot from friction.

Roy put both hands to work and began to unbutton the fly of the overalls. Jim's gaze never broke. His knuckles were white. Inside the overalls, Roy maneuvered around the boxer shorts and unfurled Jim's fat cock which was still throbbing slowly to its full size.

"What a man," Roy smiled at Jim. His face was made of stone. His eyes were still wide, and not a muscle flinched as Roy stroked the naked skin of his dick with the backs of his fingers. Roy wrapped a hand around it and tugged slowly and firmly, moving right up under the exposed head and back down to the fur where this monster grew from.

Carefully, Roy got down on his knees and kept Jim's eyes on his own as he held the head of Jim's cock an inch away from his lips. They had never done this before. Jim had never wanted to but his eyes told Roy to go ahead, so he did. Right before Roy broke eye contact, the thought crossed his mind of how easy it would be for Jim to kill him with his bare hands.

Roy's tongue was greeted by a clear viscous bead of sweet pre-cum that sat like a small crystalline dew drop at the tip of the fat, flesh colored, mushroom shaped head. Roy lapped it up and gave the underside a long slow lick that started close to Jim's balls and didn't stop until it got to the underside of his head where Roy's tongue moved in large, luxurious circles. Jim's knees trembled a bit. Roy put the whole head in his mouth and tightened his lips around the shaft and began to drive Jim in and out by the half inch or so to avoid gagging and ruining everything.

Jim took this treatment for quite some time, without much of a change in breathing or any outward signs that he might be having a good time. As Roy was about to try something else to see if he could get a reaction, Jim let out a deep hostage breath on which rode the solitary word "Good." Roy smiled inside and grew even more enthusiastic about his task and wished there were some way to see Jim's face while deeply enjoying the taste of his cock at the same time. Jim's exhales were louder and timed to the solid flexing of his thigh muscles which were synchronized to the rhythms of Roy's tongue and hand. It wouldn't be long before Roy would discover what a full load of hot bear cum tasted and felt like while it still pulsed from the furry beast whose throbbing tool he was holding in his hand.

Suddenly Jim's hand came down on the top of Roy's head and pushed him away. He swallowed hard and looked wildly out into the silent forest of pine. His eyes darted from branch to leaf to stone finding nothing and resting nowhere.

"What?" Roy whispered.

"Maybe Laramie and Stu came back already!" The color fled from his face, and his proud cock, just seconds away from firing, began to deflate in drastic pulses.

"C'mon man, keep your mind on our business here and let me finish this."

"NO! What if they SAW!" He stuffed the beautiful meat back into the overalls and quickly buttoned the fly. Roy couldn't think of anything else to do but scowl, so he did.

"Shit!" Jim spat the word at nobody in particular and peered up and over the roof of the Blazer.

"Shit!" He licked his lips, and his eyes darted around. "Let's go find them." Jim moved around Roy at a pace Roy didn't think he'd ever seen him reach before.

"Okay, lead the way," Roy said with a sigh. There wasn't any way to stop him once he got going. They'd just have to go find Stu and Laramie.

Meanwhile, alone in the forest, Stu and Laramie loved each other slowly, relishing each touch and savoring every caress. They managed to share each other in this way at least twice a week but every time was like the first for them. Sometimes both would close their eyes and sway to music that their souls made. At other times their eyes would lock into the center of each other's gaze, never moving, never flinching, as they fanned fires low in their bellies with simple touches as only a man knows how to touch a man.

Their shirts had been hastily removed and they lavished in the simple feeling of rubbing their chests together. The passion between them drove their hands to undo each other's pants, the metal buttons making dull, thumping pops as they parted. Their kisses became a hungry feast with each man's mouth deeply tasting the other inside and out. Stu held Laramie's big tool in his hand and felt the thunder of his pulse as it got thicker and longer. Laramie suddenly seemed to become preoccupied with something. His eyes were still closed as he gently pulled away from Stu and cocked his head as if to listen.

In the back of his mind a voiceless whisper summoned his attention. An icy current spread under his skin making the hair on his back, shoulders and neck stand up. Maybe it was their scent in the air, maybe something else, all he knew is that Jim and Roy were close and they had to stop. He opened his eyes and smiled an apology to Stu.

"We're going to have company," Laramie sighed.

"Damn!" Stu whispered in a hiss. "Are you sure?" He asked, knowing full well that Laramie was usually quite sure about these things if he went to all the trouble to bring them up.

"Yup. Real sure. They're close too, we'd better get dressed."

Reluctantly they found their clothes and began to sort them out, brush pine needles off of them and hide their bodies inside them. They helped each other make sure that everything was on right side out and not too rumpled. Next they assumed the distance between them that would be expected of straight men, then took a last glance at each other before putting on the masks that generate the versions of ourselves that everybody wants to see.

Just a few steps down the trail and the muffled rumble of a male voice could be heard from somewhere up ahead. A little further in the direction of the voices, Laramie could hear twigs and small branches snapping and cracking under Jim's every step. He stomped around out here like a large bull in a small china shop. God save him if he ever had to actually hunt because he was hungry, Laramie thought.

The men saw each other through the trees at about the same time. Stu called out to them and Roy answered back while Jim, undaunted by losing his audience of one, continued with his bearish monologue still jabbing the air with his finger to punctuate one of his deadly serious statements. Laramie sighed and smiled, then let his thumbs find their favorite spot in his belt loops as he drifted over to meet them.

After dinner the dirty tin plates and various other wares lay haphazardly about underfoot. The grog of beer and the fullness of their bellies slowed the talking and gave their bodies a leaden feeling. Soon the talking stopped altogether and the group experienced the truly human and bizarre occurrence of contagious yawns. [continued on page 58]

THINGS TO DO

EDITED BY

18-21 February 1994, San Francisco, California. It's the BEAR Expo '94, a fabulous fest of fur, fun, food and fucking. Large numbers of attendees from all over the world will have contests, attend workshops, drink and make many. Call 415-647-9127 or write 2261 Market St. #160, San Francisco, CA 94114.

20 February 1994, Portland, Oregon. The Cascade Bears are having another "Bears in the Woods" Snow Trek. Promises to be a nice event for those seeking outdoor adventures and who aren't afraid of a little weather. Call their bearline for info, 503-323-6071.

26 February 1994, Nashville, Tennessee. Experience Bluegrass in Music City with the newly formed and chomping-at-the-bit Music City Bears. Takes place at Ynonah's, 1700 4th Avenue South in Nashville. Several regional bear clubs will be represented. If you go, you have to promise to hunt down Minnie Pearle and give her a big "howdy" for me. Contact Dean of MCB at 615-399-2837.

4-6 March 1994, Houston, Texas. It's the Leather Journal's Pantheon of Leather Weekend, and International Masters and Slaves Contest. If you like the way a man smells in leather and want to get bossed around, this is it. Call the Leather Journal at 213-656-5073, fax 213-656-3120.

11-13 March 1994, San Diego, California. The San Diegans are planning to make a good show with their Sixth Annual National Leather Association's San Diego LeatherFest. Takes place at the Radisson Hotel Circle; pretty nice digs from what I hear. A weekend of education and entertainment for the SM/ Leather/ Fetish communities awaits. Contact NLA, PO Box 3092, San Diego, CA 92163 or call 800-598-1859.

19 March 1994, New York. Girth and Mirth of Gotham City are holding a New York-style Leather and Levi Party, which basically means they try to steal them off each other. Could get kinda rowdy. If you're a full-figured man or just love 'em that way, get in touch with them by writing Girth and Mirth NY, PO Box 10, Pelham, NY 10803.

23 March 1994, New York. The GMSMA activists are at it again with a pleasant little seminar called Rubbing You The Right Way. Their flyer described it as frisky friction using a variety of common instruments such as brushes, emery boards, coarse cloth or kitchen gadgets. Sounds cozy. And remember what they say, "Always reach for your Hamilton Beach." Open to men and women. Call 212-727-9878.

25-27 March 1994, Vancouver, British Columbia. If you're into Canadian men and into rubber, get yourself to Vancouver for Rubboust 3, a weekend of rubber events. People wear rubber because you can hose it down when you're done doing whatever it is you do. I wouldn't know. Contact Northwind at PO Box 2253, Vancouver, BC V6B 3W2, Canada.

8-10 April 1994, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The Philadelphia Leather Organizing Group is organizing a spectacular celebration of leather pride and solidarity. That usually means showing off good duds and having lots of hot, kinky sex. Their flyer even mentions a bear party during the festivities. Contact Ketti at 215-732-6898 or Rik at 215-592-7722.

Memorial Day Weekend, May 1994, Pensacola, Florida. They've got great beaches in this part of Florida, and each Memorial Day Weekend a huge unofficial gay convergence takes place for three days and three nights. The locals hate it—saw them bitching about it on CNN one time, while thousands of beefy, tanned men romped it up in the surf behind them. So go work some nerves and get some sex and sun. In the Naverre Beach area. Local Pensacola bars can show you the way, or call The Roundup at 904-433-8482.

Memorial Day Weekend, May 1994, Chicago Illinois. Once again it's Big Bear Weekend and International Mt. Leather. Chicago hasn't had this much action since the Capone days. It'll get you coming and going. Parties, contests, bar hopping, a bear picnic in Lincoln Park during a freezing rainstorm are guaranteed to make your dreams come true. The bear stuff is brought to you jointly by Great Lakes Bears Chicago and Great Lakes Bears Michigan. The Chicago people have an info line: Call 312-509-5135 to get upcoming information.

26 June 1994, New York City. Stonewall 25 International March Upon the United Nations. It is timed to coincide with the Gay Games and the International SM-Leather-Fetish Celebration. A mile-long rainbow flag will be carried up 5th Avenue in Manhattan. You're on your own for travel and accommodations. Make plans now.

Brisbane Babes

New on the scene are Australia's Brisbears, pictured above. They only started a few months ago, and enthusiasm for their group has grown quickly. One look at 'em ought to tell you why. Nice looking bunch of guys. They've begun regular meetings, bar nights and one-on-one social behaviour of an indeterminate nature. Their club listing can be found on page 17 of this here dirty magazine.

Connecticut Cookout

The newly formed Northeast Ursamen of Connecticut had a hot tub weekend awhile back. According to their flyer, the fall event took place at a member's house who just happened to have a hot tub built for 20. We think this is very convenient, and suggest all bearclubs have at least one similar member. It looks like the Ursamen are off to an excellent start. If you're hiding under the covers in New Haven and haven't yet joined, how are you ever going to have sex? Call them.

Seattle

Up in the Pacific Northwest they know the value of hunky, furry guys. Couple that with a genuine talent for celebrating and you have the perfect ingredients for the Seattle Invasion. Portland's Cascade Bears and Seattle's Pacific Northwest Bears converged on what used to be called The Queen City (Seattle) for one hell of a weekend. Attendance was good at the new hangout, C.C. Slaughter's North. It all went so well they're planning another. Keep an eye out in our listings, or contact them to get details.

Hirsute Pursuit and The Land of Awes put together an awesome event not long ago: BearHug '94, in Wichita, Kansas. Took place just this January. Over 300 men were in attendance from all over the nation's middle-section.

Since no convergence of Beardom would be complete without a parade of hairy beef, they did indeed hold a contest. They focused on four categories: Grizzly, Bear, Best Beard and Best Chest. The winners, respectively, were Dave, Mike, Jimmie and John. It was their second annual event, and from what I hear, there's sure to be many more in years to come.

Unity 94

financial shape made us decide to sponsor him at this world class event. He'll be decked out in "bear-aphernalia" to show his appreciation, showing off his 250 pound, solid as a rock, heavily tattooed body to its best advantage.

We wish all athletes in this in-your-face, against-the-grain event the best, but our cheers for Luke will be particularly heartfelt, win or lose. Your support of this magazine has allowed us to help AIDS organizations, homeless projects, free speech and civil liberties programs. If you'd like to join us in his and other sponsorships, we'd appreciate it. Photographer Jim Wigler has generously contributed his photographic services for us to have snaps of Luke in training at Gold's Gym. We'll try to get a particularly revealing shot of our man to donors. Send your contributions to Brush Creek Media, BEAR@ Backing, 2215R Market St. #148, San Francisco, CA 94114.

Keeping our finger on the pulse of America: Send us details and photos of what your club is up to and we'll do our best to cover them here. Photos must have photographees names, permission and phone numbers--Luke

Question Everything

Raymond Luzak and I disagree strongly on some issues.

In spite of, or maybe because of, that fact I consider him an important writer and a talented editor and I feel privileged to have contributed to his new book, Eyes of Desire: A Deaf Gay & Lesbian Reader (Alyson; $9.95).

I got involved with this book in a round-about way. A long time ago I worked as a teller in a small branch of a large bank. I didn't last long but I did meet some interesting people. One of my regular customers planted the seeds of my interest in American Sign Language (ASL) and Deaf culture.

He was a middle-aged man and kind of nondescript; someone you would never really look at twice, or pick out in a crowd. The first time I waited on him the person behind him had to nudge him and point to me when I called for next in line. He looked awfully nervous as he walked up to my window and, without saying a word, handed me a note. I thought he was planning to hold up the bank. I almost set off the alarm.

Fortunately for me, he had been through that routine before. Unfortunately for him, the only way he could head off the disaster he saw coming was to do something that obviously caused him a great deal of pain.

"No," he bellowed loud enough to swivel heads throughout the branch; "I'M DEAF."

As soon as he had spoken he seemed to shrink, to try to disappear into his clothes, while everyone around us either stared or looked away again, shaking their heads or laughing. I blushed like fire and read the deposit instructions in his note and finished his transaction. I tried to smile and wrote I'm sorry-Thank you on his receipt.

I still don't know what I was sorry about. I felt confused and terrible. I had never met anyone deaf in my life. I had certainly never heard deaf speech before. I had always assumed all deaf people read lips and talked just like Loretta Young did to Don Ameche in that movie about Alexander Graham Bell.

After that I did everything ignorant hearing people do, every time I waited on him. I raised my voice. I talked slowly and carefully, like I might to a child. I drew pictograms on his pad instead of writing sentences. I knew there had to be a better way to communicate because his bank account balances proved he wasn't stupid; I just didn't know what that way was. I left the bank before I could work up the courage to ask him.

Later, after some other odd jobs and six years in the Navy, I went to work evaluating disability applications for the state of California, started tending bar part time, came out in public and volunteered with AIDS support groups. Suddenly it seemed like I was meeting at least one deaf person everywhere I went.

On my state job, I learned about the California Relay Service, which lets deaf people talk to hearing people over the phone, with an operator's help, using Telecommunication Devices for the Deaf (TDDs, still called TTY's for TeleTypewriters, by many deaf people).

At the bars I got tired of remembering my bank customer every time someone I knew and waved to every day had to grab a pad and write an order I should have known how to take some other way.

At gay and lesbian public events I watched interpreters sign for speakers and singers and looked around myself at hundreds of people I knew I might want to know, but had no idea how to talk to.

In providing assistance to people with AIDS I saw deaf men with so little strength they could not get out of bed, having to throw things at helpers to get their attention and write notes to ask for assistance.

Finally, I figured I needed to learn ASL. I have been at it now for going on three years. It's slow going, but I'm getting the hang of it. I still have to remind myself daily to swallow my pride and ask for help instead of letting signs fly past me, and to be flexible about saying things in different ways. And I have had to learn to socialize more and more often, spending time with my Deaf friends who use ASL even some evenings when I'd like to be alone, because conversation is the only way to really master any language.

On days when I'm signing well I catch myself thinking in pictures, in depth and in space and in time and in concepts. I like that. On days when I'm not I break into sweats and vocalize and sometimes act like a spoiled child. I'm glad to say those days are fewer, these days, and farther between. On both those kinds of days, I learn more about myself by learning to express my thoughts in new and (for me) different ways, and I meet and interact with fascinating people.

If you're Deaf (the upper-case D connotes someone who is "culturally deaf" as opposed to "medically deaf," a distinction having to do with personal pride and the use of ASL), deaf hard-of-hearing, hearing impaired, or hearing, or know of anyone who is, Eyes of Desire has something to teach you about the overwhelming importance of communication and the many forms it takes.

If you are, or anyone you know is, gay, lesbian, bisexual, transsexual, transgendered, straight, celibate or somewhat confused, this book can show you how some people have handled, with varying degrees of success, the definition of their own sexuality and the direction of their approach to the barrier that divides every self from all others.

If you expect to interact at any time during your life with members of a culture other than the one you call your own, you stand to benefit from some of these contributors' insightful hints on how to treat people who aren't quite like you like the human beings they are.

In short, no matter who you are, I strongly suggest you read this book. In his introduction, Luzak says he feels we all should "question everything," one of his favorite phrases. On this point, at least, I completely agree with him, and the many unique and important perspectives he's collected here seem to me a real good place to start.

Public Sex

I don't know why I'm writing this column since its subject matter (public nudity and public sex) is nothing of interest to anyone who reads BEAR magazine. I mean, why would I think that the readers of BEAR would have any interest in nudity and sex when instead I could write about quantum physics or recent archeological discoveries in Central America. But, I have a public duty to my readers, and so even though I know nobody out there has any interest in nudity and sex, I shall nevertheless do the right thing.

In most places, public nudity and public sex are illegal. Private nudity and private sex are legal. This is not, however, as simple a concept as it sounds.

In the first place, nobody has yet come up with a good working definition of public and private, and there are court decisions all over the map. The bottom line in most places is that if you have a reasonable expectation of privacy, you are OK.

In other words, privacy is contextual. The main entrance to Grand Central Station may well be a private place in the middle of a blizzard at 3:00 a.m. Christmas morning; by the same token, your bedroom may well be a public place if the producers of This Old House are using it as a set for one of their programs. Thus, what it really comes down to is a question of fact: Would a reasonable person have expected privacy under the circumstances?

I am familiar with a case where two people were having intercourse in a car in a parking lot between two residential buildings. The court found that there was a reasonable expectation of privacy because it was at night during bad weather. On the other hand, I am familiar with another case where the court held there was no reasonable expectation of privacy in a boiler room in the middle of the night because of the possibility that building security or cleaning crews might walk through. Another court found a reasonable expectation of privacy in a cemetery in the middle of the night; yet another held there was no reasonable expectation of privacy in one's own bedroom if the curtains were open. The sum, if you get busted for public sex, the real issue is who is hearing the case and what kind of mood they happen to be in.

But by no means is sex public just because it is taking place out of doors or out of a building—look very closely at the circumstances, time of day, weather, number of people likely to happen along, and so forth.

There are three things to factor in. First, remember that we are talking about a criminal charge, which means the state must prove it's case beyond a reasonable doubt. That means that in order to be convicted, the judge or jury must not merely believe that the expectation of privacy was unreasonable, but that there is no room for doubt. In other words, if any reasonable person could come to the conclusion that it was a private place, the court must find you not guilty.

The second thing to factor in is that the courts have been pretty close to unanimous in holding that people who make a special point of looking for sexual activity should not complain if they find it. In other words, if you peep inside my bedroom window, you should not take offense at what you see. By the same token, if the police make a special point of beating the bushes looking for people having sex, many courts will be unsympathetic to their complaint that they found what they were looking for. In order to support a conviction for public sex, in most jurisdictions, the complaining witness must be someone who did not intend to see what they saw.

Finally, a cautionary note. What is supposed to happen, and what actually does happen, are often different things. Everything I have said to this point is what the law says is supposed to happen. In reality, we all know that homophobic police and judges often make life difficult for people who did in fact have a reasonable expectation of privacy. Police lie, and the judges who know they lie believe them anyway. Anyone who thinks that gay people get a fair shake in court is delusional.

So, having talked about the theory, let us now talk about reality. Reality is that if you are arrested for having sex in a car, or thick vegetation, or in some other place where a reasonable person would think you had privacy, you should not count on the police officer telling the unvarnished truth. It may happen, in which case you should be thankful. On the other hand, you may hear the officer tell a story that has little to do with the reality but which is calculated to show that you did not have a reasonable expectation of privacy.

The other reality is that, from a cost/benefit standpoint, you must decide whether you wish to fight the charge or simply (in most cases) pay a fine and get on with your life. If you are wrongly convicted in trial court of public sex, and you have good facts to support your case, I may be able to get the conviction overturned on appeal for five to ten times the amount of money in legal fees that you would have to pay in a fine. Whether you wish to contest it is a personal decision.

The other thing to consider here is that most of the people who are arrested for public sex are having public sex because they are so far in the closet that they have few other options. The police know this. They know that if they arrest a member of Queer Nation they will have a major fight on their hands, but if they arrest a middle aged businessman with a wife and children who know nothing about his sexuality, he will do anything and say anything to make the case go away as quietly as possible. What we are really talking about here is extortion.

From the standpoint of the movement, I believe we would all be better off if every person arrested for public sex demanded a jury trial and clogged up the system rather than quietly accepting a fine and slinking off into the night. However, such trials usually involve major personal sacrifices, and so as an attorney—whose job is to look after my client rather than the movement—I would not in an individual case counsel such a tactic lightly.

Finally I am waiting for a case to come along where the facts would support an argument that the law against public sex is founded on prejudice against homosexuals. I think we all know that to be true, but I am looking for facts that would enable me to convince a judge of that fact. The Supreme Court has ruled repeatedly that prejudice is not an acceptable basis for a law, and I think it would be an interesting experiment to see if that would apply to laws against public sex.

In the next issue, I will discuss exhibitionism, both as it relates to public sex and also as it relates to strip shows in bars. The issues are very similar, but there are some fundamental differences.

RULES OF THE ROAD

1. Dialing BEAR Voicemail. To use MasterCard or Visa, call 1-800-347-BEAR. The Bear Computer will tell you what to do. If you wanna charge it to your home phone instead, dial 1-900-HOT-BEAR. You can record your own personal greeting, answer someone else's, or talk to whoever else is jacking-off on the line.

2. Constructing your ad. When you write out your ad, keep this in mind: talk a bit about yourself and be real clear about the types of folks you'd like to meet through your ad. As much as possible, avoid telling us who you don't want to meet. No "no fats, no feds, or Lithuanians" shit. Be positive. And if you aren't, we'll edit the fuck out of the ad and turn you into more of a Pollyanna than you'd care to be.

3. Using their home phone. If you're calling someone's house, keep in mind (a) time zone differences—if you don't know them, look in the front of the White Pages in a phone book; and (b) that the guy on the other end may not be able to or may not want to talk to you at the time of your call. Always ask if it's OK to talk.

4. Cost and duration. Personal ads are free if you're a BEAR BUDDY. Otherwise, they're $0.25/word/issue. Wanna change your ad? Send in $5. Wanna discontinue your ad? Write in and we'll pull it. You will have to pay to have a pulled ad put back in.

5. Deadline for classifieds for BEAR 29 is March 1, 1993.

6. BEAR Postal Box Numbers. Available to US subscribers. Free to BEAR Buddies, including Foreign Buddies. Otherwise, ad $5 to the total of your ad. A word to the wise: responses to your ad will be much greater using your own address versus ours.

7. Replying to a BEAR Postal Box Number. Write your letter, put it in an envelope and seal it. On this envelope, put the fella's box number IN PENCIL where you'd normally put a stamp. Put this letter along with $1 in a larger envelope and mail it to us. That's BEAR, 2215R Market Street #148, San Francisco, CA 94114. We always forward letters if you've done what's called for here. If you mess up, we either throw your handiwork away or read it ourselves.

8. Personal vs. commercial ads. You know as well as I do what a personal ad is and isn't.

9. We reserve the right to edit personals. This is exercised for editorial consistency and for clarity almost exclusively.

10. We reserve the right to refuse any ad for any reason whatsoever.

11. Changing Your ad: It's cool. But it'll cost you 5 bucks, and must be in writing.

12. Photo ads. We'll run a shot of your face or dick—but only once. Make sure it's a clear, well-lit pic. Your photo must have a signed model release. We're running out of room for them, so they'll be printed first-come, first-served, and you may have to wait a few issues.

Pete

We wanted to show Pete in his natural element—a cabin in the California Redwoods. It's rugged, and that's the way he likes it. He also likes to keep himself busy. When not working on his cabin or running his successful San Francisco business, he can be found making tracks through the Nevada desert in his 4X4 pickup.

Originally a New Yorker, Pete's not ashamed to say he's got attitude. And that's exactly what he looks for in the men he fucks around with. He's 5'10" 182 lbs., and a seasoned 39 year old who's not afraid to go for what he wants.

The most unusual place he's had sex was in the engine room of a crab boat up in the Aleutian Chain. Said it got pretty greasy. When I asked him where he wanted his next sexual adventure he just said, "I don't need adventure. I'll be more than enough to handle, right in front of the fireplace on a rainy night."

28, 6'5", 230 lbs., brown hair, beard, finely tanned, lightly complected, big hands/feet, chubby chest. Likes dating, companionship, cuddling, flannel jeans, boots. Prefers hairy chest and moustache, beard, or live-o'clock shadow. You: 18-38, 5'8"+, 220 lbs.+, masculine, clean, discreet, desiring monogamous relationship. No smokers, drugs, kink. Phone, photo to Mr. Bear, BEAR Box #70. (34) #2636

We'd like another portion of the good stuff, please. Together for seven years seeking to include someone else. Dad's 48, 6'5"+, 250 lbs., works out regularly. First son is 33, 5'10", 200 lbs., swims regularly. Second son must be versatile: Dad tops sensually but insistently, son bottoms. If you want, when you get here you can coax your brother for favors. Son likes body hair—okay with Dad though preference so far is for naked boy backside. We live private lives and aren't into costume or attitude, except for lusty play at home. We're safe and healthy, like to laugh, hope you are the same. Age, race, physical characteristics are important, but depend upon attitude and max. we'll figure it out when we talk. Please, no hard drugs. Call. (33) #2638

More on personals:

- If a guy gets in touch with you, write back. Even if it's just to say "no thanks," he deserves to know you got his message.
- BEAR ads aren't a marketing base. If you think your new hair-growth system is worth selling to the world, do it someplace else. Leave our advertisers alone.
- Prisons aren't a good place to send money, or pictures of your hairy ass. By all means, correspond and make friends. But know the potential for trouble to you as well as to the guy on the inside.
- Play safe, take good care of yourself, and for gawd's sake, HAVE FUN!

Voicemail Tips

Our new BEAR Voicemail system is designed to give you immediate access to new friends, true love, or just a real good fuck. It works. Here are a few suggestions to speed your chances of success:

- Press buttons slowly and firmly.
- If you think you made the wrong choice, hit the star key to get back to the Main Menu.
- Messages stay in the system for two weeks.
- Use Option 3 to get your own mailbox, or leave your phone number on the Bulletin Board. Always use your area code to catch guys in your neighborhood.

If You Have a BEAR Ad

When dialing in for the first time, you must already have your passcode from us. Once at the Voicemail Main Menu, immediately hit the star key to collect your mail. You do not need to set up a new voicemail box (Option 3). We've already done that for you.

Man hopes colossal squash is big enough. . . I know it's a little late to bring out the ol' pumpkin thing again, but when something as big as this comes along it's too irresistible not to share. Unfortunately the newspaper clipping that was sent to us seemed more interested in giving the specs on the pumpkin as opposed to the grower. There was one interesting comment he made, though. When asked why he got into this hobby his reply was, "I do this because I like big things I guess."

As an interesting side note, it seems that unlike here in America, where the hairless are endlessly paraded before us as the only acceptable norm, in Turkey if you do not have a moustache or some kind of facial hair the locals might tend to think there is something wrong with you. Journalist Haluk Sahin estimates that three quarters of Turkish men sport mustaches.

SLICE OF LIFE

Remember, remember, don't shave in November!

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A new movement was sprouted by a happily hirsute group with a manly message for their baldfaced brethren: Put down that razor!

"It's a liberating feeling," said Kevin O'Hare, "king" of the November Beard Club. "It gets to be kind of a pain having to shave 365 days a year."

The club's mission is to get as many people as possible to stop shaving for the month of November.

"The simple belief that because life has given us the power to grow facial hair, then, by golly, we should (at least for a month, anyway), is what holds this group together," a news release said.

Club members know that some think there's folly in follicles, but they're ready to, well, beard the opposition, said club founder and president, Tahd Fretzel.

"Part of being male is having facial hair. So I thought if maybe there was a month where it was OK to grow a beard, more men would take advantage of this and let Mother Nature have her way with their faces."

POKIN' AROUND

Our readers and staff take a look at items which happen across our path.
Illustration: Tuttle

Do you remember those old Sears-Roebuck catalogs with the men's underwear section? did you ever sneak off to the bathroom with the catalog and jack off looking at it? Do you get as excited about a guy's skivvies as much as his dick? Have you ever spent an afternoon watching construction workers through the fly of your briefs; chronic jock sniffer? If you can say yes to any of these questions, then the new magazine, Men Into Underwear is sure to give you a hard-on in the pouch of your classic cotton white Jockey Vs.

All of the usual things that you expect in a magazine are here: fiction, photos, ads, interviews and info5**. What got my libido going was the obsessive nature of this publication. Stories are sent in by readers who worshipfully describe nasty ways of getting their rocks off with briefs, boxers, Speedos, unionsuits or jockstraps. The fiction is interesting. For example, I though the writer named Boxer Bear who shared his computer bulletin board conversations was a got read, but I especially liked the edgy SM story of humiliation, involving fancy striped boxers, red garters, spilled food, and a crowded restaurant. It was beyond what I expected from his type of magazine, and I think that relying on readers to provide unusual fiction could be a successful selling point.

The cover of issue #3 features John Tomes, publisher and editor, wearing a red unionsuit. John lives in Granby, Colorado, and infuses the magazine with a homey, rural view. He is featured in an interview that is the hottest piece in the magazine. He speaks about the first time he came in his shorts. John, wearing sweaty briefs, was watching his dad, whose ass was clothed in wet white cotton boxers. John started stroking his dick and suddenly came, filling the front of his briefs. He wore them the rest of the day under his Levi's. I read this while sitting on the toilet, wearing piss-stained BVDs around my ankles, and ended up shooting my load into the bowl.

I think one of the best things about the magazine is the wealth of information on how to obtain underwear. There are at least 43 addresses and phone numbers of underwear dealers located throughout the US. One of these is the town of Cedar Springs, Michigan, which makes the red flannel unionsuits with drop-back bottoms (drawers). I've spent a long time trying to find these and here was the address and phone number! I found other treasures, like a store in Denver which sells vintage '60s and '70s underwear. Now, maybe, I can find those full-cut, tight white Hanes briefs that were made in the late '70s.

Some of the negatives are the photo reproduction and an inadequate amount of ads. I'm convinced that both of these things will improve with an increase in subscriptions. I hope John keeps it at least as sleazy as it is now.

As a kid, my favorite jerk-off material was the Sears-roebuck catalog. The problem was that it only came once a year. Now I'm just a bigger kid and I still like to jerk-off to guys in their skivvies—I'm glad that Men Into Underwear will be coming six times a year.

...[continued from page 15] "Ah shit!" Jim said far too loudly for the moment as he got up and began to clatter tin around. The other three considered him with bleary eyes and continued to pass the community yawn around among themselves. Roy stirred in his chair, slowly unfolded himself into a standing position, and stretched his clenched fists as far as they would go over his head. When he could avoid it no longer, Roy began to help Jim with the dishes. At that, Laramie and Stu also found the energy to get around and began to help.

They tossed the plates, forks, cups, a package of biodegradable soap and a badly misused dishrag into a burlap bag. Jim tossed the bag over his shoulder and headed towards the lake with the others trundling along behind him.

Before they were even ready for it, they were facing the lake. The path they had been walking on led to a concrete boat launch that was used only by the handful of locals that knew it existed. Jim dropped the bag holding the tin plates onto the antique concrete. The noise was obscene. The other three looked at each other with disapproving frowns and furrowed brows. Jim plopped down beside the bag and dangled his feet inches above the water. When he had situated himself to his satisfaction, he pulled the bag closer to himself and withdrew the less than sterile dish cloth, soap and a plate. He dipped the plate into the water and sprinkled some soap into it which he scrubbed into a froth with the cloth. Rinsing the plate with a very noisy and theatrical splashing maneuver, he held it up for the group to admire.

"Ha!" He said simply and set it on the dirty concrete to dry. Completely satisfied with his progress he fetched a tin cup, held it over the lake and tried twice more to catch it as it left his soap slippery fingers and landed right side up to float on the surface between his feet.

"Shit!" said, Jim, the monosyllabic man. He leaned out over the water to try to retrieve it with a couple of wiggling fingers decorated with patches of fur below the first knuckle. He stretched some more, his face reddening a little as it loomed a little closer to the water. The tips of his fingers could just almost touch it.

There was no warning, but there was a tremendous splash as he tumbled into the water head first. A water bird that had been invisible just 20 yards away took flight in terror as the dish-washing man displaced a tremendous amount of water up into the air. The others on the boat launch behaved as if they were six year olds who had just seen a pie fight between clowns. Laramie remembered to spit first before trying to suppress his laughs that were occasionally interrupted by an involuntary snort. Jim just stood with water up to his armpits and fumed.

"Well, it IS cool." Jim finally said as he swished his hands around in the water with an 'I meant to do this' look on his face. After the dry group's laughing had subsided, they began to consider Jim's situation.

Laramie was the first to kick off his shoes and socks, plow through the buttons on his shirt, and drop his clothes into a heap at his ankles. He stood there naked and beautiful. Stu was still amazed at how a man could look more perfect every time he got out of his clothes. He held out his hands to the other two and made rolling motions as if to say 'Well?'

Soon all three men were gloriously naked in front of Jim, who looked upon them with his mouth noticeably ajar and silent at the same time. The three on the launch were drunk just enough so that their artificial inhibitions about openly ogling a naked man were inoperative. Since each was a beauty in his own way and displayed muscles, skin, hair, and accessories in different and wonderful ways, they did do quite a bit of gratuitous feasting of the eye.

At about the same time, they each became privately aware that they were staring and that a pulse could easily be taken at their groin. They headed off in different directions and slid into the cover of the water. Soon they rejoined in a circle around Jim whom they splashed with water amidst hoots and hollers. He yelled at them, squinted his eyes and put his arms in front of his face in a gesture that was futile because in the first place, he was already wet; and in the second place, he didn't have nearly enough arms to fend off his attackers.

Jim managed to push through the mob of three and slog his way back over to the boat launch where he hefted himself out of the water and onto the concrete slab. He stood there with his overalls clinging to him in some places and sticking out in others. He shook himself off a bit and started to walk away from the group. The others ran out of the water, kicking it into a froth in front of themselves, and managed to block Jim's progress. Three astonishingly beautiful, fully grown, naked men stood in front of him panting a bit from their run, smiling mischievously, and dripping water from all over their exposed skin. Feelings that clawed at Jim during his lonely nights raged within him. Wailing and howling, they were seconds away from tearing free from his control and living a life of their own. A millisecond fantasy passed before him in which he kissed Laramie full on the mouth while he fondled Roy's and Stu's throbbing cocks to his right and to his left. He shook it away like a dog shakes off the rain.

"Get your pale white asses out of my way," he growled at them and tried a side step that was quickly blocked by three equally quick dodging bodies with pendulous genitalia that jiggled with young healthy fullness at their every movement.

"C'mon, Jim." Roy had an odd parental quality to his voice. "Let's go for a swim." The tone was serious and Jim and Roy's eyes were locked as an unspoken reference to something private between them was touched on and understood. Whatever it was, it worked, because Jim lumbered back to the boat launch, sat down, and pulled off the water-filled hiking boots then stood up to do the rest. The other three walked back into the water as the bear man undid both overall snaps and let the straps fall to leave him standing there in wet white boxer shorts. Without further incident, he hooked his thumbs into the waistband of the boxers, slid them down to his ankles, stepped out of them and faced the three in the water with legs apart and arms outstretched so that all could see that there was nothing more to take off.

His audience in waist high water, whistled and applauded him, to which he responded with deep bows and a few muscle man poses. Not even Roy had seen him completely naked in broad daylight before. His massive upper body was stunning in construction with its powerful array of shoulder muscles, well developed pecs, and biceps that made his arms as big as some men's legs. His washboard stomach led the eye down to his naked, skinned cock and firm, heavily laden balls. The whole animal was covered with soft black hair that flowed and swirled in distinctive male patterns over legs, abdomen, chest, shoulders, and back.

He spread his fingers, claw like, in the air, showed his teeth and growled so loudly and suddenly that all three visibly jumped. While they were still startled, Jim leapt off of the slab and ran through the water far faster than a man his size should move. Ancient reflexes of the hunted awakened in each of them and would have sent them sprinting off, terrified, into the foliage if higher brain functions hadn't been able to intervene to hold up a large sign saying "this is JIM!"

Instead of being ripped limb from limb as their instincts were sure they would be, each received an uncomfortably long dunking from the seething wild man. They played and splashed in the water, then wandered around picking up odds and ends that their feet found on the sandy bottom of the lake.

Gradually, two entirely predictable things happened. The first was that they absolutely forgot about being naked. The second was that they slowly drifted away from being 'The Guys' and became Stu and Laramie quietly talking and idly paddling away from Roy and Jim who were doing the same.

Soon Laramie and Stu had managed to drift casually into a neighboring cove wrapped thickly in the same green cover as the one in which they had left Jim and Roy. He glanced around to make sure that they couldn't be seen through the greenery, then Laramie's arms wrapped around Stu's back, where he could fill both hands with Stu's naked butt cheeks and tightly press groin to groin. Stu slipped his arms under Laramie's and around his hips to mirror his movements as he closed his eyes and tilted his head, ever so slightly up, to find Laramie's mouth with his. Just off to Stu's right came the sound of male voices, lightly muffled by their lowered tones and the living wall of leaves and vines. They wouldn't have noticed if what the voices were doing wasn't so unmistakably enticing.

"Oh man... oh man... oh man..." Jim's voice could be overheard slowly chanting. Laramie and Stu suppressed a laugh and looked at each other before approaching the spot from where the voices came.

"You like that, don't you bear man?" Roy's voice was low and scratchy. "Yeah, you do me the same way. Ohhhhh yeah, just like that. Right there."

They couldn't believe their ears, so they had to approach even closer to see what their eyes could tell them about the scene. Upon closer inspection, they discovered that the layer of vegetation that served as a partition did have clear places where one could step through if one planned every step ahead of time. They proceeded into the dark shade of the dense foliage drawn forward by the sounds that were too good to be true.

At last they could get a clear view. Jim and Roy were seated by each other on the boat launch, about 15 feet away, beating each other off, and loving every minute of it. As they watched, Roy paused to spit into the hand that was stroking Jim's fat, rock hard cock. Jim did the same and both leaned their heads back and moaned as the pace was picked up and the refreshed lubrication made the tugging tickle even more intense.

While shifting his weight away from the rather pointed and uncomfortable rock he was standing on, Stu managed to stumble. He did catch his balance with a bit of a dance step that took him out into the open and face to face with the happy strokers.

"Hi guys!" Stu blurted out cheerfully and matter-of-factly. Roy's jaw dropped but he still looked more healthy than Jim whose pallor was ashen and eyes were vacant.

"Oh fuck." Was all Roy could say. About that time Laramie walked out of hiding. Nobody said anything for what seemed like an awfully long time. Jim looked noticeably worse.

"Look we just had too many beers and, ur, um", Roy grasped to give words to a situation which needed none.

"Things got carried away," Laramie completed the thought for him. Roy's face perked up giving him the shine that a child takes on after he has found out that he is NOT going to be spanked.

"You mean you understand?"

"Well, yeah. We sorta do," Laramie spoke through a crooked smile as he put his open hand on Stu's chest and slowly ran it down to his crotch. He grabbed Stu's softened dick in a back-hand fashion so that the O his thumb and forefinger made fit neatly behind the head. He began to rhythmically flex each finger in such a way that suggested Stu was being lovingly milked as he used the rest of his arm to softly tug on the stiffening tool. Stu put both hands on his hips and watched his cock getting hard again.

"I'll be damned," Roy whispered as he stood up with his own hard-on well underway. Cautiously, as if he was approaching a venomous snake, he reached for Laramie's beautiful uncut cock, then stopped before he actually made contact.

"Can I touch?" He asked tentatively. Laramie chuckled again, and put his unoccupied hand on Roy's shoulder.

"Brother you can do a helluva lot more than touch!"

Laramie gripped the shoulder firmly and moved it forward and backward a couple of times as he spoke. Roy looked like a wide eyed kid in a candy store as he took the big man's dick in his hand and ever so gently tugged on it.

"Don't worry, it ain't gonna break, boy," Stu recognized Laramie's ultra deep, rough and rowdy, horny voice as he encouraged Roy. It was good for him to see someone else enjoying Laramie's wonderful body, especially a gorgeous man like Roy.

"Hey, scoot over here," Stu motioned for Roy to come into reach. Roy edged over to him without letting go of Laramie's cock for a second. Stu grabbed Roy's fully erect shaft that proudly stood straight out from the blonde brown bush of pubic hair from which it grew. All three men now massaged each other's dicks, each as if he was doing his own. Roy marveled at how natural Laramie's cock felt in his hand and how all three of them knew how to slide that skin up and down in the wonderful lubeless way that only men know how to stroke a dick.

"Hang on a second," Laramie stopped his attentions to Stu as did the other men. They had nearly forgotten about Jim. He still sat in the exact same stunned position, his own meat half hard staring at the scene before him. They all walked the couple of steps it took to get nearer to Jim. Laramie used one of his large, warm, loving hands and placed it on Jim's shoulder. Jim looked at it as if a tarantula had just fallen out of a tree onto his bare skin but took no action to remove it.

"C'mon bear man, join your brothers for a little fun strokin' up a load." He was using The Voice again. It was effective enough to cause Jim to rake his face with his massive, callused hand making the delicious sound of thick new beard scratching tough skin. He just looked down at the ground without moving. Laramie started working his own dick again just inches from Jim's face. The others followed Laramie's lead. Jim could feel the warmth radiate from the three hardening dicks being earnestly stroked to full length by their owners. The delicious aroma of their sweaty balls filled his nose making his heart pound and the warm glow low in his belly fill him with fire.

His face was saying no, but his cock was saying "HELL YES!" Cautiously, the men began to touch each other and delight in the sensation of each other's bodies. They wrapped their arms around each other and kneaded butts and backs while they rubbed their hardening cocks together. The heat from the group was laden with the thick, heady aroma of male pheromones in salty sweat.

"Hey," Laramie whispered, "Let's go back to camp."

At first it seemed the others didn't hear him, then they slowly parted and began to find their clothes. In the cover of weeds and brush. Far to the Southwest a thunderhead flashed with blue violet static electric bolts of energy. The night approached.

They all put on their hiking boots, but nobody wanted to cover their skin with their clothes so they all carried a bundle during their return journey.

If Jim hadn't turned where he did, the group would have walked right past their camp. Now well past dusk, the scarce available light made the backpacks hanging on the trees into hulking monstrous figures and the tent a silent squatting dragon. Jim's night vision was superb enough that he was able to locate the gas lantern and matches with little difficulty. From Jim's direction came the tinny hiss of white gas fumes flowing through mantles, then a combustive puff as the lit match found the mantles. The campsite was bathed in harsh white light. There was no other scent like the lightly diesel smell of the lantern's fuel burning and it brought memories of childhood camping trips back vividly for all.

Gradually the aura of the hedonistic closeness that had melted them together earlier faded from center stage in their minds and was replaced by the pursuit of more beers and a card game. Each was privately overjoyed that the added deepness of their mutual friendships had not injured the childish lightheartedness of their play. Except for the added detail of their nakedness, the air was still filled with stupid dirty jokes, feigned but genuine-sounding personal insults, lots of laughter and an occasional sportive shove or pat on the back. Their masculinity was undamaged. In some ways it was enhanced and more clearly defined for them.

They bored of the card game and opted to kill the lantern and drag the sleeping bags outside so they could look at the stars. When fully unzipped and unfolded the sleeping bags covered a large area with fiber filled cotton padding. They lay down on their backs, allowing their bodies to touch in a gratifying but non sexual way that would terrify straight men.

Without the perpetual orange glow that 20th century sprawling metropolises pumped into the night sky, the Universe was clearly visible as the huge and beautiful machine that it is. Billions of infinitesimal stars that could not be seen in the big cities blazed here against the pure, pristine ebony of space. Meteors entertained the men by scratching rapid traces of oranges, greens and reds that quickly disappeared in the infinite void. Roy pointed out a slow moving fleck of light reflected off of a satellite. The others groped around silently in the night sky until "Oh there it is," "I see it!" "Oh yeah!" could be heard from the other men as they too found it.

Laramie and Stu began to embrace and kiss silently during a moment when voices were silent and spirits spoke. As the kisses became more passionate and heated, hands roamed to each other's genitals to love and caress there. Each man quickly became fully erect at the solitary touch of the man he loved.

Jim found Roy and snuggled up close to him. Jim had never really given a man a passionate kiss but wanted to try it. He touched their bed of sleeping bags lightly in several places near Roy without ever managing to find him. Roy felt the big man pawing around and snickered a little after several tries failed to reveal whatever it was that he was looking for. With the sound of the little nasal laugh, Jim homed in on his target right away.

"What are you laughing at?" He asked Roy in a whispered mock gruff voice while squeezing Roy's entire jaw with one massive hand. Roy didn't respond. He could feel heat radiated from the length of Jim's naked body as it remained rigid as a board and seemingly hovering a couple of inches over his own.

Jim pressed his mouth against Roy's and pursed his lips a little. Roy parted his lips and traced the outline of the bear man's lips with his tongue. Jim kept his mouth closed and used it to follow the curve of Roy's wild man moustache from under his nose down to his jawbone on both sides. Again he landed his tensed lips onto Roy's. Roy took Jim by surprise by sneaking up behind him with a firm hand that would not allow his predictable escape when Roy thrust his tongue into Jim's mouth. Jim only made a couple of muffled protests, before he wrapped both daddy bear arms around Roy and slowly lay his body down upon him.

Laramie walked like a cat in the darkness as he padded over the pine needles in his bare feet to dig in his backpack for the tube of lube he had stashed in there. He unscrewed the lid as he scampered back to the bedding and Stu.

Jim and Roy, struggling in ecstasy together, never noticed Laramie step over them on his way back to Stu. Jim was on Roy like a lion on its prey. The weight of his body was supported by his knees and elbows leaving his chest, abdomen, and hot hardened cock free to rub and caress Roy mingling their sweat and mixing their oils.

Laramie crushed the aluminum tube with his right hand filling his left palm with cool, clear gel. He rolled the lubricant in his fingers, then slicked his own dick with it making sure his cock was as hard and slick as he could get it. He sat on his toes and hooked his elbows under Stu's bent knees then pulled his ass up and onto the tops of his own legs. Stu moaned deeply as Laramie massaged the cool gel onto his asshole while stroking his throbbing cock with his other hand.

While moving his legs so that they lay on the inside of Roy's, Jim brushed across the slippery and haphazardly mashed tube laying on the bedding. Jim used the stuff on himself and knew the feel and smell of it well, but tasted just to make sure. His devious smile was wasted in the darkness, but his face seemed to need it there as he squeezed another healthy dollop of the motion lotion into a cupped hand. Roy jumped a little at the feeling of its first contact with his hot pink scrotum and hungry swelling meat. Jim slathered it all over Roy's crotch, inner thighs and lower belly, then hopped back on top to finish rubbing it in with his own powerful cock and furry belly. Both men wrapped arms around each other and held on tightly to the flesh that flexed in other's backs as pelvic muscles drove rapidly filling cocks, up and down against skin and hair.

The tips of Laramie's fingers told him Stu was ready for him. With his arms still hooked under Stu's knees, he lowered him back down to the cotton lining of the sleeping bag and gently pushed his knees a little closer to his armpits. Laramie wrapped his right hand around the base of his cock and guided it onto Stu's gently flexing man hole. With firm pressure and gentle prodding he began to feel Stu's body accept him. Stu drew a sharp breath inward at the same instant that Laramie felt the change in temperature and pressure which told him the head of his dick was well inside. After a short pause, he pushed himself the rest of the way inside his man until he felt cool skin of Stu's butt make contact with his groin.

Roy could feel Jim's every muscle under its covering of sweat soaked skin and hair. Both men still embraced each other in a viselike grip. Feeling the surge of climax build within them they resisted the animal instinct to drive like a jackhammer and finish the job. They strove together cheekbone to cheekbone, breathing hard, their skins melting together in pools of mingled sweat.

For Jim, the energy that had been approaching critical mass had permeated every cell and soaked every fiber of his being. There was nowhere else for it to go. His grip on Roy's back tightened to a bone-crushing magnitude as every muscle of his frame strained against each other and his hips drove one final thrust onto Roy's belly. They both felt his cum part their flesh momentarily as it gushed in hot waves that pooled between them, welding them together in the area it heated. With only the slightest movement from Jim, Roy's jism welled up within him and pumped out in convulsive spurts to fuse with his brother's seed that swam between them.

Stu filled fists with bedding material and pulled with each tender thrust that Laramie delivered with his massive uncut cock. Every stroke pushed the plump head of his dick past Stu's full prostate giving him the sensation of having to pee and cum at the same time. As Laramie continued to drive him, Stu concentrated on the feeling of his balls banging him as he stroked himself. The sensation of Laramie filling him and the sounds of his approaching climax combined with his own stroking to shift him into an altered state where only he and his lover existed.

The pace of Laramie's bestial driving increased as he wrapped his hands under Stu's underarms to grab his shoulders roughly and push down with every thrust. His breath was forced out with a wet hiss that came from between tightly clenched teeth.

As Laramie drove home the final few lunges, Stu felt his own cum splatter his chest and stomach, his untouched cock jumping with each pulse. Feeling his lover's internal and external climax was enough to send Laramie over the edge and pump his semen deep inside the man he loved. Stu felt Laramie's dick flex and jump inside him with every shot and reveled in the rich wet warmth that pooled there.

Each couple separated in the ecstasy of carnal fulfillment and exhaustion. Their bodies lay panting and lightly twitching under the tapestry of pinpoint sapphires in black velvet. A breeze from off the lake came up to caress their skin and ease the fire from their flesh. They repositioned and shuffled slightly, their bodies intertwining, with the warm indifferent comfort of puppies at their mother's breast. Soon soft snores mixed with the other night sounds.

Laramie untangled himself from his brothers and sat up momentarily. He scanned the night around himself, now and then feeling the curious eyes of the inhabitants of this place. He sighed and let the back of his head fall towards his spine so that his eyes faced the stars. A few nameless others from across the gulf of time and space looked back, feeling similar things. He smiled, recognizing them in a way he could not describe, then let his head roll back to an eyes-forward position. He heard their snores and felt the brown-green energy from the living things all around him. He let his hand hover over each of the man's breastbones and felt joy at the soft golden glow that appeared there. With another sigh, the smile that made its home on his masculine face returned. He lay back down, replaced the various arms and legs that were draped over his chest and joined the other men in the restful adventure of sleep.

WILL

Photography by Jim Wigler

Will's a fourth-generation Californian. Out here in the virgin West, that's something of an honor. His clan hails from Grass Valley, one of the prettier niches of the Golden State.

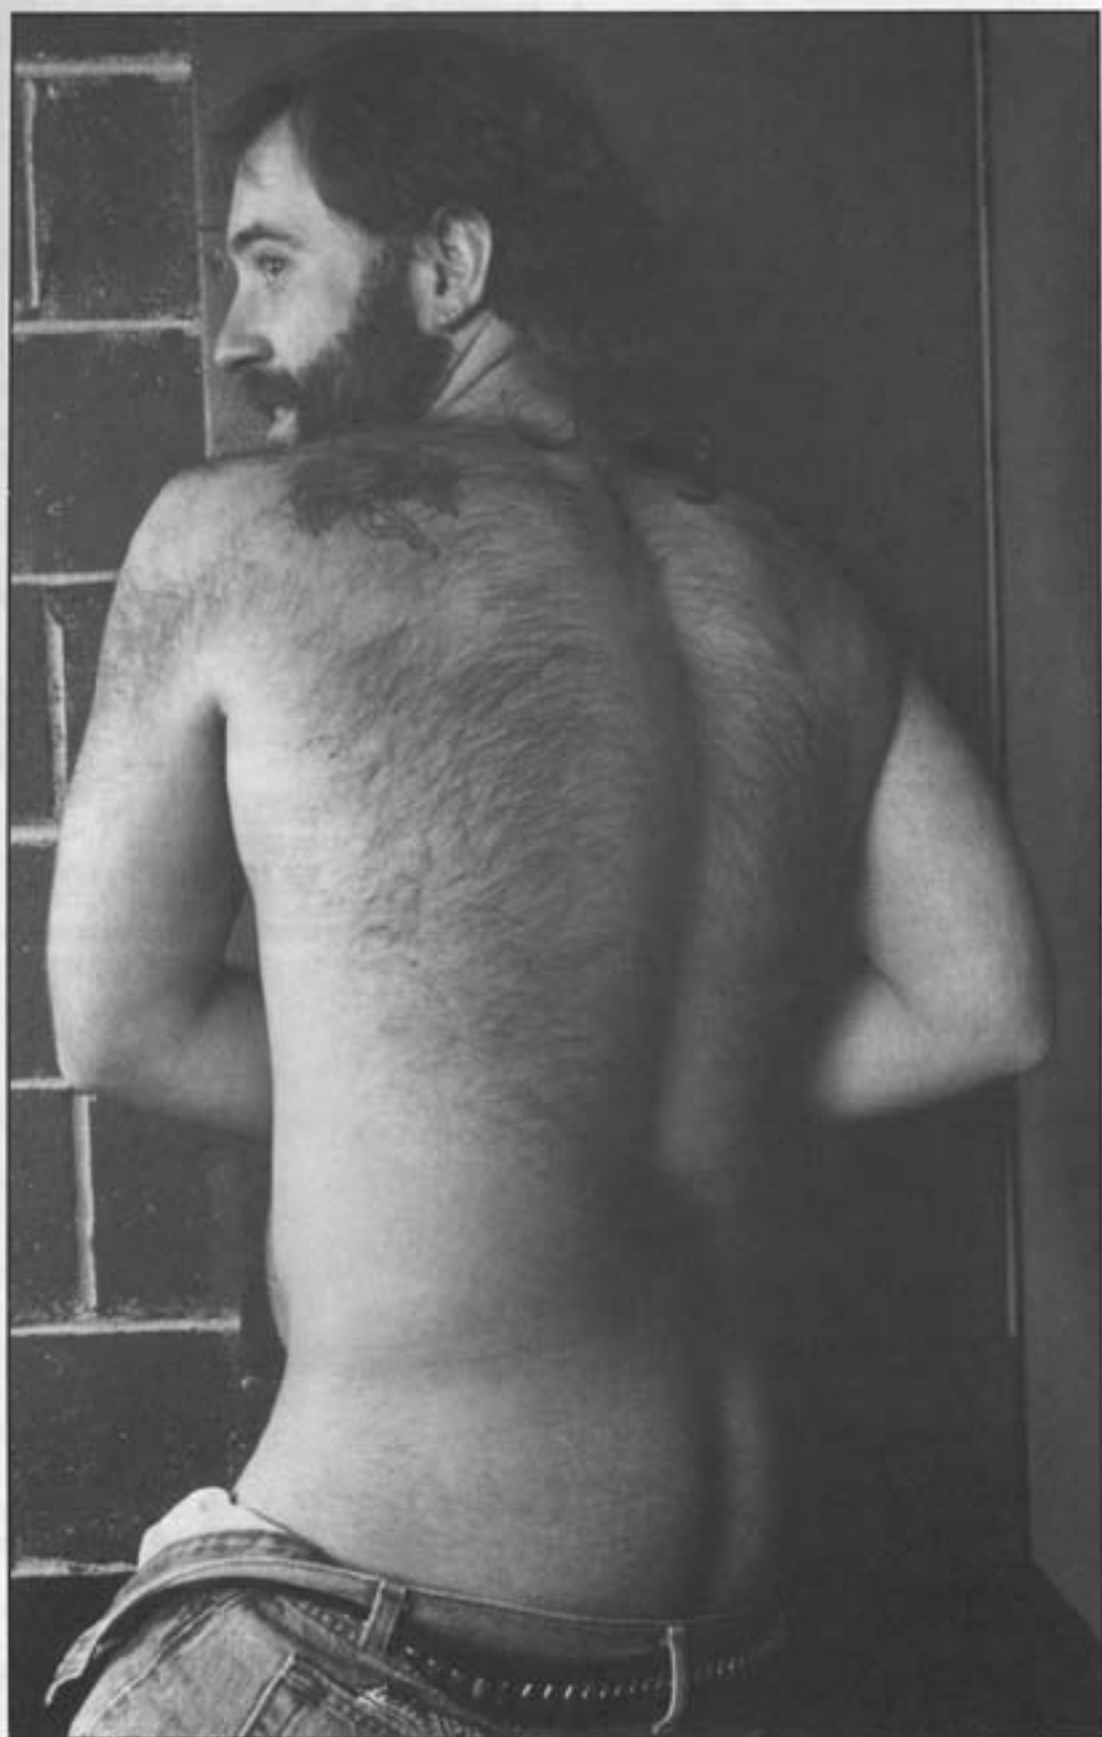

He's 5'9", 172 lbs. enjoys backpacking, camping, and hiking the rivers his area. When it comes to other men he likes 'em hairy and bearded with nice smiles. He's also not afraid of passion and romance.

The most unusual place he's had sex so far is in a cave up in the hills around his place. I asked him why he wanted to be in BEAR. His response was that since he's a nudist at heart, he might as well go all the way. He says he's proud of himself. I'm sure you'll agree he has every reason to be.

For every promising young newcomer trying to find an audience for his or her untested musings, there is a veteran artist working even harder to stay ahead of the pack. At a time when nothing is guaranteed—especially a loyal record-buying audience—the question of trend-conscious musical reinvention becomes inevitable. It can be dangerous to the future of a career, but it can also sow the seeds of longevity and cast an artist in a refreshing new light.

Paul McCartney has thrown caution to the wind with his latest project, Strawberries Oceans Ships Forest, an album he has recorded under the name The Fireman with British producer, Musician Youth. You are going to have to hit your nearest import shop for this unusual collection, since his U.S. label, Capitol Records, has opted not to release it here. Issued on Parlophone Records overseas, the mostly instrumental record has gotten crazy kudos from radio and club tastemakers for its inspired blend of chilled ambient melodies and spine-crawling industrial rhythms. Jams like Transpiritual Stomp and Arizona Light are appropriate for either shaking your booty or relaxing with a cool drink. Since McCartney's name does not appear anywhere on the disc, his diehard fans will be able to identify his presence via the publishing

THE SOUNDS THAT ANIMALS MAKE

MUSIC REVIEWS
BY

designee, Juggler Music. Eagle eyes know that his primary company logo is a drawing of a juggler. Cheeky, eh?

In the case of enduring rock poetess Stevie Nicks, she has gone back to her roots for Street Angel (Modern Records). She has wisely shrugged off the synth-drenched pop sound that flooded recent recordings, opting instead for guitar-anchored confessionals that are reminiscent of early hits like Stop Draggin' My Heart Around. During a recent interview, she commented that it was extremely important to remind people that she could still rock with the the best of 'em, which is proven quite nicely on the raucous Listen To The Rain and the smolderingly sexy first single, Blue Denim. Perhaps the most striking element of Street Angel is the wafting lyrical tone of reflection and worldly wisdom. Songs like the country-laced Rose Garden and the acoustic ballad Destiny, which actually borrows a verse from an early-'80s composition, Enchanted. A lovely collection that gets better with repeat spins.

In other music release info, we have Songs Of The Silver Screen by The Sons Of The San Joaquin (Warner Bros. Records), which nicely showcases the shimmering three-part harmonies of brothers Lon, Joe and Jack Hannah warbling some of the best cowboy tunes you have ever heard. They have been touring for nearly a year now with labelmates Bill Miller, Don Edwards, and poet/story-teller Waddle Mitchel, proving that there is interest in the purist form of country music—not merely the watered-down pop variety that crowds radio airwaves. Much of the material that fills the trio's new album is from the Sons Of The Pioneers movie, including several rare tunes that have never been released commercially. "One dream of ours," says Lon, "is to actually air footage from some of the old movies whose songs we do, or maybe just air the movie after the concert and sit in the audience with a bag of popcorn and talk to people." Sounds like a party.

SONS OF THE SAN JOAQUIN

Finally, folks with a penchant for intense and introspective pop music should look no further than Under The Pink, the second Atlantic album by Tori Amos. The album builds upon the emotionally charged vibe of her 1992 platinum debut, Little Earthquakes, by melding heart-wrenching prose with haunting, piano-driven melodies. "These are not just naked flowers coming to woo you like the last record," Amos notes. This is very raw stuff. You have to get on the elevator and go—and the elevator is going down."

With that in mind, allow Amos' cathartic compositions icicle, a tale of mental and physical masturbation, and the ponderous God wash over your brain and seep into your gut. You may never be the same.
