LETTERS TO BEAR

Hey ya'll, welcome to our very own Lone Star Texas BEAR. Because we live and work on the West Coast, we think it's important to get out from time to time; to get to know people in other parts of the country. So a while back we packed up our shit and headed down Texas way.

The hospitality in the Lone Star State is as great as they say it is. I've never been so surrounded by so many friendly, sexy men. That's part of what gives Texas its appeal. And it's something I'll always remember.

We owe a special thanks to The Montrose Mining Co. and Pacific Street bars in Houston, and The Brick and Throckmorton Mining Co. in Dallas. And to all the guys who talked with us and dropped their drawers for us along the way. A special thanks goes to our Florida friend Bob Graves who kept us company in the car and who read filthy stories out loud—all the way from Houston to Dallas. We might have made it without him, but it just wouldn't have been the same.

So git to it, boys. Enjoy.

For Pete's Sake

You know what mummified means. And you know what ossified means. Well, I am horrified after meeting Pete in BEAR 28. I am in a state of perpetual horniness after seeing that mind-boggling array of photos.

I can't get my goddamned mind off the guy. Is he for real? I mean, I can see that he is. And it totally blows my mind that there is a real live man like Pete living on this planet. What a fantasy, to imagine servicing that body, that man, that god!

Thanks for a great publication!

B.L., Louisiana

Such talk would probably only embarrass Pete, but we went ahead and passed a copy of your letter to him all the same. He's for real. And if you behave, someday you'll get one of your own too.

High Resolution Hair

I picked up a copy of BEAR 28. Pete has got to be one of the best-looking men I have ever seen in my life! WOOF!! My congratulations to you on photographing such an incredible example of a man.

BEAR, as you already know, is the best publication for hirsute tastes and I am pleased to be a new subscriber.

With adult CD-ROM material becoming increasingly popular, have you considered making one with bears on it? A.R., Texas

CD-ROM computer graphics would be great, but we'd have an awful time getting the hairs to show up on a computer screen. Besides, we know you guys would just start fiddling with the images, putting yourselves in the picture with the models.

THE WITTKKE WIRE

You might have noticed this before, but in the past this column has occasionally been used to vent my complaints about the images of gay men as represented in the shiny, glossy, respectable, we're-just-like-everyone-else-except-for-what-we-do-in-bed gay media. Usually I've found myself railing against the physical representations: no, all gay men are not white; no, all gay men are not between the ages of 18 and 22-and-a-half; and, no, all gay men are not hairless, lithe, doe-like creatures.

But there are other presumptions made with great regularity in the mainstream gay media that need to be addressed. For example, all gay men are not from L.A., dude; not all gay men are white-collar, management types; and, no, all gay men are not rich. Which leads me to this column's particular beef. Suppose you're a blue-collar homosexual Northeasterner who, because of circumstances that are but a distant, faded memory, chose to reside in a very expensive, sexually repressive city. Is it the cruddy weather that gets you down? Is it the snotty attitude of your gay brothers that alienates you? Is it the total utter denial when it comes to dealing honestly with sexuality that makes you blue? Well, sure it's all of these things. But the real corker for me is picking up most any gay rag on the planet and being bombarded with the message: "You've got extra cash, so travel, travel, travel!"

I, myself, have almost never had "extra" cash and therefore have been almost nowhere. Not Europe. Not Rio. Not even San Francisco. Ever. But, by some employment-based miracle I have, thank God, been to Texas. In July. And let me try to tell you without sounding like some sort of travelogue designed to separate you from all that disposable income you supposedly have burning a hole in your pocket; get there if you can.

Last summer I went to Houston to attend a national gay and lesbian health conference. Besides conference-goers from all over the rest of the country, there was a high concentration of attendees from the Lone Star State. So I feel as if I got a real taste, as it were, of the flavor, as it were, of the men of Texas. And let me tell you: it's not a myth, they really do grow 'em big in Texas. And friendly. Deeply sexy. And horny.

Maybe it was the heat. Houston had an other-worldly citrus scent, a relaxed pace and an almost inordinate number of strapping hairy men with irresistible drawls and creative facial hair. They reminded me of every sexy image of the Southern man I've ever encountered. At each Computers and sex can be a great combination, to which my friend Adam can attest: he went home with a guy, saw a sling in one corner and a Quadra in the other, and couldn't decide which one to play on first.

Hard Sweaty Men

When I was a teenage boy, my dad sent me to work with my uncle on his 25-acre farm. My uncle had two sons and three workers, ranging in age from their early twenties to late thirties. I was originally assigned to take care of the livestock, watering and feeding the horses, and bailing hay.

It was performing this work that I was taught what a man really is supposed to be. By nine o'clock, the heat was so thick that everyone's shirts came off like chaff in the wind, exposing the bodies of these five workmen in all their glory. They were all powerfully built with broad shoulders and arms as strong and thick as oak tree limbs. Each of the workmen displayed the same brawny build, and they all had thick body hair that covered their chests all the way down to their faded Levi waitbands, and at least half-way down their backs. When these men were sweating, the perspiration stood out on top of their body hair like tiny crystal jewels that shimmered in the sunlight.

I was the thinnest of all the men, being very young still, and I quickly earned the nickname Slick because I had no body hair except under my arms. When these men wanted to tease me, at least two of them would wedge me between their hairy chests and rub their thick thatch back and forth across my face, naked chest and back. My skin would be red by the time they were done, and I'd run off as if I was embarrassed. But it was really to isolate myself for a few minutes to jerk-off while their assault and smells were still fresh in my mind.

In all these years I have never lost my desire for a real brawny man covered with hair. That is why I look forward to your magazine so much. I just bought BEAR 28 and it is great! Hell, how did you find Barry? He looks like the men I described on the farm. And I really like your cover man, Pete. Manly and hairy, he is a treat to the eyes!

I liked Will, too, because he is really hairy and has a great dick. But on page 64 it looks like he has attached the label from a Chiquita banana on his dick-shaft. If it isn't, tell us what it is. It seems more than a reflection of light because the rest of his dick is not shiny.

Please keep showing off the hair on your models whenever you can, because men like me love to see it.

C.R., Utah

You tell a good story, and have a great appreciation for masculine images. We hope to always remind you of what you like best.

I went back to the artboards for BEAR 28 and took a close look at Bill's picture on page 64. No Chiquita banana label in sight. It was indeed a trick of illumination—if we get around to sticking things on our models' dicks, it's most likely to be other model's themselves. That, I'm sure, you'll notice more clearly.

Havin' A Stroke

I've been a diehard BEAR fan since Issue 8. And I've had my pud in my paw more times than I can count readin' your mag over the years. My subscription is gonna be coming up for renewal pretty soon, and I want you guys to know that you'll get my money for as long as you want to keep putting it out!

You guys keep my fur all sticky issue after issue. I almost lost it right in the driveway in broad daylight when I found Wolf in my mailbox back with Issue 25. I was convinced you hit the top with that one. Then you pop that hunk of a hairball Lynn in my box. Hey, guys, I'm 42! You tryin' to give me a stroke?

There should be some kind of award like an Oscar or something for smut mags, 'cause yours would win paws down over the rest of the shit that's out there.

Being an ol' hawg riding bear and looking the way I do since long before there was a name for guys like me and the guys I'm attracted to, I really want to say thanks for makin' it possible for us to have a place to see, read about and even meet the kind of guys we're interested in. I watering hole I visited, friendly bar-goers and -tenders spoke to me in warm, gravelly voices like Sam Elliot's in every single Western he's ever made, from Connagher to The Sacketts. When I got out to one of the local bathhouses, who should I connect with but a fellow who reminded me of John Beck circa Rollerball. And you know what was really exciting? None of this shit was a pose.

I found a homo bookstore named Lobo and, after taking a look at me, one of the clerks asked if I'd ever heard of a magazine called BEAR. A hot man playing pool at the Montrose Mining Company came up and just started talking to me and I almost interrupted him to explain that I was from Boston and that I was in cultural shock because people just don't speak where I come from. It turned out that the pool player was the manager of another leather bar called The Ripcord and when I saw him there the next night, get this, he remembered talking to me. This may seem like nothing to you, but it's close to miraculous if you've grown accustomed to urban angst and the inability to connect with your fellow human being.

Am I generalizing and over-romanticizing? Sure. I mean, George Bush lives in Houston, so it can't be all great, right? Plus, how much of a representative sampling of real life could I have gotten in my relatively short stay? But man, Houston sure gave me a terrific first impression. And the guys at the conference from Dallas weren't chopped liver either. (Not to mention the one from Cincinnati who then moved to Atlanta, but I digress.)

But what if you don't have a job that sends you out on the road and you don't have the money to travel? Well, maybe you can afford cable TV or satellite television and are able to plug into The Nashville Network or Country Music Television for a sampling of those tasty Texans.

The Nashville Network is a particular favorite of mine. You get a multitude of hot men in country music videos like Aaron Tippin and Clint Black, who just gets handsomer and hairier in each new video he releases. And you've got regularly scheduled programming along the lines of Mesquite Championship Rodeo from Mesquite, Texas. This show is a must-see. Pay extra close attention to the bull riders and the steer ropers. I'd wager that something like nine out of 10 of the men in these categories would make for some tasty BEAR material. But even if you can't get access to The Nashville Network and you can't get yourself to the Lone Star State, at least you've got this special edition of BEAR.

hope you keep it going for a lot more years. Your mag keeps me believing that someday I will find what I'm looking for, 'cause you're giving me a place to look.

Speaking of looking, you did it to me again—and this time in BEAR 28. I couldn't get past page 5! I haven't been able to take my eyes off "Mr. Hard and His Harley" all day!

B.D., Ohio

I talked to Mr. Hard on the phone just the other day. He's been out on the road for quite awhile, but was tickled to know your letter will be waiting for him when he gets home.

Up-And-Coming

Hey. Just writing to say thanks for the pix of Barry from Kenya in your latest issue. Next time you're in contact with him, let him know that this cub from California would love a safari in his bush.

I've been reading your magazine for a while now, and I think it's about time I said "thanks." I used to wonder why all those mainstream mags only put a model on display if his pubes were clipped and his chest was smooth. Then along came BEAR and I never looked back. My first sex was with the big-bellied, working class types in my neighborhood. Since then I've been hooked. So not only do the guys in your mag inspire new fantasies but they also bring back memories...oh, Jeez, look at that—I'm hard again. Before I go take care of stiffy here, let me ask a question of you guys: How do I approach you? As hirsute as I am, I'm young looking and slim and a lot of the time I get put off, thinking that you big boys are looking for other big boys only. I may be lean, but that doesn't always mean less-filling. There must be bears out there who like little cubs. Hell, you can wrap yourself around me when you sleep...kind of a human water bottle, only I'd wager I give better head.

P.N., California

Barry's quite a mouthful, ain't he? A lot of the guys you see in here come by of their own free will to check out the shop and maybe purchase an item or two. We politely ask them if they've ever thought of dropping their drawers and getting naked. Many blush, say "no" and leave—only to come back a few hours later for more encouragement.

Barry knew what he wanted when he walked in the door, and we were all too happy to oblige. He's a hot little fucker.

You wrote us a good letter. You've definitely got your head in the right space, and anyone who can't take you up on that doesn't know what they're missing. What people look for says a lot about where their head is at.

Some can't get any farther than image, so that's all they can relate to. Sounds like you're up for a heartier form of contact. I wish you the best.

A Clear Thinking Man

Is BEAR Magazine just another cliché, another "type" magazine with a particular taste to cater to? I don't think so. I've been a regular reader since...well, since the beginning, almost, and I like the unique attitude of BEAR: "We ain't gonna cater to nobody."

Every now and then I get the impression that some of us fans are buggin' the BEAR staff for a definition of what BEAR is so we can get on with the age-old human practice of excluding folks. Maybe it's because I'm black, but I find this disturbing. I think it's very cool that BEAR hasn't defined what a bear is, what a cub is, how much hair you have to sprout to qualify for Hairy Status. BEAR seems intent on letting us all play.

In the last couple of issues I've read letters saying things like bears don't kiss, piercing is a big turn off and that we're too connected to the leather community. Fine. I can understand how some of your fans feel. But do you think a little piece of metal is enough to make 'em dump Mr. Right? I'm not a fan of piercing but I've always been more interested in the man.

BEAR is like a big plate of food. I take what I like and push the rest to the side. Nobody likes everything. I hate hearing my bear brothers bashing each other like moral majority trainees. We could give young skinny guys a break, too. A lot of them are just unripe bears. With the proper care and feeding they can grow up to growl with the rest of us.

I love you assholes.

P.H., New Jersey

Your letter is one of the best I've read on this subject. Thanks for a clear and positive outlook. I'll only add that people stop excluding others when they are comfortable with who they are.

BEAR Overdose

I finally got off my fat, hairy ass, called in and became a Bear Buddy. Jeff at your office was most helpful and let me start my subscription with issues 26 and 27, two that I had missed.

My question is: are you fuzzy butts trying to do away with your loyal subscribers? Here is the problem: the two issues arrived in one envelope which caused a major case of BEAR overdose. I nearly had a hard attack and I hadn't even looked inside yet. After I semi-recovered, I went through them both several times, had to put them down for awhile 'cause they were getting wet with sweat and other body fluids. Just remember guys, only one issue at a time to those who are faint of heart.

Now, a few words about Lynn, Coverman 27. The hairy body is great, very handsome, super nice cock. But it's those eyes of his that grab ahold and won't let go. One extra super fine man.

Thanks again for the magazine and the service you guys give.
B.W., Texas

Surgeon General's Warning: prolonged use of BEAR may result in fluid loss, dizziness and acute hypohalmitic fluctuation. You just gotta pace yourselves, men.

As you can imagine we have a lot of guys running around the shop here and it gets distracting. Still, we run into a few who somehow go beyond just plain breathtaking. Lynn is one of those. He kind of makes you forget how to talk for a minute when he stops by to say "hi."

WOLFPISS IN SON

We're starting out this issue with a man who prefers to call himself Wolfpiss. A member of the famed Houston Wolfpack, he's 36 years old, 156 lbs., and about 5'9" tall. He's been living in Texas since he was 11 and likes the fact that Texas is so big. He amuses himself by snow skiing, scuba diving and especially traveling; ask him to show you the border stamps in his passport and he'll gladly whip it out for you.

Wolfpiss is attracted to men who are comfortable with themselves. He says, "What a man looks like is not that important. You'd be surprised who can throw a good time at you. Once he gets his prey back to the den, you can expect anything from watersports to fisting. As to who's going to be doing what to who, he says he'd like to have that question answered by you."

HARTL

Texas has been around since the 1500's. The name Texas comes from the Spanish word for friend, Tejas. You learn about the outgoing friendliness of Texans after your first ten minutes in the Lone Star State. It's part of their pride and culture.

But keep in mind a famous Texan motto: "Don't mess with Texas." That's usually the second thing you learn when you get there.

Texas is one of the most unique States in the Union. Bigger than most countries, some of its huge open spaces are barely reached by its 77,000 miles of highways. It has huge mountain ranges, farmlands, deserts and sub-tropical beaches.

The weather is varied and strange. Hurricanes, desert heat and hail stones the size of golf balls can come and go at a moment's notice. They have a saying for that, too: if you don't like the weather, hang on a minute.

Six different nations have claimed ownership of the land: Spain, France, Mexico, the Republic of Texas, the Confederacy and the United States. And Texans are as proud of their State now as when it was its own Republic flying its Lone Star flag in 1836.

Texas' official state dish, by the way, is chili. This goes well with having wide open spaces.

The built-in romance with cowboys, oil, old money and history makes Texas an experience you won't forget. And as for the men—just remember another, less known motto: Northern boys say "you can," but Southern boys say "y'all can."

THINGS TO DO

BY LUKE
MAURMAN

24 June 1994. Detroit, Michigan. Motor City Bears of D-Town are having a Bear Night at the Detroit Eagle. Go watch the guys try to pick each other up. And bring your condoms. Contact Motor City Bears at PO Box 1894, Royal Oak, 48066. 810-463-2004.

26 June 1994. New York City. Stonewall 25 International March Upon the United Nations. This will mark the 25-year anniversary of the Stonewall Inn riots which marked the beginning of contemporary gay, lesbian and human rights movements. A mile-long rainbow flag will be carried up 5th Avenue in Manhattan. Timed to coincide with the Gay Games and the International SM-Leather-Fetish Celebration, this event is destined to make quite the international statement. Go see Spike at the Spike. He's the powerlifter we're sponsoring in the Gay Games. Have fun.

9 July 1994. Minneapolis, Minnesota. North Country Bears of the Twin Cities are putting on a Summer Bar-B-Que. You can find out what to bring and who to wear by calling their information line at 612-588-2506.

16 July 1994. Dayton, Ohio. URSUS of Dayton are having a bar night at The Edge, 1227 Wilmington Avenue in beautiful downtown Dayton. Their newsletter called it Bears in the Bushes. Works for me. I don't know about you. Contact them at PO Box 75, Dayton, OH 45405 if you need further encouragement.

22 July 1994. Miami, Florida. Come experience a truck driver bar night at the Eagle. The South Florida Bears know how to get off their duffs and party—all residents and visitors in Broward, Dade and Monroe Counties are required to belly up to the bar and see if they can't catch a trucker of their very own. Contact Ed Morgan, 13520 NW 11th Avenue, Miami, 33168.

30 July 1994. Provincetown, Massachusetts. Way out at the end of Cape Cod (pronounced Caad) is the resort village called P-Town. For the past few years the New England Bears group has been trekking out that way to get sunburned and to stain some mattresses. It's your chance to experience the friendliness of the Northeast, first hand. New England Bears: 508-458-0011.

6-7 August 1994. San Francisco, California. The Dore Alley Street Fair is one of The City's best dirty street celebrations. This time the newly forming Bears of San Francisco are having a Bear Contest at The Lone Star on Saturday, the 6th. Then you wake up with a hangover and go to the fair. Ain't life cool? Contact the BOSS at 2215R Market Street #266, San Francisco, CA 94114, or their info line is 415-541-5000.

5-7 August 1994. Portland, Oregon. The Cascade Bears are so hospitable they practically pick you up at the airport and hug you all the way to town. So there's no reason for you not to go to their Mid-Summer Prowl at the Coliseum Red Lion Inn. Find your very own lumberjack at various parties and events. Take all this Northwest hospitality to a hotel room and the sky's the limit. Quick! To the Bear-Phone: 503-323-6071.

30 September - 2 October 1994. Denver, Colorado. Come experience Octobear Fest '94 with the Front Range Bears. This is their third year, and it just keeps getting better. Comedian Danny Williams will perform various acts of linguistic leger-de-main. Expect picnics, dinners, The Mr. Rocky Mountain Bear Contest and a little bearhug party. Call their infoline at 303-331-2705 and learn how you too can go.

20-23 October 1994. Orlando, Florida. As in years past, the Full Moon Saloon on Orange Blossom Trail is having a major blowout and weekend-long Bear Bust. Three days of parties, drinking, bear contests and anything else you can get your hands on. Write to the Bears of Central Florida, PO Box 647, Orlando, FL 32802.

THE GENTLE SLIDE

Here's what you do:

Get one of those rubber cockrings, a box of rubbers, and some non-petroleum lube. I have found that Probe and K.Y. are a good combination to use and they won't rot your rubber. Drop the rubber through your cock ring and fold the open end over the ring as shown.

Now that you have that done, pour some of your lube into the rubber. Fill it about a third or more full and slosh it around to grease the whole inside, including the rim. Now slide it on the same way you would a cock ring. To get any air bubbles out just slide the rubber over your dick and nuts towards you and slide your finger under the ring, working the air bubbles out.

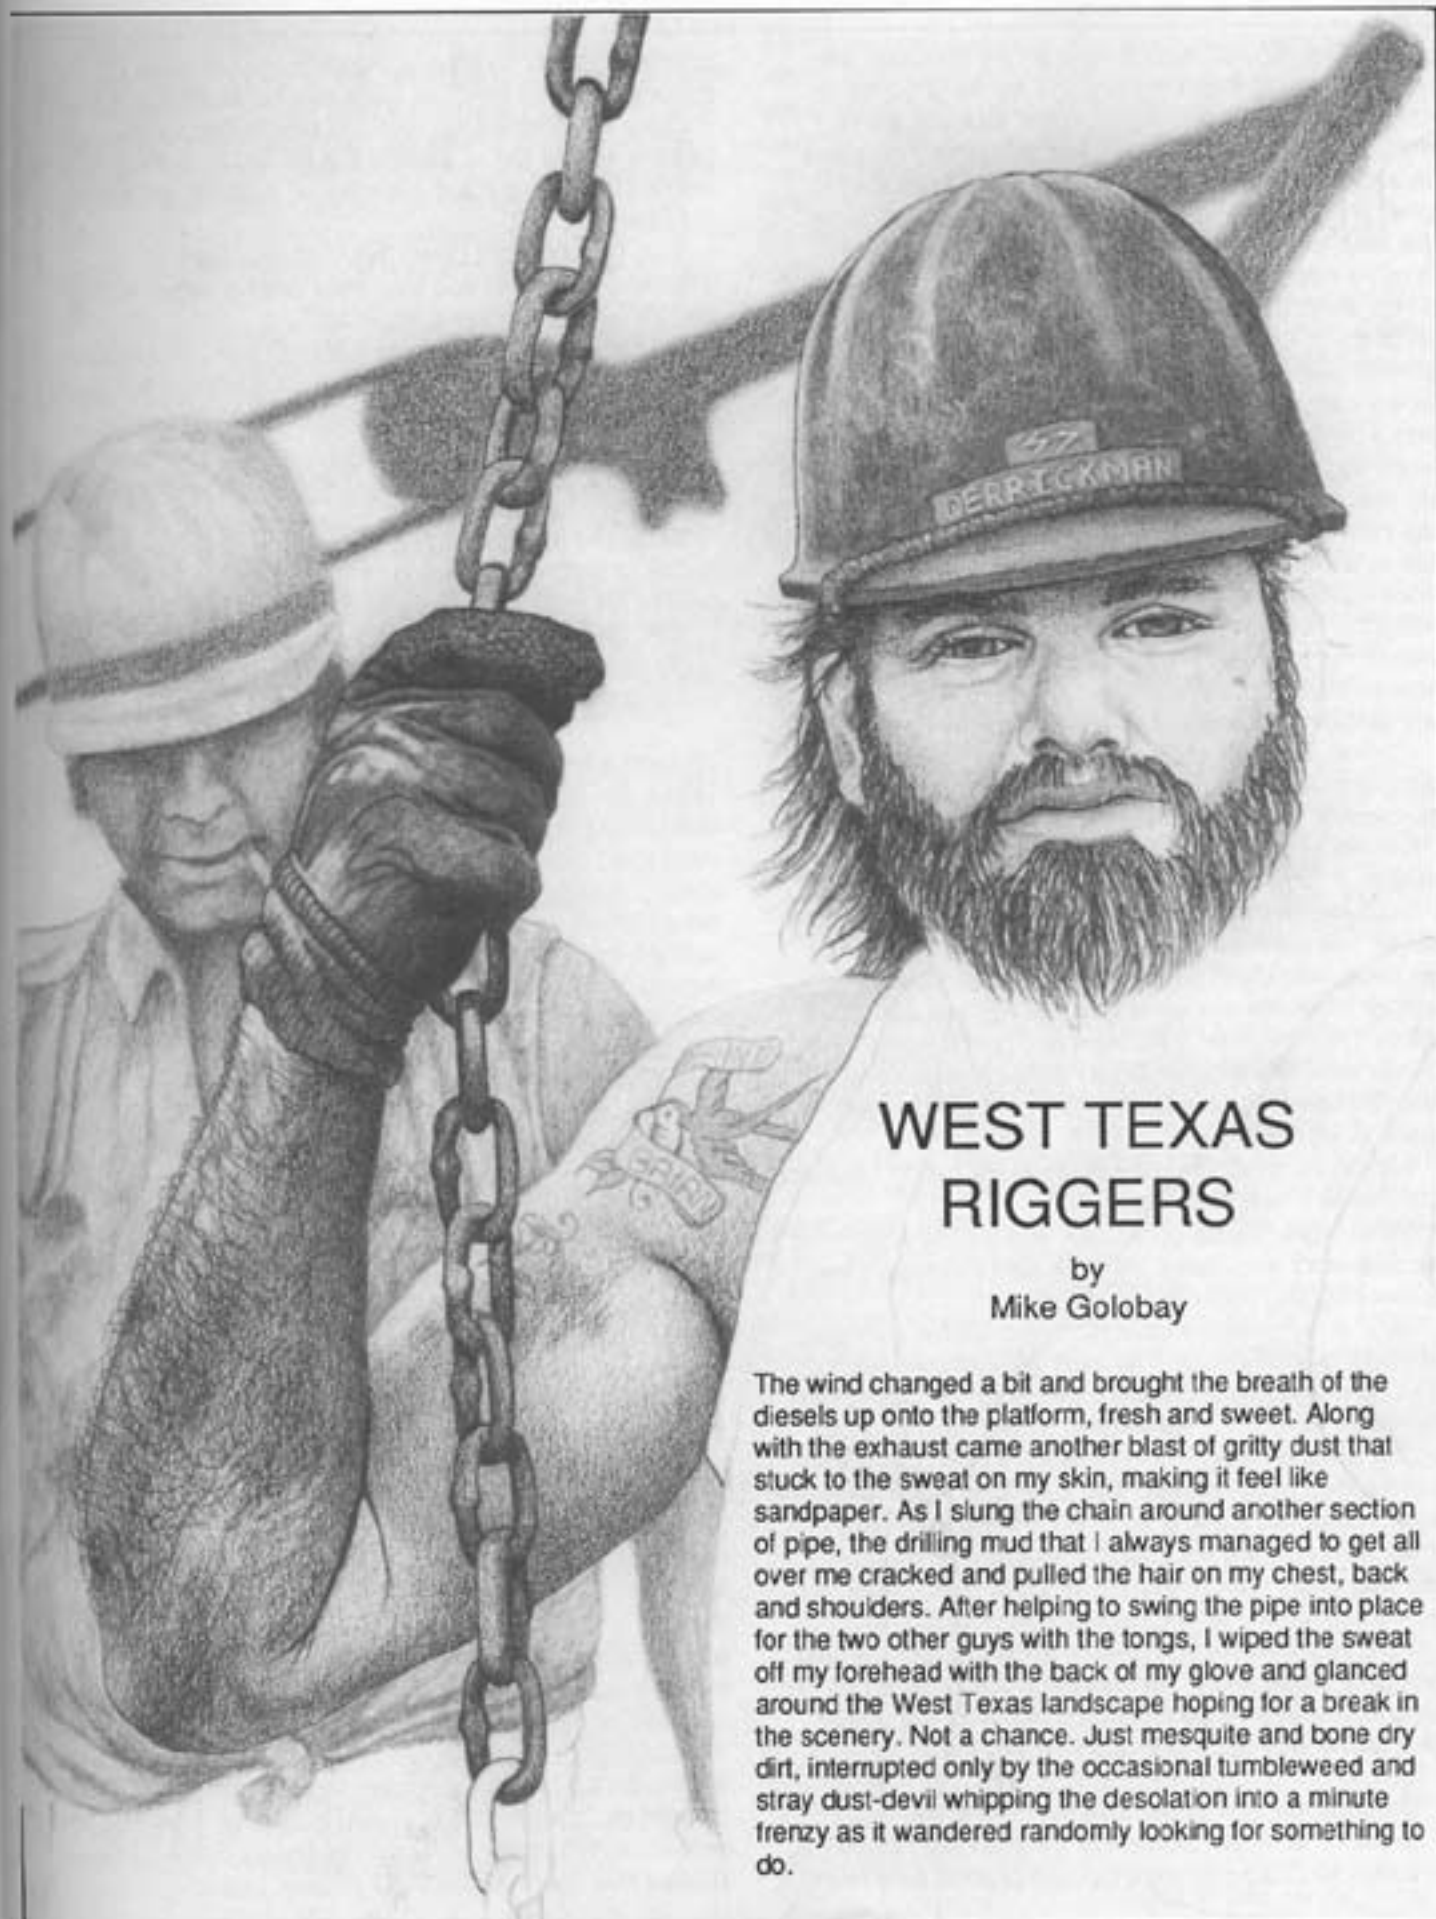

Like I mentioned, the longer you wear it the better it feels, so keep it on for awhile. I've kept one on for up to a week with just a few breaks now and then.

If you keep it on for any length of time, you should notice that your dick has become a lot more sensitive than normal, and if you pinch the very tip of the rubber, pull on it and let it draw back over your dick. It feels real good.

Here's a way to do it so you can kick back and enjoy it with minimal effort:

Take one of those tit clamps with the rubber tips and clamp it to the tip of the rubber. Take a thong or whatever you have handy and tie it to the clamp and run it over, through and around something like in my illustration and just gently pull on it. That's all there is to it. T.C.

WEST TEXAS RIGGERS

Mike Golobay

The wind changed a bit and brought the breath of the diesels up onto the platform, fresh and sweet. Along with the exhaust came another blast of gritty dust that stuck to the sweat on my skin, making it feel like sandpaper. As I slung the chain around another section of pipe, the drilling mud that I always managed to get all over me cracked and pulled the hair on my chest, back and shoulders. After helping to swing the pipe into place for the two other guys with the tongs, I wiped the sweat off my forehead with the back of my glove and glanced around the West Texas landscape hoping for a break in the scenery. Not a chance. Just mesquite and bone dry dirt, interrupted only by the occasional tumbleweed and stray dust-devil whipping the desolation into a minute frenzy as it wandered randomly looking for something to do.

A leather-gloved hand landed on my shoulder with enough force to make me change my footing a bit to keep from falling over. Trying not to look too startled, I turned to see what the hand was connected to. It was Jackson. Every time I saw him my dick would start to swell and I'd have to bite my lip to hold in the "Woof!" that tried to escape. A great big bear of a man, he must've been about 6'4" and 240 pounds. The thick pelt on his chest could not be tamed by a mere cotton T-shirt and tufts of it poked up through the neck to try to mingle with his beard. Ahh, that beard! It was 4 inches of light brown hair, and as thick as a boot brush. His moustache was a slightly lighter color and hid the top of his upper lip on its way to melt into the fur on his face. His chest was big enough to curl up and sleep on and his arms were as big around as many men's legs. I think he only had one pair of denim jeans. At least that's the way it looked since his favorites had a lighter patch of blue, under which his cock bulged the fabric from his crotch well over to his right leg. It was hard to pay attention to what he was saying, but since he was the driller and I was just one of the new roughnecks I had to do my damndest!

"C'mon, Clay. That's it." He pulled off the gloves and slapped them on my back as he hollered over the roar of the diesels.

"I'd like to get me another couple of hours, if you don't mind."

"Hell yes I mind!" he spat on the deck and stuffed the gloves into his back pocket. "You've already had your ten hours and I ain't gonna give you young fellers enough overtime money to buy this rig." His bare hand slapped my shoulder, held tight and gently shook from side to side, like a father would tousle a young boy's hair. "Besides, you'd probably just go and buy yourself a bunch of pussy anyway."

"No sir, the thought never crossed my mind," I laughed and looked him right in the eye.

"Yeah, right," he laughed back and led the way down the platform's iron stairs, his work boots making a low, hollow clanging sound on each step.

Back at my pickup, I found a humid-feeling shirt and slipped it over my back. The mud and grit continued to flake off underneath. I heard the door of the pickup next to mine open and turned around. There he was again, rooting around back behind his truck's bench seat. His ass, trapped under denim, was just a few steps away. How I wondered if it was as furry as the rest of him! When he'd finished his foraging amidst the nameless junk that every man collects behind his pickup seat, he turned and looked at me. He laughed out loud.

"Son, you look like you been wrestling a pig!" he said through a broad smile. I smiled back and brushed off my jeans and straightened my shirt a bit. "And you gotta drive all the way back to Big Spring like that?"

"Yes sir."

"Drop the 'sir' shit, Clay. This ain't the army."

"Yes sir... er... OK." Somehow the man just needed to be called Sir. Jackson gave the can of snuff he'd found a couple of hearty thumps using thick fingers, each decorated with a batch of black hair below their first knuckle. He opened the can and pinched up a big healthy wad of Skoal, stuffed it in his lower lip, then worked it into place with his tongue. A few flakes sat on his beard.

"Aw, hell. I'm right down the road near Lake JB Thomas. Why don't you stop over there and get washed up? I'll buy you a beer if you want."

My heart beat twice where it should have only beaten once. I still don't know why, but my first instinct was to say no, hop in the truck and drive away as fast as I could.

"Well, I'd just be in the way. Your wife probably isn't expecting company anyhow."

"Nah, she took the kids and went to Odessa for her durn fool brother's wedding." His big meaty paw darted over to his crotch to satisfy an itch. I swallowed hard.

"OK, I will then. Thanks Jackson."

He nodded and spat, making a splash in the dust that would choke a grasshopper. "Just follow me."

Jackson's house looked like any straight man's in West Texas. His kids' toys lay in the yard here and there, abandoned in a young boy's constant search for something more dangerous and bothersome to do. I've always thought a young boy is simply a loud noise with dirt attached. Inside, he led me to the kitchen where he opened a fridge that was plastered with magnets holding papers displaying crayon drawings of mutant animals. He tossed me a beer, which I cracked open and guzzled half of without breathing.

"Bathroom's over here," he mumbled over his shoulder as he walked. Like the rest of the house, the bathroom seemed like something that had started out real simple and grown with a generous application of oil money. The room was a little short on space and we had to stand pretty close while Jackson found a clean towel and gathered up his kids' toys out of the tub. I remember breathing deep every time he went by, trying to sort out all the smells. There was the heavy crude oil smell that we ignored there on the rig. That one was easy. Then, there was the musky smell of living oil that mingled with the faint, but oniony aroma from the man's armpits and chest. Now and then, there was even a whiff of that special and wholly erotic masculine tang that can only be found in the crotch sweat of a horny man. After he had left, I closed the door and leaned up against it taking long, deliberate breaths. I quickly got out of my clothes, stepped into the shower and pulled the curtain. The hot water chiseled away the caliche, mud, oil and sweat from a long day's work. I let it massage deep into my muscles as I soaped the hair on my chest and belly. Without really thinking about it, I soaped up my cock and felt it grow fuller with each long, slow, slippery tug. I thought of Jackson's hairy chest up against mine and twisted my left nipple while my right hand continued the strokes that made my butthole pucker. I must've been in there for some time when I heard the door open.

"Hey, don't use up all the hot water! I was fixin' to get me a shower too." The toilet lid clunked against the tank, then the sound of bear piss thundering in the bowl filled the room. My eyes rolled back as I listened to the stream that resounded with the force of a jet from a fire hose. The acid sweet smell of male animal urine clung to the steam from the shower and was almost palpable in the air.

"Did you hear me?" he said over the toilet flushing.

"Um, yeah. I was just getting done." I breathed some more and waited a bit for my hard-on to subside. I never heard the door close again so I didn't know if he was still there or not. I stepped out and began to towel off.

"Hey, Clay! You need another beer?" his voice boomed from the kitchen. I quickly grabbed the one I had carried in with me and finished it off.

"Yeah, sure. I'll come out and get it." The words had just left my lips when he rounded the corner with another can. There I was, bare-assed naked in front of the man I had fantasized about since I first came to the rig. He set the beer on the sink then spent a suspicious amount of time looking me over.

"That's better. You're as good as new." Before I knew what was happening, his right hand landed on my chest and ruffled my own fur. Water flew and landed in my moustache. I licked it reflexively. "My turn." Was all he said as he peeled off the T-shirt and tossed it on the floor. His chest, and arms were covered with the thick dark hair I'd imagined. In the center of his chest and over his pecs. It was frosted ever so slightly with silver. He started undoing his belt buckle and I scrambled to pick up my clothes to hide my hardening dick.

"I'll just put these on out here," was all I could say. Out in the hallway, I had just managed to get my underwear back on before I heard his voice over the shower.

"Hey, go in there to the fridge and fetch me another beer, wouldja?"

I sprinted to the kitchen, extracted a beer from the cardboard twelve-pack and went back into the bathroom. Steam rose from over the shower curtain while the beer and I began to sweat.

"Where do you want it?" I asked as a certain familiar confidence began to build in me. I decided I was going to stop running away from this situation. Sure, he's my boss. What the fuck. There's lots of rigs around. Just then, the shower curtain pulled back and there he stood.

His entire body was covered with the same coarse black hair. His thick, cut cock rested comfortably between balls as big as kiwi fruit. The hot water had turned his ball sack a light pink, and relaxed it so the cargo it carried hung low and heavy. Bands of muscles showed under the blanket of his fur and droplets of water ran down his beard. He had to be the most astoundingly perfect man I'd ever seen. It seemed like vandalism to put clothes on a body like that.

I didn't notice that he'd turned off the water, just as I didn't notice my dick had throbbled to full attention driving my cock head out above the waistband. He smiled and huffed a chuckle as he shook water from his beard like a dog shakes off the rain. He held out his hand for the beer and I approached him with the can held not too far away from my chest. He opened the beer with one hand, chugged some back, then pinned me with the full force of his ice blue eyes locked onto mine.

"You weren't kidding when you said you never thought about pussy, were you?" I couldn't read him. Would the truth make him leap out of the shower and pound the shit out of me right there in his bathroom?

"Nope." A smile spread across my face. Jackson's beard moved as a smile grew under it to match mine.

"I thought all you fellers talked funny, were flower arrangers and put on dresses."

I chuckled. "No sir, most of us look just like every other man." I moved my hand to the rich animal pelt on his chest and scratched slow and hard. "A helluva lot of us are just men who like to fuck with other men." His Adam's apple bobbed as he swallowed with some difficulty. His breathing changed almost imperceptibly. I had him and I knew it.

I buried my face in the hair of his left pec and found a hard, fat nipple there. I nibbled at it while one hand twisted the right one and my other hand scratched in the less dense fur of his back. His head rolled back a little and I heard a faint, low hum rumble in his chest. I reached down and began to tug on his cock which was already half hard and nearly too thick for me to get my hand around.

Caught up in the moment, I tried to find his mouth with mine. He pulled back and turned his head away. I forgot straight men don't like to be kissed. You can do just about anything else with 'em you want, just don't try to kiss 'em. Experience told me that I could also forget about him having much interest in my dick, leaving me free to focus all of my attention on showing him the kind of sex only two men can enjoy.

I had his cock at full attention now and was dry stroking the length of it while still gnawing on that meaty bear titty. I let the hand that had been exploring his back wander down to his butt crack and was thrilled that the man fur was also thick and wiry there. My middle finger stroked up and down that fuzzy bear cleavage then probed slowly deeper to find the warm, rhythmically puckering hole that I knew was the way to this man's heart. I massaged the doughnut of muscle there until it began to smooth out a bit. Assholes have a mind of their own and you have to get them to trust you first. Once I had earned that trust I probed a little deeper. Jackson bent over a bit to give me better access and was swinging his arm over to put it on my back when he caught the shower curtain and pulled the rod down. It clattered to the floor and we stopped what we were doing and just stared.

"Fuck" was all Jackson said, his chest now rising and falling more visibly. His dick flexed on its own a couple of Buck, at 5'8" and 200 lbs., is one of those kind of guys that everyone immediately takes a liking to. He's current president of the Dallas Bears group and he's awful good to have around. Buck grew up in Dallas, and says he likes Texas because there's so much space and the people are so friendly. He enjoys collecting baseball caps, teddy bears and watching old movies.

Sexually he likes getting plowed by big, burly, tattooed men who smoke cigars and don't mind finishing things off with a good cuddle.

CITY SLICKERS

It's been said that Texas has everything every place else has—only more of it. Texas' urban areas seem to personify that idea. Houston is the fourth largest city in the nation. Dallas, lagging behind by only a few thousand people, is one of the marketing centers of the world. Texas city dwellers go in for glitz and style in a big way, and if you can't keep up they'll run you off the road.

Houston was the original capital of Texas until 1839, when the government moved to Austin to escape the humidity, mosquitoes and drunken legislators fighting in the streets. Between 1950 and 1970 Houston's population doubled. The oil slump of the early 1980s prompted a decline and the saying, Would the last one to leave Houston please turn out the lights. As you might imagine, Texans don't do well with defeat. Houston has since grown back—big. It hosts NASA's Mission Control and some of the worst traffic in the country.

Dallas started out as a trading post with a population of twelve. Its central location quickly made it the railroad, cotton and banking center of Texas. Today neon covered skyscrapers, Neiman Marcus and cultural events compete for a visitor's attention. The assassination of President Kennedy was Dallas' most distinctive, albeit frightening moment.

A man on the prowl for flesh in these cities won't be disappointed. The nightlife is good. TWIT (This Week In Texas), is a weekly paper that covers gay places and happenings throughout the state.

John Dibelka

A Morning in the Life

I saw the news today, oh boy. Lieutenant Paula Coughlin, the Navy pilot who reported sexual harassment and abuse at the last big, free-flying Tailhook convention in Las Vegas, has resigned her commission. NBC News quotes her letter as saying, "The physical attack on me by the Naval aviators at the...convention and the covert attacks on me that followed have stripped me of my ability to serve."

This makes me just as angry as the "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" farce my President agreed to, and for much the same reason: Through a simple inability (or, more probably, refusal) to understand that sex as a weapon is not an acceptable part of a modern American arsenal, United States military brass have lost themselves another brave and highly-qualified service member. The Navy, and by extension the country it serves, is once again very much poorer for that.

Then came the mail, and a letter from The Powers That Be at this magazine that tells me they plan on producing another theme issue. This time, the eyes of BEAR are upon Texas.

Well, I'll be dogged.

Or hanged.

Or fired.

I know shit-all from Texas.

One of my ex'es lived in Texas, if I recollect correctly. I seem to remember there being some NASA thing down there, around somewhere, too. I can detail for you precisely what made Jett Rink hate Bick Benedict and how Dealey Plaza looked thirty years ago, at least from the Zapruder point of view, but other than that I feel just about as qualified to write here about Texas as that Tony Barbarino "Urban Cowboy" bozo was to ride a real bull. Or, for that matter, Debra Winger.

Which is, in all humility, to say what I don't know about Texas could fill a ten-gallon Stetson, a pair of Tony Lama snakeskin 14-double-Ds, a Lone Star keg, two full-sized barbecue pits, the bed of a three-quarter-ton Ford F250 (red), the swimming pool at Southfork, George Herbert Walker Bush's thirty-five-foot residential lot, Ann Richards' hatbox AND the Astrodome—and still slop over some on Corpus Christi's sleepy streets.

I have never been to Texas in my life. I'm not likely to get there soon, either; not unless some rich and so far anonymous patron is willing to spring for a plane ticket, hotels and rental cars, folding cash, camouflage cowboy clothes and someone to stay here and water my ficus trees. Since things like that just don't happen to me very often these days I guess at least two or three more seasons' worth of all those yellow roses will be budding, blooming, wilting and recycled before I can say I've set a foot on old Sam Houston's hallowed soil.

I wouldn't mind going, though, so if anybody wants to make an offer I hope he'll let me know, somewhere down the road a piece.

But, please, not today. Today, again, there's things to do.

Tracy died this morning. Tracy, to whom I said, the night we met at an AIDS fundraiser, "I don't think I'll ever be able to like you—you got what I wanted," about his new lover and my good friend and longtime crush, John. Tracy, who answered, with a quiet smile, "You can't say that—you don't know me yet," and turned out to be right.

Tracy, whose first lover drowned on a Christmas Eve when they were both very young, and whose Christmas trees, for as long as I knew him, lit up the room, and the house, and the night, but whose single candles in the window were lit once a year for a passing instead of the joy of the coming of Christ.

Tracy, the perfect host and bartender who hated crowds but always put everyone somehow at ease.

Tracy, whose talent for deadly put-downs and madness for rearranging furniture sometimes made me crazy and whose dogs and cats and rat made me break out in sneezes and hives during the year we were roommates.

Tracy, the consummate Southern California boy, who raced through the house in an earthquake and laughed to find John scrambling out of bed muttering about how things like this didn't happen in Pennsylvania and me standing naked in a doorway, clutching my father's antique mantel clock and fully expecting to die.

Tracy, with whom I compared notes about doing drugs and turning tricks and posing for porn magazines.

Tracy, who talked with me, long Friday evenings after John had gone to work, about death and taxes, politics, religion and the challenges of being an honorable man in a dishonorable world, while we smoked and watched TV, cried over sappy movies and tried to figure out how to love, and be loved by, our families.

Tracy, who took my brother aside the day the kid got out of jail and worked some kind of magic I couldn't have managed that brought him back to life and helped me to become his friend.

Tracy, who said to me last week, "The only good thing about this damned disease—if there can be any good thing about it—is that it's given me my family back," and whose mother and stepfather, brother and sisters and brother-in-law and niece all let me know, in one way or another, they loved me for loving him.

Tracy, whose Catholic last rites were the first I'd ever witnessed and the only time I remember having ached with the wish I could really believe in a god.

Tracy, after whom I have just mailed a card to John quoting Jean-Luc Picard, from the classics, "...and Gilgamesh wept bitter tears, saying, 'He who was my companion through hardship and adventure is gone forever.'"

Tracy, who taught me a lifetime of lessons on love in four years.

Tracy, who inspired me.

Tracy died this morning, and so did yet another important but innocent part of my soul.

May he rest in peace. I expect I will miss him terribly, as I expect I will miss them all, until it's time for others to miss me.

Goodbye.

But now, because life goes on even in mourning, let us turn to the Book of Janet Jackson, chapter 1814, verse 7, and recite:

"Get the picture? Good. Let's dance."

I always have wanted to learn how to two-step.

Wonder what I'd look like in that Stetson.

Texas Law

All right, I lied. In my last column I said the next column would be about exhibitionism. Since I'm writing about Texas, I'm not that far off the mark. You've all heard the story about the Texan who told the Bostonian that he could get in his truck and drive all day without leaving the boundaries of his property; the Bostonian responded, "Yes, I used to have a truck that ran like that, too."

Anyway, the big story from Texas, if you'll pardon the pun, is the non-decision of its state's highest court on the question of whether gay people can legally make love in the Lone Star State.

Once upon a time there was a lesbian who wanted to be a Dallas police officer. Like all applicants for the police force, she had to take a lie detector test. During the administration of the test, she admitted to being a lesbian and was promptly rejected as an applicant on the grounds that in Texas there is a sodomy statute, which means that she would in all likelihood be regularly breaking the law. Lawbreakers are not welcome as police officers.

Now, let us suspend our disbelief and ignore the fact that heterosexual police officers engage in oral sex at least as often as their gay colleagues do. Let us ignore the blatant discrimination of saying that gays are not welcome because they might break the law whereas straights are not excluded unless and until illegal conduct has taken place and been proven. Let us ignore the fact that not all gay people commit sodomy. Let us ignore all of this and simply point out that the primary reason why we need to concentrate our efforts on getting sodomy statutes repealed is not that the police actually burst into people's bedrooms—although they sometimes do—but rather because they give gay people the legal status of criminals, and thus open the door to discrimination in such things as child custody, government employment and the like.

Anyway, our friend the would-be police officer, sued, and the Texas Court of Appeals held the Texas sodomy statute to be a violation of the Texas State constitution.

Enter lawsuit number two. Another Texas gay activist brought a class action lawsuit in state court alleging that the Texas sodomy statute was unconstitutional. That case eventually wound its way through the court system and found itself before the Texas Supreme Court.

Now in Texas, all judges, including Supreme Court Justices, must periodically run for re-election, and as it happened, three justices of the Texas Supreme Court were in the process of running for re-election when the case was heard, a situation that in your legal adviser's humble opinion is a compelling argument for why judges should be appointed for life rather than subjected to the electorate. Anyway, the Texas Supreme Court heard arguments on the matter, and then sat on it for a year.

While the court was trying to figure out how to throw out the sodomy statute while still getting re-elected, another quirk developed. It so happens that under Texas law, the criminal code—including the sodomy statute—comes up periodically for review by the legislature. The legislature kissed the asses of the rednecks who make up a majority of the population (a problem not unique to Texas I must note) and re-passed the sodomy statute, sending it to Governor Ann Richards.

We had high hopes that Governor Richards would put the sodomy statute out of its misery by vetoing it. She could simply have pointed to the first court decision declaring it unconstitutional and said to the voters, in effect, what can you do? She has been one of the most pro-gay governors in the United States. Unfortunately, she is also running for re-election, and she needs the bubba vote, so she signed the sodomy statute back into law.

Four months later the Texas Supreme Court announced its decision, or more correctly, its lack of decision. Based upon a hypertechnical procedural point with which I will not bore my readers, it announced that the question of whether sodomy statutes violate the Constitution was not properly before the court, and dismissed the case.

Now, one major problem with the judicial system is the phenomenon of judges who do not like to decide cases, especially hot potatoes. There is in fact a legal doctrine which, boiled down to its essence, means that the courts should avoid making hard decisions whenever possible. And so, in keeping with custom, the Texas Supreme Court's decision was not really that surprising.

That is not, however, the analysis here. The analysis is that four political hacks—a governor and three judges—were, once again, willing to sell gays and lesbians out on a matter of simple justice because they were afraid, rightly or wrongly, that it would impact their careers. I have no doubt that Governor Richards would have vetoed the sodomy statute if she thought there would have been no repercussions; I have no doubt that a supreme court appointed for life and not needing to worry about the electorate would have found it unconstitutional and thrown it out. As a side note, I also have no doubt that on a secret ballot Congress would have allowed the President to drop the military's gay ban last year.

But all political hacks view the voters as sitting perched on their desks, like Edgar Allan Poe's raven, muttering "Nevermore" to everything the least bit controversial that comes along. And we, like it or not, are controversial.

And therein lies the key to future success. We must continue to make our privacy a mainstream issue. Gay rights should not be controversial. The notion that whom one loves and how one physically expresses that love is one's own business and nobody else's is such a basic, elementary point that it should not generate a great deal of heated discussion. One of the central tenets on which this country is founded is that government should as a rule stay out of people's lives, especially when they are not hurting anyone else.

If we can remind mainstream America of that—if we can convince the heterosexual majority that all we ask is the same freedom from governmental intrusion into our love lives that they have for theirs—the battle will be over. We are not, after all, seeking to manage their sex lives; merely to have them stop trying to manage ours.

This story has a happy ending, sort of. Most legal analysts have concluded that since the Texas Supreme Court refused to rule on the second case, the first case still stands. That means that the highest court in Texas to rule on the issue has found sodomy statutes unconstitutional. And so Texas probably no longer has a viable sodomy statute, at least until the next round of litigation. What it does have is a legislative and judicial system that, like those in most other states, cannot make a clear statement about a simple justice issue.

RULES OF THE ROAD

1. Dialing BEAR Voicemail. To use MasterCard or Visa, call 1-800-347-BEAR. The Bear Computer will tell you what to do. If you wanna charge it to your home phone instead, dial 1-900-HOT-BEAR. You can record your own personal greeting, answer someone else's, or talk to whoever else is jacking-off on the line.

2. To Collect Your Messages in Bear Voicemail: At the main menu, hit the star key. This takes you to your mailbox. Always press keys slowly and firmly. If you get stuck, the star key also takes you back to the main menu. If you're on a dirty bulletin board, leave your area code so the guys know what part of the planet you're calling from.

3. Constructing your ad. When you write out your ad, keep this in mind: talk a bit about yourself and be real clear about the types of folks you'd like to meet through your ad. As much as possible, avoid telling us who you don't want to meet. No "no fats, no feds, or Lithuanians" shit. Be positive. And if you aren't, we'll edit the fuck out of the ad and turn you into more of a Pollyanna than you'd care to be.

4. Cost and duration. Personal ads are free if you're a BEAR BUDDY. Otherwise, they're $0.25/word/issue. Wanna change your ad? Send in $5. Wanna discontinue your ad? Write in and we'll pull it. You will have to pay to have a pulled ad put back in.

5. Deadline for classifieds for BEAR 30 is May 30, 1994.

6. BEAR Postal Box Numbers. Available to US subscribers. Free to BEAR Buddies, including Foreign Buddies. Otherwise, add $5 to the total of your ad. A word to the wise: responses to your ad will be much greater using your own address versus ours.

7. Replying to a BEAR Postal Box Number. Write your letter, put it in an envelope and seal it. On this envelope, put the fella's box number IN PENCIL where you'd normally put a stamp. Put this letter along with $1 in a larger envelope and mail it to us. That's BEAR, 2215R Market Street #148, San Francisco, CA 94114. We always forward letters if you've done what's called for here. If you mess up, we either throw your handiwork away or read it ourselves.

8. Personal vs. commercial ads. You know as well as I do what a personal ad is and isn't.

9. We reserve the right to edit personals. This is exercised for editorial consistency and for clarity almost exclusively.

10. We reserve the right to refuse any ad for any reason whatsoever.

11. Changing Your ad: It's cool. But it'll cost you 5 bucks, and must be in writing.

12. Photo ads. We'll run a shot of your face or dick—but only once. Make sure it's a clear, well-lit pic. Your photo must have a signed model release. We're running out of room for them, so they'll be printed first-come, first-served, and you may have to wait a few issues.

We'd like another portion of the good stuff, please. Together for seven years seeking to include someone else. Dad's 48, 5'11", 250 lbs., works out regularly. First son is 33, 5'10", 200 lbs., same regularly. Second son must be versatile. Dad tops sensually but insistently, son bottoms. If you want, when you get here you can coax your brother for favors. Son likes body hair—okay with Dad though preference so far is for naked boy tuckers. We live private lives and aren't into costume or attitude, except for lusty play at home. We're safe and healthy, like to laugh, hope you are the same. Age, race, physical characteristics are important, but depend upon attitude and mix: we'll figure it out when we talk. Please, no hard drugs. Call. (33) #2638

DAVID

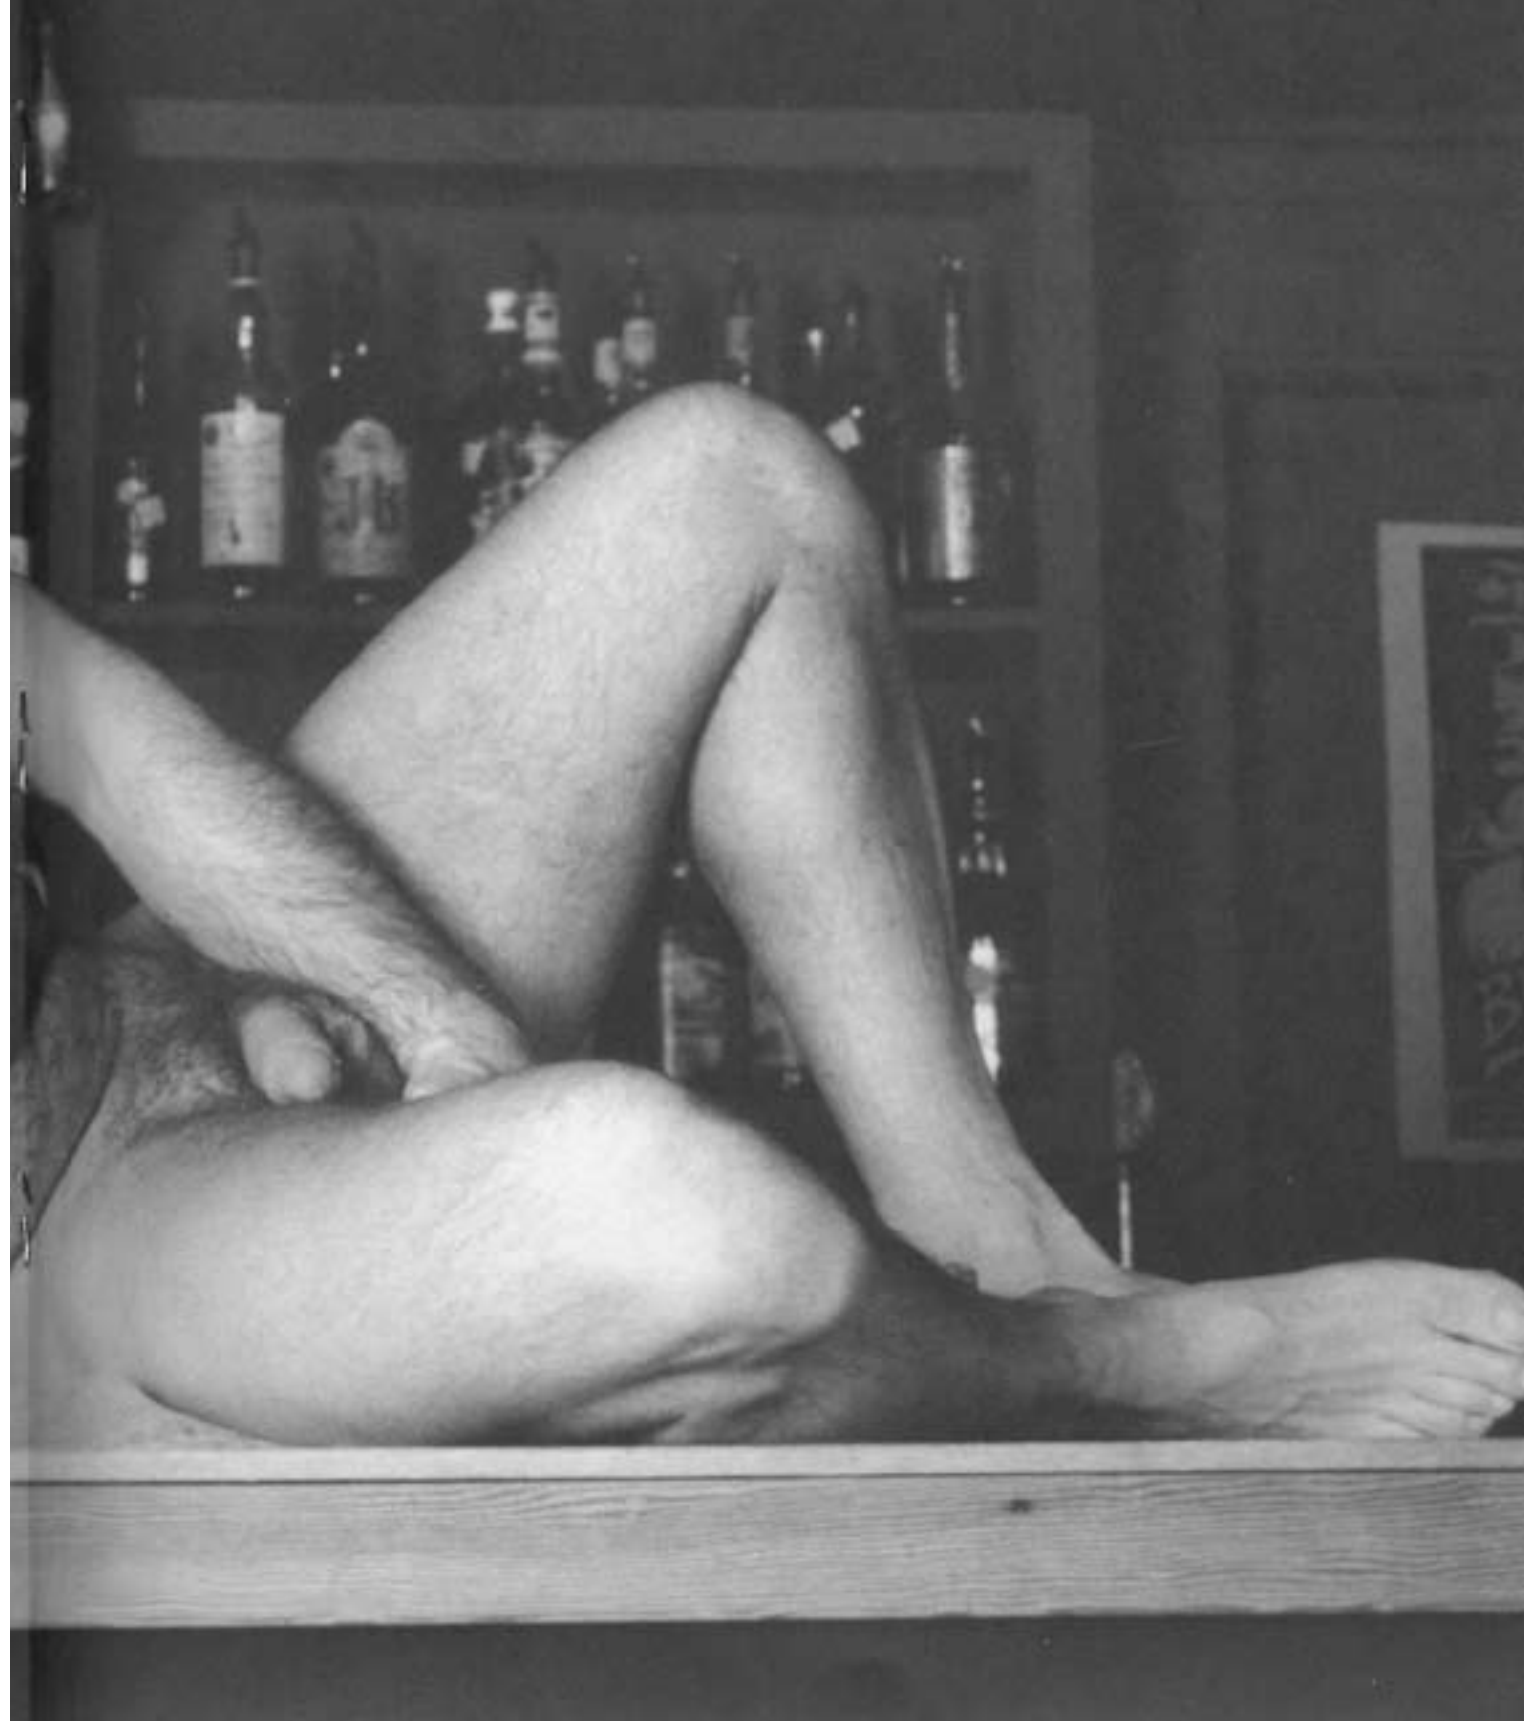

David's one of the hottest dudes in Texas. The best thing about him is that he doesn't seem to know it—at least until now. He's 36, 5' 11" and 205 pounds of hard manhood. He loves Texas because it feels like home to a laid back man who likes to be outdoors and work with his hands. He's an artist. This, along with camping, fishing, weightlifting and bartending should almost keep those hands busy enough. Of course there's always the last bit of chores to be done at the end of the day.

David is turned on by somewhat hefty, hairy, masculine types. He says he's looking for a next-door-neighbor-type man to share his life with.

Where does the line start to apply for that job?

Photography by Dale Therio

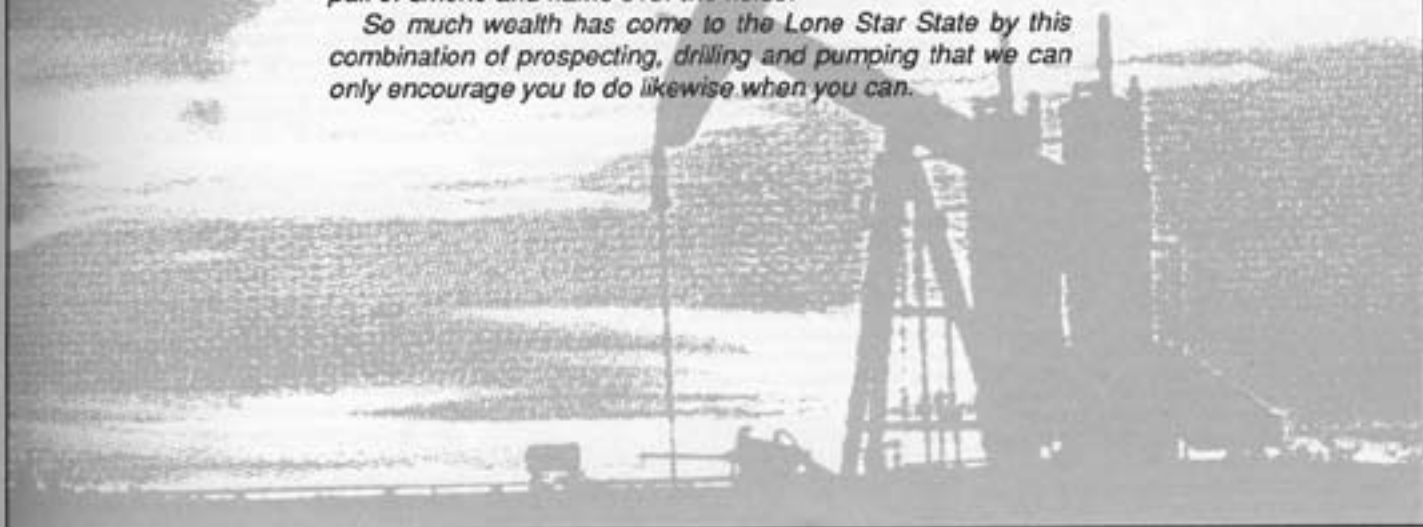

Beef and oil had a lot to do with putting Texas on the map. You're looking at a fine specimen of beef right here. Oil, the lifeblood of the Texas economy, isn't quite as pretty on a magazine page. But Texas isn't about keeping clean, and neither are we.

Texas crude oil, or "Texas Tea," can be got from the ground in a variety of ways. Foremost is the drilling. Can't get very far without a hole. Once the oil is located, it usually spurts out on its own. If not, water or steam are used to pump it up. Extra methane gasses in the ground are burned off, often casting a pall of smoke and flame over the fields.

So much wealth has come to the Lone Star State by this combination of prospecting, drilling and pumping that we can only encourage you to do likewise when you can.

You wanna make this guy sweat? Git a rope. He likes to play rough. Born a Texas man, Allen's convinced that Texas is the best state in the country. He figured as big as it is, Texas offers a little bit of everything. Well, at 6'2" and 195 lbs., Allen can probably offer a little bit of everything, too.

As you can see, he's not afraid to be open and friendly; good attributes to have in a place like this. Being an Air Force brat has given him a preponderance of masculine images in his life. He likes to dominate men, being in control. He goes for tall blonde men and Tom of Finland types. Doin' it in the mountains is one of his favorite fantasies.

Dale Therio

ROPE

Rope held life together in the old days of Texas. Even now, if you look around the wilds of West Texas you see fences, lines, extensions of rope—man's attempt to tame and corral the elements. Ropes establish control, ownership and boundaries over the wild.

A lariat is the traditional lasso used to capture an animal on the loose. The circle is maintained by using a slightly stiffer rope at one end. A slip knot lets the rope tighten around the animal's neck when pulled. Other common knots are the clove hitch, square knot and 13-ring slip knot, used as a hangman's noose.

Roping wild animals in modern Texas would be a lost art without rodeos and creative men who know the value of giving good rope in private. As long as wild elements need to be contained, rope will be a valuable part of the Texas experience.

Mason

Mason makes the most of his "seize the day" mentality. For instance, when he found out that representatives from BEAR Magazine were looking for models in Texas, he was one of the first to sniff us out. You can see why we approved. He loves tennis, football, bungee jumping and the gym. Born and raised a Texas boy, Mason has nevertheless had to move away from the Lone Star State. Right now he's in California. But he's a breathing reminder that you can take a man out of Texas; you just can't take Texas out of a man.

He says that he is interested in men who are men; guys who aren't afraid of adventure. Like the guys who came all over him at a banquet room at International Mr. Leather last year: they called him Mr. Tablecloth for the rest of the weekend.

SHIT KICKERS

Cowboy boots are, without question, America's most recognized fashion contribution to the world, outdistancing even blue jeans.

It was during the cattle drives after the Civil War that the Cowboys recognized the fact that they needed a special kind of boot. When they reached Kansas, with its small boot and shoe shops, the cowboy and the cobbler eventually came up with the current standard design we see today. Of course over the years, with the influence of Hollywood and Nashville, you'll find as many variations on the original as you would send ups of American Gothic.

T.C. McInerney was the only known boot maker in Abilene, Kansas, in 1868. Up until this time cowboys had been wearing "stogy" boots—heavy-soled, fully pegged, tall-top boots made from a black hard leather called kip. During this time you could buy a pair of boots from three to twenty-five dollars a pair. Nowadays you'd be lucky to get a cheap pair for a hundred.

The boot over the years has become more of a fashion symbol than a tool of the trade. But whether you're wearing those one-of-a-kind, hand stitched alligator numbers or just a good ol' pair of shit kickers, you still get that feeling of the Old West in your toes that goes straight to the boyhood cowboy in us all.

Hindsights

It all comes out in the end

New York City??

The New York bar scene recently got a little juicier with the onset of a much-needed monthly bear bash at the Dugout, an endearing West Village haunt. Spearheaded by one of the bar's three principles, Bill Castle, the party is held on the first Saturday of each month and it draws some of the town's hunkiest men. The randy, boisterous crowd is treated to a steady flow of country/rock music, pool tournaments and drink specials that include a discount for stripping down to your underpants after midnight.

"There's absolutely no pretense or posing with these guys," Castle says. "This is just an attractive group of masculine men who feel real about themselves, and who know how to have a good time."

On the last Saturday of the month, the Dugout is also home to a gathering for the members of Nightstick, a computer bulletin board geared toward bear, leather and uniform aficionados.

Spike

Way back in BEAR 28 we told you about Spike. This month he's going to the Gay Games in New York to win a gold medal in powerlifting. BEAR Magazine, along with a few of our subscribers, is sponsoring him. He's photographed above working out—okay, he's just plain posing—at Gold's Gym in San Francisco. We wish him the best of luck, and add a special thanks to those of you who helped him get to the competition.

Bears Hit Chicago

This past Memorial Day Weekend the Great Lakes Bears of Chicago and Big Men of Chicago put on a hell of a party, Big & Bear '94. The city never had it so good with so many hunky, hairy men hanging around, and for the first time, the weather actually wasn't shitty. A contest was held—only the most exclusive people were in attendance—and the winner was a wonderful man who goes by the name Bearilla, also known as Brad from Ohio.

Leaving Texas: A Memoir

Carolyn Weathers

Cow Pokes Magazine

MJ Enterprises : $5.00

Available through Brush Creek Media

This is my first assignment for Brush Creek so I was more than just a little nervous when Luke came up to me and asked if I would review these two things. I said "Sure, no problem," and ran off to the Castro to pick one of them up. I was shocked when the store clerk handed me this little pink pamphlet thing which couldn't have had more than 30 pages from cover to cover. It's hand bound and looks like a nine-year-old made it in craft class. But that's part of the point the author tries to make. She tells the story with excerpts from her own childhood diary. I soon found out, however, that this book was not for kids. I was fascinated by the way it draws you in with its simplicity and leaves you with more of a feeling about how it was to grow up in rural Texas than any other thing you could put into words.

When you think of Texas, what comes to mind? Tex-Mex, sagebrush and longhorn cattle? Maybe a cactus or two? Well that's what came to mine anyway. I never really gave much thought to geographical heritage and its molding of our outlook on life. How we can't escape it in decision-making and lifestyles in general. Leaving Texas brought that home for me. This book is a story of two sisters growing up in The Big Flat with its rural restrictions and Bible Belt mentalities of the 1950's. Dealing with alcoholism, death and sexual prejudices, it brings out the strong sense of family and pride that is prevalent in Texas today.

Now Cow Pokes Magazine was definitely not heavy reading but it certainly brought up a heavy load. This mag has some of the best cowboy smut I've read. I couldn't wait to turn the page. I shot my wad about halfway through the first story.

This fanzine is put out by these guys from Laramie. Now I don't know if any of you have been to or are from Wyoming, but when I drove through the state in late April all I saw was a bunch of bald ass prairie and flesh-ripping wind. I never saw the type of cowboys featured in this issue's photo spread. They must have been romping around in the buffalo grass. But the magazine gets you close enough to see the whites of their eyes, among other things.

This little eight-by-six publication is packed with fifty pages of photos, horny bunkhouse ramblings and personal ads. If you like tight Levi's, western chaps and cowboy boots, this magazine may be right up your alley.

times in agreement. "C'mon, lets go in here."

I followed him into his bedroom where he turned and simply stared at me with his cock still as hard as drill pipe. He didn't know what to do, but wanted to do it all. I flung my underwear into the corner and ground my throbbing dick up against his. We held each other's hips and moved from side to side, feeling hair and skin fan the fires that burned deep in our loins. He kept a firm grip on me with his paws as my own hands left his hips to scratch slowly up his belly, up to his breastbone and across his pecs, then back again. The hair was long and luxurious as it tickled my open palms and fingertips. Wordlessly, I moved his shoulders and walked him over to the bed where I laid him down. His legs were draped over the side of the bed and his big hairy feet lay on the floor, so I started with them. I put his big toe in my mouth and scrubbed it with my tongue. Even after the shower, it tasted faintly of boot leather and sweat. Slowly, I licked my way up his calf, to his knee and up the inside of his thigh. The muscles in his legs trembled and twitched as my tongue lapped so high on his thigh that he could also feel it on that big fuzzy ball bag of his. I wrapped my hand around the big man's cock and began to lather his balls with my tongue. As I licked those balls clean, I could feel his pulse in the veins of his dick and hear the deep rolling growls that rumbled out through his nose.

I slowly moved up the shaft of his mighty cock then wrapped my mouth around the head. While I slid the skin up and down his shaft, my tongue worked the underside of that dick just like it had done on his toe. This time he opened his mouth and let loose a deep, rolling moan. His ample pre-cum was thick and sweet as honey as it slowly flowed from deep inside him.

The slightly acrid smell of sweat and piss at his crotch made my heart pound even harder. I changed positions and ran my hands up the backside of his thighs to the bend of his knees so I could start to push those big hairy legs up in the air. I didn't have to; he raised 'em for me. I plowed into that pulsing, tan colored, manhole with nose and tongue like a hog at the trough. The rich, heady aroma of man musk from the wrinkles and folds of this particular bear delicacy made my balls swell and my blood pound. I probed with my tongue in excruciatingly slow circles until it was right where it needed to be. Gently I drove my tongue in and out, feeling the naked muscles of his asshole clamp and squeeze in response to my attentions. The ecstasy made him writhe on the bed and his legs spread wider. Thinking the situation would never be better, I left one of my favorite hobbies to engage in another. I slathered some spit up and down my cock then pressed it up against his asshole. It tightened. "What are you gonna do?" His voice managed to convey his feelings of fear and uncontrollable desires for things he knew nothing about.

"I'm gonna give you what your wife never can," I paused then added. "Sir."

Moving my cock in slow comfortable circles with my fist, I applied just a little pressure. I slicked up the other hand and resumed idly stroking his flexing meat. Ever so slowly, his ass relaxed and smoothed, slowly blossoming under the head of my dick. Not too fast. I took only as much leeway as it granted me. My eyes rolled back as I finally felt the warm velvety interior of the man wrap itself around me and the first couple of inches penetrate. He winced a bit, and his fingertips were white from holding those massive legs up in the air. Still stroking his cock, I slid the rest of the way in. He let out a roar that rattled the windows as I started slowly rubbing his prostate with the head of my dick. His head moved from side to side and his breath came in explosive puffs from between clenched teeth. Taking longer and longer strokes, I continued thrusting until I could feel his heavy balls banging on my pubic hair. Harder and harder I pounded the man until every sign I knew told me that he was just about ready to cum.

I pulled my dick from where I had planted it, pressed it up against his and jacked us with both hands. Every muscle on the man's mountainous body flexed against each other as his big, mushroom cockhead spat thick volleys of steamy bear cum onto his stomach. My own orgasm rumbled up through my boiling nuts and sprayed my own jism onto his chest. Still I jerked us, and still his seed pumped from him to mix with mine on his pelt. Finally, with our cocks still pumping the last of the their steamy load, I collapsed on top of him. His fur was warm and wet and the musky smell of fresh cum filled the air.

His breathing slowed, as did mine. I lay with my ear against his chest and listened to the sweet muffled music of his breath. I rolled off of him and lay on my side. He turned off the light, then did the same and pressed his body up against mine letting his arm wrap around my chest. His dick was still wet as it lay on my leg and his chest fur massaged the skin on my back, rising and falling to the rhythm of the soft snores he had already begun to emit. Bear purrs. I was as warm and safe as a cub in daddy's den. The West Texas wind played in the curtains. A coyote cried in the distance. The crickets sang a creaky lullaby older than man, under the canopy of stars that was another crystal clear Texas night. I knew he'd still be straight in the morning. It was always the same with straight guys taking a walk on the other side of the fence. He'd be terrified that he'd been turned into a 'fag' and I'd tell him about all the other guys like himself. Then he'd feel better, but promise me that it would never happen again. It was always the same.

In his light sleep, he pulled me closer to him with a closed fist over my breastbone. I smiled and let the soothing feeling of his snores resonate through the flesh on his chest and into my back as my awareness of bliss faded into muted tones of browns and greens.

Duty looks a little imposing at 6'4" and 240 pounds, but looks can be deceiving. Raised on a farm in Northeast Texas, he yearns for the stillness and simplicity of rural life. He loves sports, especially rodeo and contact sports, but he also enjoys singing.

Sexually he looks for confidence and pride in a man. He also likes beards. He says he's pretty vanilla when it comes right down to it. Being someone who says something when it needs to be said, he summed it all up with, "I know him when I see him."

RODEO

It wouldn't be Texas without rodeos. The ultimate challenge between man and beast. In days of old herding and roping of animals was the rancher's trade. It kept his stock alive and money in his pocket. Eventually, as talents and legends spread, contests between neighboring ranches arose and the modern rodeo was born.

Events are judged for style, form and endurance. The rules are complex. Animals aren't to be harmed in the rodeo. A veterinarian is required to be present at all events, and if an animal is too agitated, it'll have to sit out until it calms down again.

Bull-riding is the most popular event. You have to stay on the bull (or horse) for a full eight seconds. Men must ride one-handed, and have a hat on their heads when they leave the gate. If the rider is mid-air when buzzer sounds, they spot him the seconds it takes him to hit the dust.

Dogging is when you grab a cow and wrestle it to the ground, bare-handed—poking it in the eye is not allowed. In Goat Dressing, a team of men race to the animal, pin it down and put underwear on its hindquarters.

The rodeo clown performs a vital and dangerous role. The clown distracts the bulls and keeps them from trying to kill the contestants. Many clowns are injured doing this. They are the most respected members of the rodeo.

Awhile back we brought you JO coffee in a can. This prompted a flood of bear and sex related food articles being mailed to us here at the shop. We liked the teddy bear pasta, till the mice ate it. The Bear soda was good, too. But pictured above is the heartiest of them all. It's an actual brand of potato available here in California.

JO. For all your russet needs.

DANGER

News Flash!

According to a recent article in Men's Health, it is possible to break your penis.

While Men's Health didn't divulge many occasions where this has actually happened, cases have nevertheless been recorded. Symptoms include extreme pain, swelling, and a severe blue discoloration on the shaft of the penis.

Apparently the ligaments, blood vessels and tissue can be broken with too much torque, a sharp-angled thrust or, of course, a direct blow to the penis.

Just a reminder for you men to keep Binky away from heavy machinery and to avoid any poorly orchestrated sorties.

On Top of Old Smokey

It's often been said that gay icons eventually infiltrate straight society. Look at the number of pierced nipples showing up in the Marines for example. So should we be surprised that the new Smokey bears a striking resemblance to Bruno?

First Ken, then G.I. Joe, now. . .Smokey?

What does a bear do in the woods? Pump iron, if we are to believe the new U.S. Forest Service Fire Prevention advertisements.

The new Smokey holds a spade stuck in the ground, one foot resting on the top. But curiously, his booted foot is at the height of a bar rail and his hand is at the right height to be hoisting a beer can.

We've received newspaper clippings from the Windy City Times as well as the Chicago Tribune from you guys commenting on Smokey's new look, created for his 50th birthday. And to commemorate we've ordered a few Smokey patches to carry here at the shop for you guys. It's great to see that good ol' Smokey the Bear is still stirrin' up fires today.

This version of Smokey the Bear was created in 1947.

The Hardest Thing About Getting Grizzlies

To Play Soccer Is Putting On Their Uniforms.

This promo recently ran in the San Jose Mercury News to generate enthusiasm for soccer. You want soccer? For this I could do some soccer.

A Sizable Impression

We like to use Shits & Giggles as a place to share humorous sightings; things I call Visual Gags for the Pornographically Challenged. We also like to talk about a few items that come to mind that might be relevant to us as naked, hairy, homo smutters. We know this page gets read only after you've spunked a load on the dirty pictures. That's fine. Consider this your intellectual cigarette for the '90s.

BEAR Magazine flies in the faces of the movers and shakers of the clothes, commercials and GQ world. We are devoted to men who proudly promenade their secondary sexual characteristics. That pisses 'em off right there. We also spend time with men a little stockier than, say, Jason Priestly or Marky Mark. That really gets 'em going.

Awile back we talked about how the Style Police people are starting to admit that hairy men can be sexy too. Now their approval is expanding into mens' waistlines. A recent article in The San Francisco Chronicle states that "attractive corpulence" is making an impression for those into style. At a recent Comme Des Garçons show in Paris, "there were more bulging stomachs than chiseled cheekbones."

Come on. You know we don't give a shit about a Paris fashion show. But the point is that masculine, naturally developed men are finally getting the recognition they deserve in mainstream marketing and fashion.

Madison Avenue and the Parisian salons will always try to rob us of our money. But things are changing. Maybe they won't try to rob us of our right to be hairy, well-fed and fucking gorgeous because of it.

Joe from New Jersey said he was trapped in his car waiting for this trailer to get his "load off." He just happened to have a camera with him in the car so he started snapping away. His only comment was "Quality in Quantity."

Survey Said....

Back in 1993 a cunning Los Angeles man named Charles created an in-depth survey for men at one of the big, bear gatherings. While his results have yet to be published, he gave us a copy and permission to tell you about it. Instead of making abstract definitions of "bear," the survey let guys define themselves. That's the way we like it.

Some trends among the men: they're sexually versatile, uninhibited and into sex more than cuddling. Oral sex slightly out-distanced anal sex in order of main activity preference, and bars were still the number one way to meet men. Broad shoulders were a favorite feature in others.

Shockingly, most men beat off substantially less than twice a day. Is this why we have so many damn typos?

LECTURE:
"What Life Has Taught Me."

MATT

Wife is Young

COLLEGE

Opera House, 8:15 p. m.

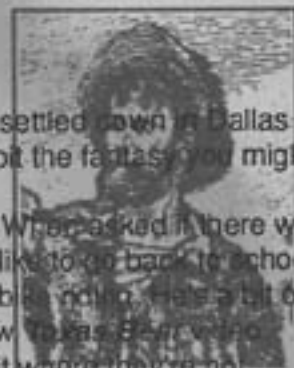

Tuesday, December 6, 1910

Finally, we bring you Matt. He's a 27 year old Army brat that finally settled down in Dallas about three years ago. At 6'1" with a 215 pound frame, he's every bit the fantasy you might expect.

His personal goal is to become an artist, preferably an illustrator. When asked if there was one thing he would rather be doing the rest of his life, he said he'd like to go back to school and study animation. His hobbies include theater, working out and bike riding. He's a bit of an exhibitionist. It's probably why he was willing to get nasty in our new Texas Bear video.

He looks for men that have Marine attitudes, and who like doing it when they're not supposed to. He doesn't like playing the top-bottom game. He prefers his sex to happen more spontaneously.

OUTLAWS

Picture a land where you're free—really free—to roam where you wish and to do as you please. Texas appeared as such a land back in the 1830s. Plenty of opportunity. So what if some of the opportunity wasn't so damn appropriate? Texas became known as a place where you don't need to follow the rules to come out ahead.

Masked men. Banditos. Train robbers, gunslingers and card sharks. Texas was full of them in the old days. You were pretty much on your own out there, with your wits and sidearm to see you through.

In 1835 the Texas Rangers were formed to fight Native Americans and keep the peace. Ten years later, when Texas joined the United States, the Rangers were made into a law enforcement agency. They roamed the expanse dispensing justice and keeping order the best they could. When the population grew, opportunities also grew. But so did the chances of getting caught. The Wild West slowly got reined in, and Texas now battles the same war on crime as every place else.

But old heritages linger. If you get pulled over these days in a dusty desert town you can still get a good feel for Ranger hospitality, law and order. It's just the quarter horses that are gone, replaced by turbo Ford Broncos.

If there is a common element that defines the Texas music scene and its homegrown artists, it is an intense degree of masculinity. Whether you are dealing with the brash rock and country circuits, or the more polished disco and adult-pop music sectors, the music has a primal, sexual edge that is undeniably strong and forceful. Of the state's current crop of bands, none seems to hit the mark harder and with more conviction than caustic headbangers Pantera.

Now burning sizzle of buzzing rock guitars may not instantly be your cup of tea, but a fair listen to the quartet's new Far Beyond Driven on EastWest Records, and you may find the gonad-clenching urgency and raw sensuality of lead singer Philip Anselmo's delivery hard to resist. Add to that the fact that Pantera's live and let live view of the world and homosexuality is a refreshing breeze in the otherwise stale homophobic realm of heavy metal.

"Hey, it's like this. We're about throwing the best fuckin' party possible," Anselmo says. "How you do your thing, and whom you do it with is none of our business. Actually, it's none of anyone's fuckin' business. Ain't nothing wrong with doin' what comes naturally. Hell, if we allowed people to tell us what to do and how to do it, no individual in this band would be in Pantera—and Pantera wouldn't have the major fuckin' balls we know it has."

While the musical output of some bands often becomes increasingly accessible and formulaic as the acts build a record-buying audience,

THE SOUNDS THAT ANIMALS MAKE

MUSIC REVIEWS
BY LARRY FLICK

Pantera has been making a conscious move in the opposite direction. On each of its four albums, the band has mined a less-commercial, cutting-edge sound. They are free to follow this path thanks to the ardent fan loyalty that previous albums like Cowboys From Hell and Vulgar Display of Power have gathered. Produced by bandmember Vinnie Paul with Terry Date, who has helmed projects by Soundgarden and Mother Love Bone, Far Beyond Driven sets the band apart from other hard-rockers by tempering the requisite growling and guitar acrobatics with spine-crawling rhythms and ponderous, philosophical lyrics.

"We just kinda pave our own way, and make the music that feels right to us," Anselmo says. "This is the kind of music we used to hear in bars around Texas—only a whole lot louder."

And there is no doubt their hometown buddies are stompin' along with the rest of us. As Pantera plows across the US, in what will be a year-and-a-half world concert tour, EastWest Records is exerting lots of energy in bringing the potent new single, I'm Broken, to rock radio and MTV (don't miss the eye-popping video clip, directed by Wayne Isham).

"Not for nothing, but we do whup some considerable ass live," Anselmo says. "Our lives are on the bus, in the venue and on the stage. It's with the people you get to know along the way. That's what our lives are about."

For a totally different vibe, check out Dressing For Pleasure by Jon Hassell & Bluescreen on Warner Bros. Records. Hassell is no stranger to progressive jazz fans, and he stretches his creative parameters by adding ambient hip-hop and funk flavors to his compositions. On tunes like G-Spot and Villa Narco, you can either have a little dance across the room, or put up your feet and chill. Either way, you will not forget this innovative and complex effort.

Finally, those of you who were fans of the late and incredibly gifted Kurt Cobain may want to have a moment with Live Through This, the Geffen recording debut of Hole, the much-touted band led by his wife, Courtney Love. Delving into emotionally charged material like Violet and Asking For It, it is hard not to draw comparisons to Nirvana. Sure, there are distinct superficial differences, but there are linking threads of angst, irony and alienation that are unmistakably similar. It kinda leaves you with an empty feeling in the pit of your stomach.

In other music release news: Red-hot country bear possie Confederate Railroad has issued its second Atlantic album, Notorious, which kicks with such gritty barroom ditties as the pensive Daddy Was Never The Cadillac Kind, the boot-scootin' Move Over Madonna, and the sweet Summer In Dixie. Singer/hunk Danny Shirley's baritone pipes are in mighty fine shape, and are complimented by super-tight instrumentation and clear, crisp production. Heavy sigh.
