We get lots of letters here at BEAR every day. Most of 'em are nice; thanking us for the work we do. Many of 'em are nasty; guys who wanna pop a nut by telling (and showing via polaroids) their dirty thoughts and sometimes dirtier buttocks. And, some are constructive criticisms and commentary on the state of BEAR and/or the "Bear Movement." The letter you see below was sent by a reader in response to the changes he's been seeing in the magazine, and his reflections on BEAR, the "Bear Movement" and man-to-man relationships. I passed it around the shop and got more than a couple of enthusiastic "Amen"s in return, so we decided to publish the whole dang thing.

Howdy Scott and Ye other editorial types-

I'm a longtime reader and admirer of Bear (I started with issue 121). I have been delighted of late with the quantum leap in aesthetic improvements this magazine has made. Kudos to the new regime. After a very long tepid spell, Bear has never looked better. The models are getting prettier and prettier, and the dirty stories have also taken a turn for the better. I love the new illustrations and RALPH is a gem of pornography (Hey, Rolando...more fucking, please!). In the last fifteen years or so, it has been very interesting for me while I watched this so-called "bear culture" develop. As always, I have mixed feelings about any "group mentality" which I find usually compartmentalizes people. Yet, I will admit to a lifelong and deep-rooted fetish for facial hair and beefy guys...so sue me. Bear Magazine also suffers from this interesting dualism...is it a porn rag or a "bear community" guidebook? Right alongside the butt-cheek spreaders and titty-clamps for sale stand the editorial stances and provocative reminiscences.

Of late, I think I am sensing a tone shift, or maybe I am just hoping for a meager light of intellectualism to shine in these pages. I hope that this recent infusion of common sense into the printed commentary in Bear is intentional and not a fluke, and I hope that the trend continues.

It's great to see somebody in print actually address the inherent "bitchiness" which goes along with the whole bear culture ideal. It is this cattiness that keeps me from the bars and from attending "bear" events and social gatherings. I find myself increasingly disenfranchised from gay men and gay culture the older I get. It is ironic and sad that a group of men who promote their "differences" from mainstream gay society still fall into the wholly destructive backbiting and promiscuity which tend to negatively brand gay men in general. Though, of course, it is always dangerous to generalize. Not all bears are raging nymphs or social butterflies...myself included.

This dualism in the bear mindset is most apparent in Luke's "Hot's Off" column. Month by month we are treated to a litany of Luke's sexual conquests on one hand, and his emotional hesitations on the other. His latest column "Green Eyes and Ham" was of particular interest to me. Where else but Bear Magazine do you get the same author discussing butt-fucking his partnered buddy in the bushes, and then complaining about his own jealous tendencies? This duality puts a smile on my face and horrifies me at the same time. I have had many a heated debate about my sexual mores and I have generally found myself vastly in the minority among gay men (and bears in particular). I may be a bear in face and figure, but I differ radically from the hedonistic "good buddy" mentality which is so prevalent in these pages. Hell, I like a good fuck story and a dirty video myself. Sex is GREAT. Men are beautiful, and bears doubly so. In fact, Scott...you're damned attractive yourself. Then again, so what? You are in a relationship, and so am I. Which I think brings me to my point (at last).

I believe that the one element which Luke fails to mention in his column that could clear up a lot of his confusion is simple...respect. Without mutual respect, none of us will ever get beyond a juvenile sexual mindset of proportionism, hedonism and collectionism. All of us want to feel needed and wanted and attractive. This is perfectly human, and I will not dispute it here. What's more...sex FEELS good. It is one of life's greatest pleasures. I am a very sexual person. Several sessions a day is not a problem. I am very tempted by the dozens of attractive men I see in my day to day interactions. I enjoy looking at the amazing variety of beautiful men in the world. It soothes my aesthetic soul. YET, I know that none of them could compare in any way to looking into my partner's eyes and seeing the genuine affection reflected there...no matter what we are doing.

Relationships are tough...there's no doubt about it. A long term relationship requires a Herculean amount of effort: physically, mentally, emotionally, financially, etc. However, the benefits are very real. Our rewards are directly proportional to the amount of time and energy we invest into anything. If we treat each other as sexual objects with little or no respect...we become those objects ourselves. Respect is the answer, which I suppose means respecting those who chose to philander, adulter and just plain rut. Who am I to buck the trend? I suppose it is my civic proponent who is now rearing his head in this diatribe. I can't let these recent gasps of darity go unnoticed. In BEAR 56, I thought page 39's caption was hilarious. I too thought Rich was a magnificent specimen who actually put a lump in my throat. How radical an idea to mention the amused and frustrated comment of your married employee...and how REFRESHING. Y'know, I could look at Jack Radcliffe all damn day. I think he is exquisite. But, I know that it would take a thousand beautiful bear models to match even one sincere collaborative moment between my partner and myself.

So, what's the answer? I dunno. Maybe you could do a "Bear Couple of the Month" spot. Perhaps, just provide a quarter page giving the bear community an insight into the success stories which are all around us and are let generally unheralded. Maybe you could install a roundtable discussion forum? I dunno...heck, I dunno why I even wrote this letter!

Call me a romantic fool...one way or another I guess I'll still keep buying...even if just for the pure visceral thrill...sheesh...damn hormones...

Hang in there Bear gents...LOVE truly is the answer...

Ken

BEAR

Mike here has plenty of guys more than a little jealous of him. I'm guessin' Why? Hmmm... let's see. Could it be the muscles? Dang.. they are nice. Could it be that big ol' skyscraper dick of his? (Yeah... it's one of those that seems to spend more time pokin' up than down.) Maybe. Or, how about that beautiful, round, ass of his, all covered with hair and just beggin' for a plowin'? Or, could it just be that he's the guy who gets the shit fucked out of him by Jack Radcliffe in the back of a truck in his latest video Big Bear Trucking Co.? Who can say, really?

Actually, Mike's a great guy. Down home, deep, sexy voice. The kinda guy you can kick back and shoot the shit with on a Saturday afternoon.

When I was talking with Mike, he brought up the truck fuck scene from Big Bear Trucking Co. Told me that what happened between him and Jack in the back of that truck was real, honest-to-gawd passion, as opposed to the mechanical "let's get it done and get our checks" sex that often happens on porn sets. "When he looks you in the eye, something special happens," Mike told me, before taking a really deep breath and a heavy, satisfied sigh. I let it go at that.

Not to let any grass grow under his big feet, Mike here also appears in the new Brush Creek Media video BEARBALL where he ruffles the feathers of a new crew of stiff-dicked hairy jocks, including Michael (BEAR 54) and Rob (BEAR 55) and newcomers Luke Steele and Ric Kappus.

BACK BEARS

G'day guys! Just a short note to say thanks for providing such a great magazine! Unfortunately, my own collection recently decimated by a "friend" who decided to help himself to issues at random (leaving my treasured BEAR collection in a state of sad disarray!), so I'll have to start from scratch, replacing the stolen copies with as many back issues as I can, provided that they're still available! Oh well, that's life!

Anyway, it's still the hottest fur magazine around, so keep up the good work!

Bill
Australia

That's a big ol' drag, Bill. Luckily for you, many back issues are still available! Look for the ad in this issue and fill your holes that way, or check out our web site at www.brushcreek.com, where you can order back issues of BEAR. While yer at it, you might consider headin' on down to the SPCA for a big ol' guard dog to keep your "friends" away from your good stuff!

Geez... with friends like those...

WHATTA MITCH

BEAR just gets better and better! A special thank you for the big full-color picture of Mitch on the back. I'm so glad he'll be in the 2000 Calendar — I've been a big fan of his ever since I saw him showin' off the Bear Built Tough stuff. I especially love those huge shoulders and that mean look he always has...

Have you ever done a photo layout of him? I'd love to see more! But only of him by himself; I'd get extremely jealous if there were anyone else with him. (Like understanders me, just go ask him.)

And I love the pix of your associates in the corner of the catalog pages! (I can't imagine why they need hands-free telephones!)

Thanks again — you guys are the greatest.

Scott
North Carolina

Hey Scott, glad you approve of our buddy Mitch on the cover of the BEAR 2000 Calendar. We haven't featured Mitch naked in BEAR... and don't think I haven't asked! He's content to keep his privates private for now, and I gotta respect that.

As far as getting all jealous about Mitch appearin' next to another man; he's spoken for, so get those dirty thoughts outta yer head.

CHISELED

I received my latest BEAR yesterday (issue #56) and all I can say is "thank you" for the very kind plug you gave Chisel in your editor's notes.

Warm regards, and thanks again for the plug.
Doug
Chisel Media

Hey Doug, plugging is my pleasure. Oops... that came out wrong... or did it? Chisel.com is one of the slickest smut sites on the web, and I, for one, am happy to see that it packs kicks for many kinks, including natural, real-lookin', hairy men like Lance (BEAR 49).

NICE RUBS

You don't know me, but I have been getting BEAR since issue 7, have appeared within the pages of your mag (issue 24 to be exact) and have made a fair share of negative comments about BEAR for about 3 years or so. But I have to tell you from one guy to another, that I thought issue 55 was really right on the mark as far as I'm concerned. The attitude was friendly and family-like, in a very informal and down-to-earth way, not to mention the hot, everyday sort of guys you chose to feature. I know this is something you strive for every month, but this issue buddy was a pleasure to read and look at. I am aware that you need no approval from me, but I thought you might like the nice rubs. If you have any self doubts about the direction BEAR is taking or the contribution it makes, forget about 'em. You're doing a great job.

Ted
Texas

Mmmm... we dig nice rubs. Actually, Ted, unless you all are buying this magazine as a charitable deduction, we do need your approval, because without happy readers, BEAR would cease to exist. Every opinion counts to us. And, even though we get tons of "great job" letters (which, for the record, are always welcome!), it's the "what about...?" letters that really make me scratch my chin and start to wonder. Thanks for both.

MORE NICE RUBS

Just a quick note to you — I just got the latest issue in the mail and DAMN! Richard is one of the hottest men you have ever had in BEAR! The photographer did a great job with his shoot! Keep up the great work and you'll have a loyal subscriber for life!

E-mail

Thanks bud. Richard is a tasty-lookin' smackerel, ain't he? And you're right — the photographer did capture him really well. I'm glad you mentioned the photographer, actually, because our shutterbugs are some of the unsung heroes of BEAR. Aside from the obvious technical aspects of photography, it takes a special eye to see and capture guys like we want to see them. Folks like Lynn Ludwig, RVJ Studios, M. Czajkowski, Third Eye Photography, and lots of others show us issue after issue how men of all sizes, shapes, and ages can be sexy. For their talents and hard work we are deeply grateful.

TRUCK STOPS

As a new bear to the scene, I have a "beary" curious question: Do you now of any adult bookstores in the country that are raunchy, popular, and a favorite hangout for big hairy truck drivers? Thanks

Blow Job Buddy
Tennessee

Oh yeah.... like I'm gonna give you my list. A few years ago, there was a magazine called "Steam" and it was all about public sex and restrooms and rest areas and truck stops and parks and other kinds of places where I wouldn't be caught dead having sex... today, anyway. You'd have to sniff around your local bookstore to see if Steam is still available.

Also, Bubba has a new trucker web site to tell you about in this issue's Hustin' Packer column. See page 50 for more about that.

GOOD MAN

This is the best magazine. Thank you. I would like to see more men like John Goodman. He is hot! Are you going to do any of the old bears like Mike Brandon, Joe Bear, Greg, et al? Also, I like what you did in the last issue; a little leather stuff but not too hard core. Thanks for that.

David

John Goodman wasn't available, so we decided to throw big, burly Oz on the cover of this issue. We hope you approve. And hey — you should check out Classic BEAR's I-IV for a fresh look at some of the models from BEAR's early days. Guys like Mack and Phil and Bob and... well, don't get me started.

HOT STEVE

Your coverman for BEAR Issue 55, Steve from Toronto, is one fine hottie! Woof! Are you planning on releasing any videos featuring him? I would sure like to know!

Thank you in advance!

Ray
Email

Steve is a hottie, ain't he? Come into the shop and tied a few tongues for a while, as the guys stared at him with those pathetic men-are-dogs tongue-wagging looks on their faces. Not me though - cool as a cucumber.

As far as I know, Steve hasn't committed to any video work yet, but - as always, if he does, you'll read it here first.

LIFTED SPIRITS

I wanted to write you and let you know how much I enjoyed your editorial in BEAR 55. It was so funny and at the same time good-natured that it lifted me out of a depression that I'd been in and out of for two days. It cracked me up! I was chuckling about the Ally McBeal/Dan Dierdorff references all the way back to my hotel. I thought I was the only one who had the hots for Dierdorff. Your thoughts on cattiness were right on the mark. I couldn't agree more. Another humorous section that really made me feel better was the $18 million price tag for one night with "Well Dressed Bear Man" Chris. He looks well worth it, but I don't have those kinds of bucks. You don't look bad at all either in that picture, my friend. I'd go $18 million on you, too.

To make a long story short, thank you for lifting my spirits that afternoon. The bottom line is it made me decide to lighten up on myself. Your article and magazine made me feel far less alone and "out in left field." I think it's important for you to know the good it did because I know you'll probably get other letters knocking you for knocking the bitches. Oh well, such is life.

BEAR is great, and the sense of humor it portrays is priceless. It fills a void that had been there for years in the adult magazine world.

Keep the humor coming - you guys are the best!

Mike
Somewhere in America

Glad to have pulled you out of a temporary slump Mike. You're not alone. It's funny - all of the mail we've gotten regarding the editorial in BEAR 55 has been from guys like you who appreciated the humor and the message. I guess the bitches can't write, or maybe they can't read and don't even know I was talking about them. In any case, I'm just happy that people got the message.

BOILIN' BUNNIES

I've been reading BEAR magazine for years, and for years have been amazed at the number of grown men who would write in to you just to praise some guy they saw in last month's issue; a man they'll never meet, who probably couldn't care less if they beat off over his pictures or not.

With that said - about this man Patrick in issue #55 - he's too hot for words! Woof!

Finally, I understand. It just took those incredibly sexy photos of Patrick in the shower to start me writing in!

By the way, I've had the hots for your editor Scott for a very long time.

Eric

NAKED EDITOR?

Dear Scott, I am writing this letter to ask you a question and to make a comment. First off, I don't want to offend or make you mad. But I would like to know when we can see you on the pages of bear in your boxers. Also I know you said you have a mate, and he might not like the idea of you being on the pages of BEAR.

R.S.
West Virginia

R.S.—Buddy—trust me. The guys in BEAR look better naked than I do. And my other half said "No." ☺

the wittke wire

Back in the late-'80s or early-'90s when Axl Rose first grew facial hair, I remember thinking, "Wow, a guy with a beard I don't find attractive." It seemed like a first for me. Axl was too young, too scrawny and his early-career homophobia problem made it hard to stomach him at all. But, eventually I became a begrudging fan.

When you walk into the diviest queer bar in your city and a drunk and angry drag queen is breaking a bottle and using it to threaten some stupid john who has disrespected her and Guns 'n' Roses' "Welcome to the Jungle" blasts out of the jukebox, you know the world has reached a particularly high level of synchronicity, and that for a short period of time Axl Rose actually had his finger on the pulse of something very, very lowlife. So you order a boilermaker, you duck the flying glasses, and you toast Axl, wherever he may be.

Last Spring I went to see the excellent Off-Broadway musical Hedwig and The Angry Inch. It's the hilarious-yet-moving story of a down-on-her-luck transsexual rock singer and her band.

Hedwig's onstage nemesis is a scuzzy rocker back-up singer named Yitzak who looks a lot like Axl Rose but with more malevolence and therefore sexiness. Yitzak has an Axl beard, wears a scarf over his head just like his prototype and has a wildly pissed off look in his eyes that makes the real Rose resemble one of the happier nuns in The Sound of Music. To picture Yitzak, think leather-clad biker trash with a way negative attitude.

The actor I saw playing Yitzak in the New York production of Hedwig brought a steely-eyed intensity that was a real turn-on. For me the wildest thing about the whole performance is that the name of the actor who played Yitzak was Lisa Datz. That's right, Yitzak is played by a woman. Which brings me to a question that's even more complicated than the often-contemplated, never-resolved, "What is a bear?" And that is, "What is a man?"

Oh, I know, I know. Men generally have a penis and stuff. But every once in a while it's great to have your assumptions fucked with. Like when I reported that a guy named The Dukester became my #1 Crush many issues of BEAR ago and I had to admit to my loyal fur-loving readers that he shaved his chest and I was still heels over head for him. I, and regular readers of my column, would never have dreamed that possible. (Incidentally, for those keeping score, Duke's bounced back to the #1 Crush position even though he is still definitely Julia Roberts and I am still Hugh Grant in the Notting Hill of my life. But that movie ended happily, so who can say?)

the wittke wire

Anyway, Yitzak wasn't the first time a butch gal pushed several of the right buttons for me.

There was the time I saw the gifted performance artist Peggy Shaw (star of the Obie-winning smash, Menopausal Gentleman) do a performance of Stanley Kowalski that out-butched Brando and my beloved Alec Baldwin. I am not kidding. I started having these fantasies involving strap-on equipment.

Another time, I went to see Broadway diva Lea DeLaria in her one-gal show, Box Lunch. I was in line to get the CD autographed by the brilliant singer/comedian when I found myself oddly transfixed by the cover shot of DeLaria dressed in butch construction worker gear and leering at a femme in a mini skirt. "Hey Lea," I said when I got to the front of the line, "You're my kinda guy in this picture!" She laughed and said, "You know, you're not the first gay man to tell me that."

So I know I'm not alone. Dammit. After all, more than a few of you have told me that you lust after Tracey Ullman's hairy cab driver character, Chic. Right? Right!

Back to the world of furry biological men: Alec Baldwin's legs have never looked better than they do in the boxer short scene of Outside Providence. A recent marathon of Cops on CourtTV was a non-stop parade of clipped mustaches, furry forearms and chest hair over collars — barely left my house for 24 hours.

Although I was one of the few people who didn't love American Beauty, it was nice to see the hair above Kevin Spacey's ass crack exposed a couple of times. However, I found the oddly trimmed chest hair to be, well, odd (how did he choose the pattern?), especially in contrast to his very bushy armpits ... speaking of trimmed chest hair, my roving reporter Duke tells me that pro golfer Fred Couples looks furry, but the only shots I can find of him on the Net are medium shots and he's all dressed up in ugly clothes, but, like a lot of pro golfers, he does have that nice sun-bleached fur on his arms.

Duke also reports that he rented the movie The Governess and that Tom Wilkinson, the guy who played the theater owner in Shakespeare in Love and the older guy in The Full Monty, actually does show the full monty in The Governess. Looking for some hot stuff baby this evening? Sounds like The Governess might be worth a rental.

One man's kink is another man's nightmare. I never cease to be amazed at the types of different kinks there are out there, and how each man, when he gets nasty, seems to do so from a slightly different perspective.

It's all so personal. It's got to be related to which part of our head we were dropped on when we were a baby, and to precisely what type of shoes or slippers the person who dropped us was wearing at the time.

There's no other earthly reason for people to have a fetish over orthopedic shoes, unless I'm really missing something out there.

Of course, some men have no kink whatsoever. The sexiest man I've ever been intimate with--his body to this day makes me shudder in hormonal bliss--was totally vanilla. And not even the vanilla moon pie smeared over dirty butthole kind of vanilla. Just plain vanilla. Broke my heart! I got him as hot and bothered as I could, third or fourth date, two glasses of wine (we don't advocate using alcohol to have your way with someone but I was getting desperate to uncover something hideously scary I could do with this gorgeous man's beefy, furry ass), and, the culmination, he was breathless and flushed and blushing and his voice was husky when he revealed his deepest darkest kinky fantasy:

"Sixty-nine."

What, sixty-nine where we're on a park bench outside St. Paul's Cathedral while nuns and our mothers watch, playing violins while we suck Snickers Bars out of each others' buttholes? That sixty-nine?

Nope. Just plain sixty-nine.

God.

He let me fuck him anyway, to make me happy. It was touching. It was also a fabulous fuck, but he had to journey too far into the unknown to make it possible. We fell out of touch.

Yeah, I've seen some serious shit out there. I've even seen some--well--shit. And even that was highly conditional on whose, how's and what's circumstances and you probably don't EVEN want to know more on that one. (If you do, drop a note. We can talk.)

Foot fetishes always fracture me. I got ticklish feet, you see, so an intense sexual high for some winds up in paroxysms of giggles from me. Ruins the mood. They think I'm being disingenuous.

A friend of mine went out with a guy who brought pepper and a hanky (no, I don't know what color it was) and orgasmed greatly when his dick was sneezed on. No lie.

We got diapers, we got pee, we got drugs and leather and knives and blood and grandma's blue dress. Some men can't get it up unless they pay someone, while others can't get it in without a balloon up their ass.

I, personally, would ask that you leave children and animals out of it. That's just bad sportsmanship. In fact, I recently got into a tiff with someone about the nature of non-consensual kinkiness, because I think free will is an important part of it.

But not to everyone. Back in the days of Powerplay (do they still make that magazine?), a story was patently rejected unless it freaked me out. So I had to read some SCARY shit! They'd gather 'round, watch my face. If I got scared and whiny, "It's a wrap! Print it!"

We tried to do a piece on necrophilia in Powerplay. I sent a friend out to interview one of the nekkeez in a bar in SF's Tenderloin district. I guess the bar was scary enough, and the person interviewed was deeply frightening. We never ran that piece, and my friend still hasn't forgiven me for that one.

Just a quick glance at the personal ads can show us things we never thought possible. In BEAR alone we've had quests for bernias on Long Island, boots with cow dung in the Midwest, marines giving orders and groups of three or more.

Bondage. Rubber. There are unwashed people out there and they want to smear smegma in your breakfast cereal! Entire magazines for uniforms, foreskins, testicles; and you probably have never heard of Jack's Number Two, have you? Even this magazine right here, good old BEAR, espouses a kink. I kid you not. Beards are a staple for us, but a lot of gay men flat-out disregard any man with facial hair. Beards just doesn't fit their personal twist.

So did you know you're a kinky little fucker right now?

We have to make room for the kink of others if we ever want this sex thing to get off the ground. It just never quite matches up. When I do a fella, there's always something he wants that I don't quite agree with, be it nipples (someone REALLY needs to explain the whole nipple thing to me) or a vocalization or pictures of his mother nearby.

Communication, of course, is the key. You just can't go "EW" when your fella tells you what he likes. Who are you to say that red haired knuckles aren't the sexiest thing on God's blue ball?

Take two men. Please. Even if both like, say, cop uniforms and boots and cheesy foreskins, chances are they like two different aspects thereof. You gotta share, respect, expand, enjoy.

Only then can you get on the Internet and tell everyone you know and have a good laugh about it.

I'll let you enjoy a Luke moment. How my brain works. I was super jet-lagged one time, up for 2 days, back when it was my job to monitor BEAR's sex 900 lines as well as the company checking account. I passed Bank of America headquarters and got the phone menus mixed up in my mind. Here's what it sounded like in my little head: "Bank of America! For account inquiries, press 1. For SM, Leather, Raunch and Kink messages, press 2."

I pressed 2. I always do. @

Photos by RVJ Studios

David here's a handful, I think. Just a hunch, though. This solid, stocky 5'8", 215 pound Ireland-born studcup — who now lives in New York — Queens — don't laugh or he'll kick yer ass — will turn 31 on January 1, 2000. (Hmmm... goin' out on New Year's Eve this year, are ya big Dave?) He's a sucker for hairy forearms, and his ideal man is older than him and is so hairy... well, to hear him tell it, "...you can't see his skin."

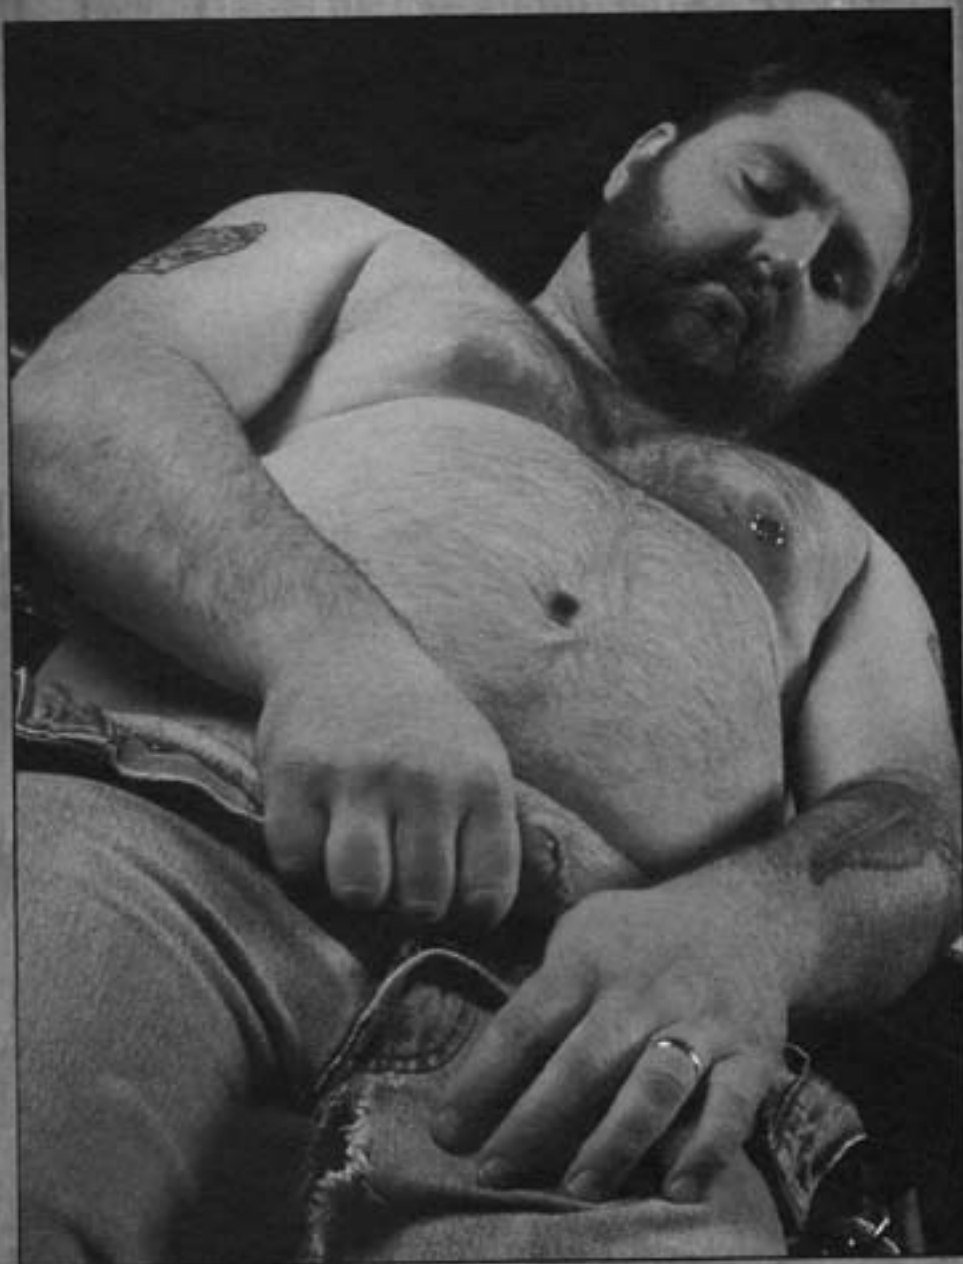

If you're wearing a t-shirt and chest hair is pouring over the collar—watch out.

David plays drums in the Long Island Ravens Bagpipe and Drum Corp.

He's got some pretty definite ideas of what he wants—sexually, at least. I asked him, if he could roll in the hay with somebody famous, who would it be? "I would want an orgy with Mark McGuire, a young Ed Asner, a Gambler-esque Kenny Rogers, Bob Hoskins, Kevin James from the "King of Queens," and the drummer from Pantera. That is all I can think of right now but I'm sure I have forgotten someone."

Anybody lucky enough to get invited over to the folks for dinner might get to enjoy David's favorites: "Mom's fried chicken cutlets with her mashed potatoes, sauteed mushrooms, and fresh string beans, and for dessert; her award-winning cheese cake." Yum. And Yum!

You can reach David at BeaNYC@aol.com.

THE SECRET OF THE ALICE MAY

I felt his hand moving slowly through the fur on my chest, then his fingers brushing over my left tit. First time in six years, and I loved it.

When I got back from flying little reconnaissance planes in Nam—and getting shot down in the jungle twice, I knew I needed to get away—far away. I tried a month at home in Chicago, and couldn't hack it. That's how I got to the Yukon, about as far away as I could imagine. I made enough money writing for the Whitehorse Gazette and a little more selling porn stories to magazines in the US. But my main work was forgetting.

So let me tell you about Beef. It was a beautiful fall day, and I had flown the Gazette's Cessna up to Dawson to do a story about a doctor who had stopped a diphtheria epidemic. I'd have stayed overnight, but the clouds were coming in and the radio said that although there had been snow earlier, the first really heavy storm of the season was on the way. I gassed up and took off into a leaden sky, headed back to Whitehorse.

I followed the Yukon River and dipped between Reindeer Mountain and Shamrock Dome. I kept south of Thistle Mountain, and could just see Prospector Peak in the distance, seven thousand feet of rock and snow to avoid. That's when the snow started, and I was only halfway to Whitehorse.

I nearly pissed my pants when I saw ice starting to form on the wings. Normally I'd climb above the weather, but already I was having problems maintaining altitude, and there wasn't much down there but a bunch of lakes and patches of forest and a lot of snow. I was maybe less than fifty miles from Whitehorse, but I decided to set it down before I iced up completely. I circled a clearing a couple of times, trying to decide the best approach. The crosswind was incredible, and it was snowing like hell. I told myself it was not as bad as going down in the jungle, so "just do it."

It was a great wheels-up landing in the snow, except that just before I stopped a gust of wind flipped me and there I was, hanging by my harness, upside down, with snow coming in through the cracks in the window. I could smell gasoline, and decided it was worth the struggle to get out of there before my beard got singed. My ankle hurt like a bitch, but I was able to crawl away, in a mental fog. I could see the jungle a quarter mile away, and wondered why there were pine trees in this jungle. I sensed the blackness settling in, and didn't know whether it was getting dark, or I was going into shock.

I do not know how long in the snow I shivered, but in time I heard barking. In a minute there was a huge guy with a black beard leaning over me.

"You can't stay there," he said, steam coming out of his mouth.

"You'll freeze your ass in less than an hour. Let's go!"

I didn't move; I just stared up at him.

"See that forest? It's full of bears. They're not hibernating yet, and they're eating everything in sight to put some fat on before winter. You'd be a tasty change from the fish they get from the river. Let's move it!"

He grabbed me under the armpits and dragged me twenty feet to his sled. He moved some packages and I settled in, limp, next to a bag of flour. He covered me with a thick blanket and then a tarp to keep me dry. He got on the back runners, behind me.

"Mush! Mush!" he shouted, and we were off. It was warm enough under the blanket that I came around after a few minutes. It was snowing like hell, and we were moving fast, over bumps, swerving when the trail turned. Damn, the rough ride was hurting my back, but at least I was warm. I looked up and back, and he had ice in his beard.

In half an hour the snow was so deep that it was all the dogs could do to keep moving. I looked back again and he pointed at a lake between the trees. The dogs had slowed, and he yelled something at them, and they stopped. At the edge of the lake there was an ancient steamboat, a derelict. The lake was not quite frozen yet, and water still lapped at the hulk. From time to time a wave from the lake nudged the wreck and sent freezing spray onto the tilted deck.

He dragged me out of the sled, and I half walked with him to the boat. At the bow, weathered almost to nothing, was the name: ALICE MAY. No one had been here for decades I decided, but with the wind blowing a gale and heavy snow, I'd damned sure rather be sheltered here than on the sled. The steamer had been beached on the edge of the lake a zillion years ago, and it was slowly giving in to the wind and snow of more than half a century. A single smokestack jutted up behind the wheelhouse. I slithered up two steps from the rotting deck to the wheelhouse and shut the door against the wind. I was amazed that most of the thick glass surrounding the wheel was still intact, but it was covered with bird shit and ice. The guy who saved me went off to bring the sled and the dogs closer.

I heard him clambering somewhere below, and in a few minutes he came for me, helped me down some steps, and slammed the hatch against the wind.

"We're taking over this ship," he said, smiling. "I'm Beef." He stuck out his hand. "I want you to know this is the first time I've ever been captain of a ship."

"I'm Reb," I answered. "Where are we?"

"I think this is Lake LeBarge," he said. "We can stay here until the storm stops." We ducked our heads and stepped quietly through a low passageway. A rotted spot in the deck allowed snow to sift down onto the crew's dinner table set with a few plates and even cloth napkins. There was quite a drift near the center of the table. Behind a partition was a small galley, an empty enameled pan on the cold stove. There was no food to be seen.

We walked as silent intruders through the engineer's cabin and on to the boiler room. Beef had hauled the blankets from the sled down here and left them in a lump. I sat. I heard Beef next door in the engineer's cabin, ripping up some floorboards like a madman. He came back and broke them into small pieces over his knee. On his second trip he brought some old newspapers. He threw open the door of the boiler, tossed in some paper, and the floorboards, and lit it. He was sweating now, but he didn't take off his parka.

"See those pipes?" he asked. "They take steam from the boiler to the engine room behind us. I'm sure there's no water left in the boiler or in the pipes, so we can use the boiler like a furnace."

There were huge chunks of coal in a bunker near the boiler, and Beef tossed a few of them into the furnace. In ten minutes it was a roaring fire; we would be warm! I could imagine how it looked outside—this rotten ship, with smoke and sparks coming out of the single funnel: the Alice May was steaming right onto the land.

Sweat ran down my chest. I pulled off my flight jacket and added more coal to the fire. Beef stirred it with an ancient, two-pronged poker, and flames belched out the open door of the boiler.

Beef sorted through the packages he had brought from the sled and ripped the paper from one of them—a hunk of meat. He spread the paper on the floor, set the roast on top of it, grabbed the poker and jammed it through the roast. "We're having roast pork for dinner," he announced, and told me to hold it over the flames while he worked with the dogs.

The roast was cooking fast, and he smelled the sputtering fat as he clomped down from the deck. He had filled the pan from the kitchen with snow from the crew's table and set it on the flat top of the boiler.

"I found two dinghies, lifeboats really, on the deck," he said, rubbing his hands together. "Propped the boats upside down so the dogs could get under them and be sheltered, even though I chained them to a railing. I fed them," he said, watching the snow melt in the pan. "They need high-calorie feed at night in this weather."

We kept the boiler door open and used the flames for light as much as for heat. Beef got two cans of Molson's Lager from the packages, and pulled out a hunting knife to cut the meat. We ate chunks of the roast pork and drank the beer, feeling slightly too elegant with the cloth napkins from the crew's table.

"I was on my way back from Whitehorse with supplies," he said between bites. "Damned glad we've got something decent to eat." I looked at him, noticing the curl of fur at the open neck of his shirt, the thick eyebrows and beard. The fur was even on his knuckles. This guy was a bear. Our eyes met as we finished our meal, but I didn't give voice to my thoughts.

I touched his ear, then moved my hand to his rich, black beard, then lightly ran my fingers over his lips. He kissed my fingers, and we moved closer together. His chest was covered with fur—long, silky, black, and luxurious. I felt his meat against my leg. Both of us wriggled out of our jeans. We left our shirts on, unbuttoned; we needed the warmth. In time, I took his meat in my hand, under the blanket. It was thick, uncut, and leaking.

The wind was stronger now, and the Alice May seemed to shudder with the gusts. A cold draft was coming from somewhere. Together we hauled the lumpy mattress from the engineer's cabin next door to the front of the boiler. I piled a little more coal on the fire and left the boiler door open only a crack. We arranged ourselves on the mattress and covered ourselves with the blankets.

We huddled together in the dark, cold at first, listening to the wind and the sloshing of water in the bilges below us. He unbuttoned his shirt, as I had. What do you say to a guy you've just met when you're hugging each other? We talked, almost whispering, watching the glow of the fire. From a port-hole came the flicker of the northern lights magnified by the snow.

"I'm prospecting," he said. "Working an old mine twenty miles north of here. There's just enough gold left to keep me, and I like being alone most of the time." He was silent for a long minute. "Got back from Vietnam a couple of years ago and..."

"And you needed to be alone for awhile, to forget," I said, finishing his sentence. He turned and looked at me steadily, his eyes shining wide in the flickering light from the boiler.

"I got back six months ago myself," I told him. "The roast pork and beer was a hell of a lot better than cooked rat. Being here with you in the cold is a hell of a lot better than sleeping with a couple of guys under a wet camouflage tarp in a steaming jungle, wondering if we'd get a quiet bayonet in the gut before morning." That's when I felt his hand on my chest, gently moving through the fur, brushing over my nipple, then hugging me close to him. He knew about bayonets and anti-personnel mines, and silent, lurking death.

I touched his ear, then moved my hand to his rich, black beard, then lightly ran my fingers over his lips. He kissed my fingers, and we moved closer together. His chest was covered with fur—long, silky, black, and luxurious. I felt his meat against my leg. Both of us wriggled out of our jeans. We left our shirts on, unbuttoned; we needed the warmth. In time, I took his meat in my hand, under the blanket. It was thick, uncut, and leaking.

"Not yet," he said quietly, into my ear. He nibbled. He grabbed my buns and pulled me close to him. I heard him breathing, almost sobbing. In a moment I felt a tear on my cheek—his. I held him so close our chest-fur was touching. He moaned, a sound of anguish.

"I understand," I whispered, knowing we might do no more than hug. "You can't get close to a man yet, can you." It wasn't really a question. "Everyone you cared about got it in Nam, didn't they. You learned that if you care about someone, it's the kiss of death for them. They'd come back in a body bag." He said nothing, but nodded against my chest, not letting go.

We slept, I think. I woke up in the middle of the night, cold; he was gone. I heard him open the boiler door and saw the weak glow of dying coals. He threw in big chunks of coal and stired the fire with the poker we had used to cook the meat. I heard the floorboards creak as he went into the engineer's cabin, then the sound of him pissing into a bucket.

I crept out from under the blanket, felt my way to the engineer's cabin, and brushed against Beef in the dark. Our bodies touched, and we hugged.

"I've got to piss too," I said, and he led me in the dark to the bucket in the corner, helping me avoid the place where he'd ripped up the floorboards. I felt his hand on my cock, stretching it a bit.

"OK," he said softly, "let go. Piss for me." I did. A long, hot stream rattled into the bucket. I imagined it must be steaming in the cold air. He shook my cock, and we went back to our mattress, the fire providing a warm glow through the crack in the furnace door.

We hugged again under the blankets, our bodies touching intimately. I turned over, my buns against his crotch. I could feel his cock at my asscrack. Soft. We slept.

I guess it was morning. Weak light was coming through the port-hole. There really isn't much sun until about noon at this time of the year. Beef was stoking the fire, and I saw his hairy asscrack as he bent over for more coal. He turned suddenly and saw me staring. He left the furnace door open and knelt on the mattress beside me, his uncut dick near my face. He bent and kissed my nipple and in an instant my own cock was hard. I held his balls, and he lifted the blanket.

"Quite a tent pole," he said quietly. "I love the tattoo." He was referring to the snake which spiraled down the length of my cock, with its mouth being my piss-slit.

"I got it in Japan on R&R," I said. "A little old guy had to keep my dick stretched out for an hour while he did it. Darned near killed me." I stretched his balls just a little; his dick was hard now.

"God, Reb, how I want to fuck you. I need it, and I want to make it good for you."

I turned, giving him my ass. He rubbed my buns and let his cock flop down on my asscrack, then stopped. I waited.

"I can't," he said. "Not yet." I knew why. I turned back and stroked my cock. Our eyes connected, and he stroked his meat too. We stroked together and kissed, and I swear we could see our hot breath in the cold air. His balls were bouncing as he knelt above me, and we both struggled to get to the edge. His eyes met mine again, and he nodded, and nodded again—and we came, together, a gush of his cum spurting onto my crotch, mixing with my own sticky juice. He held his cock, still hard, and we looked at each other for a long time.

"Stay there," Beef commanded. He dipped one of the napkins into the warm water in the pan atop the boiler, washed me gently, and then hugged me.

We talked then, about going on to his mine and trying to forget together. We did that, of course. He would find a little gold, and I would keep writing for the magazines in San Francisco. Sooner or later we would have forgotten enough, we thought, and be ready to return to the real world.

Beef busied himself harnessing the dogs; they were anxious to romp in the snow and pull. I helped him load our blankets and the supplies. And then, I guess as a way of saying good-bye to the Alice May, I made my way to the captain's cabin. There were two chairs on opposite sides of the captain's desk. On one side there were nautical charts of the Yukon River and Lake Lebarge. On the other side there was a hard-covered diary labeled "Journal—1907: RWS." It was like my own notebook, ideas for articles, accounts of conversations, the beginnings of stories. It was open to Christmas Day, 1907. In a neat hand was written...

"There are strange things done in the midnight sun by the men who toil for gold.

The Arctic trails have their secret tales that would make your blood run cold.

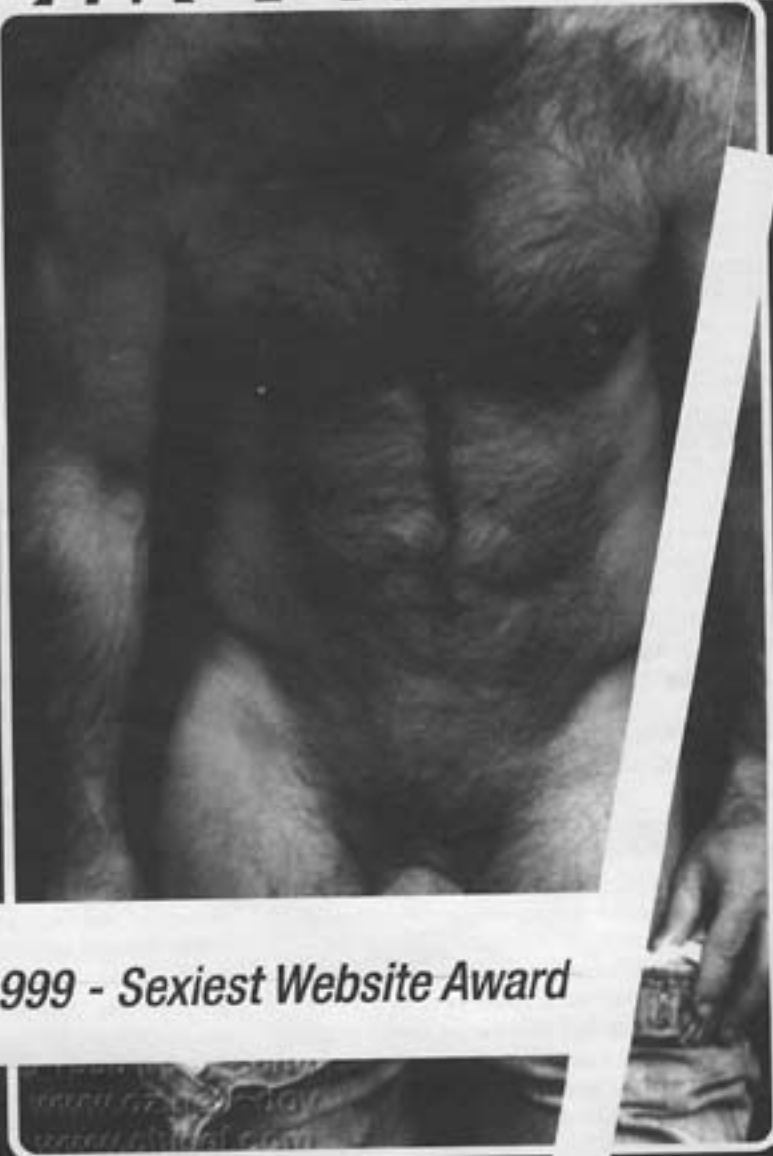

The northern lights have seen queer sights but the queerest they ever did see

Was that night on the marge of Lake Lebarge that I..."

... it was unfinished, as if the writer had left the ship suddenly, as I must. The dogs were barking, and it was time for me to go now—with Beef.

Steve here could be described as— well, how to say it without trying to sound like a prude? Okay, what the hell; sexually, he can be a real pig. Can't we all? I, for one, somewhat privately identify with Pooh's little buddy. But, I think the difference is that Steve here's got the balls to admit it up front. He's a self-described cigar/stogie smoking tit-working man (which probably explains those inch-long nipples pokin' proudly from his hairy, muscular 180-pound torso). His website has the word "pig" in the title. How many of you can claim that? Yeah? Prove it.

"I like being around hard-working regular guys; hairy BEAR men who like to have fun," he says. "Usually, I'm on top, but, hell—the right man can make you do anything, right?"

(Well... um, yeah—I've heard that.)

"I like men who smell like men. Give me a man after he's worked hard, when he's sweaty and hot, before the showers."

Steve's got that "Grizzly Adams" fantasy that many of us share. "...To be in a log cabin with a big hairy bear of a man; a pipe smoker. Someone who wants to wrestle for top, no holds barred! We are on the floor in front of a fire place with a huge fire burning; wood that I've spent the day splitting. We sit back and smoke our pipes, drink some beers, and fuck the night away, into the next day, while it's snowing outside! Then, we collapse into each others arms and sleep the next day away... snowed in."

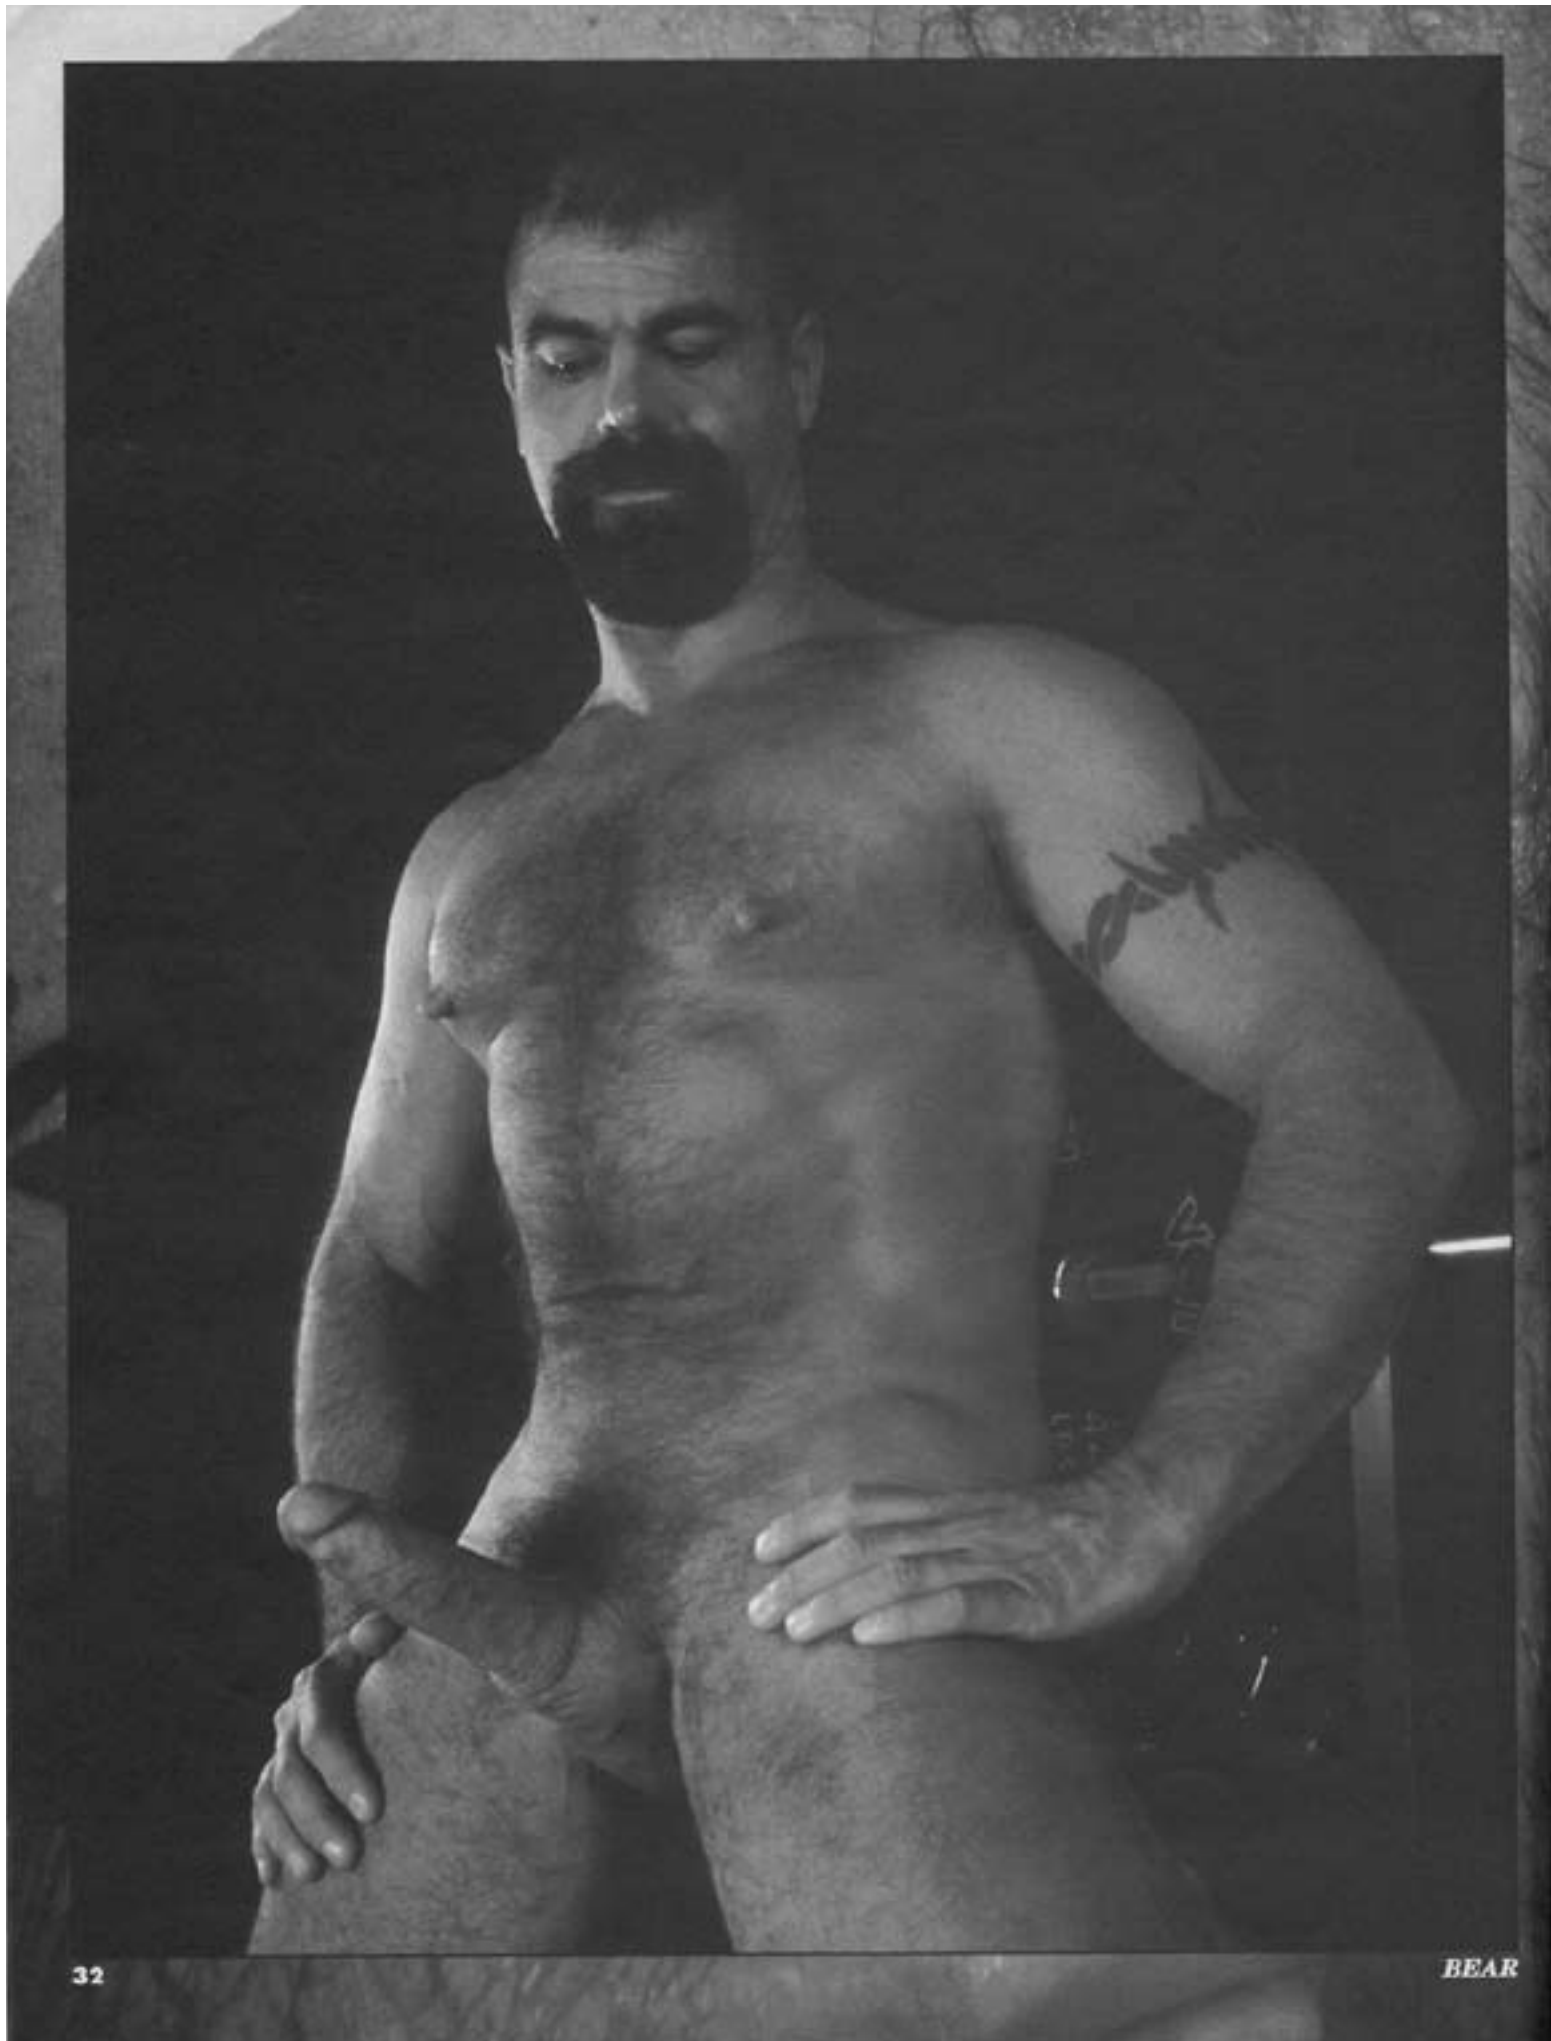

That'll do, pig.

OZ

"The Great and Powerful" on the cover of this issue had nothin' whatsoever to do with Dorothy or that man behind the curtain. We were talking about coverman Oz.

At 5'10", 205lbs, he's a top, but doesn't believe in rigid roles or labels. Bottom line here is if you can guarantee a good time will be had by all, he doesn't much care who plays top or bottom.

Kinks? Yeah, there are a few. Leather, uniforms, boots (combats are his favorite), jockstaps and white athletic socks. He's got cuffs, whips, belts, a billy club, and gags. And he enjoys watching a good game of football or a great wrestling match on video or TV while kicking back with a beer or stogie and getting serviced by a hot cub.

Foreplay? He likes to put on boxing gloves—or sometimes bareknuckling it—and fight for a few rounds, wearing nothing but jockstraps or boxer shorts.

If he really got to realize a fantasy with you, he'd tie you up to a tree out in the woods and gut punch the crap out of you. Then, he'd release you, and force you to work his nipples and cock with your mouth.

He works out four times a week, and he collects classical music. Name a composer and a classical work and chances are, he's got it.

You pick the music, and let your imagination run wild. As for me, there's a cold shower somewhere with my name on it.

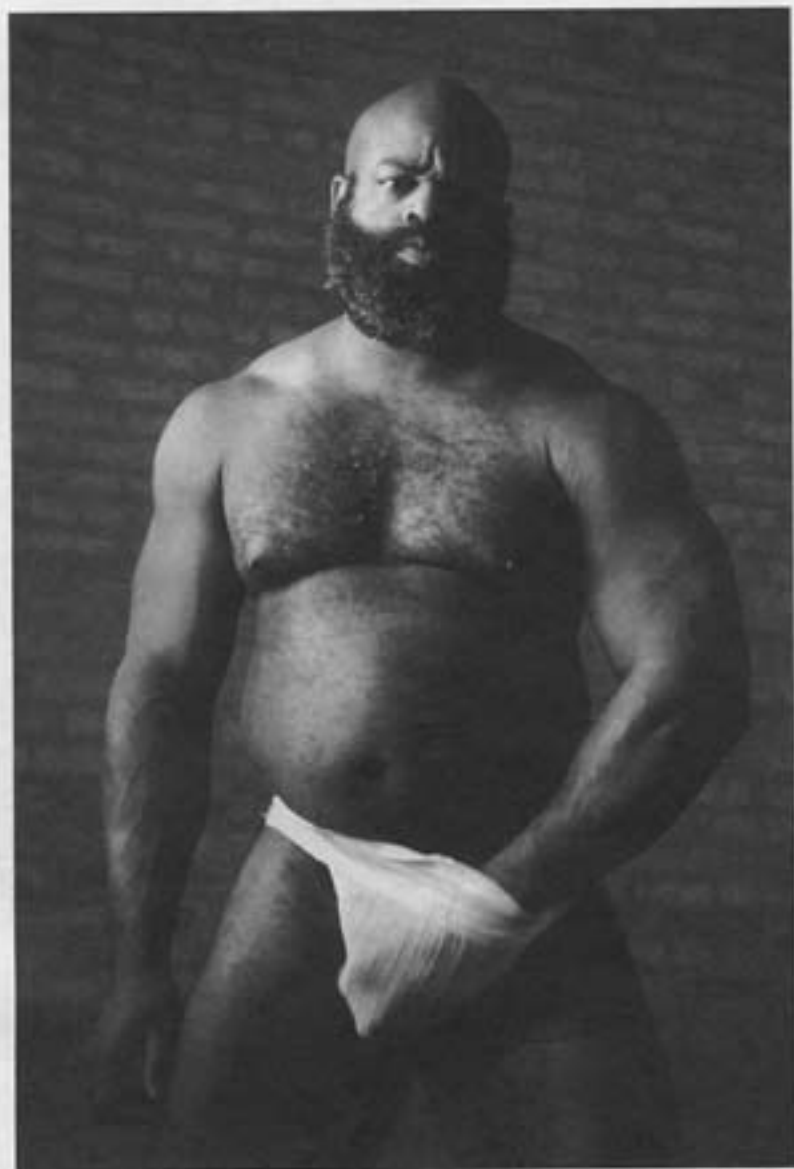

BEAR[®]

shits & giggles

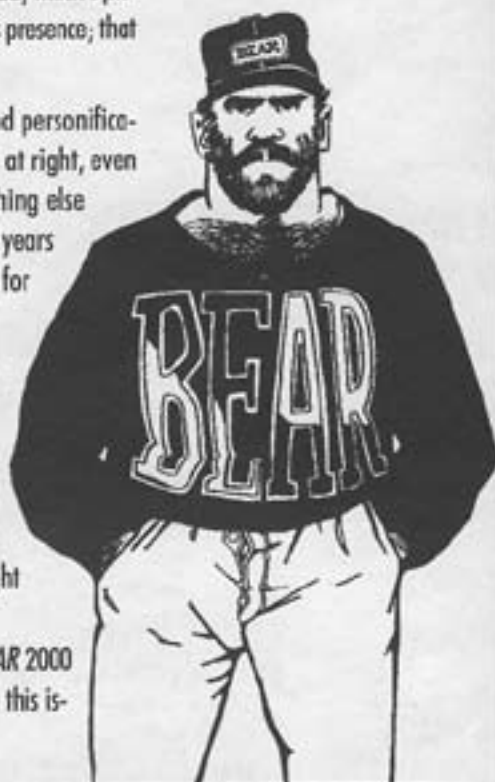

Aside from the fact that he's so dang nice to look at, we just couldn't figure out why we kept staring at our buddy Mitch's pictures. There was something so familiar about his presence; that body, that stare, those... muscles, that hat.

And then - it hit us. He's the flesh and blood personification of "Ralph" (our name for the illustration at right, even though artist Bill Ward may have had something else in mind)! Ralph has appeared in BEAR over the years as a sort of illustrative "mascot," if you will, for the magazine.

This version of "Ralph" is not to be confused, of course, with another hot Ralph—the comic strip which artist Rolando draws for each issue of BEAR, having sex in airplane toilets and such.

So, for you twisted souls who have always wondered what our illustrated friend Ralph here might look like shirtless... feast yer eyes.

You also might wanna pick up a copy of our BEAR 2000 Calendar, with Mitch on the cover. See the ad in this issue.

In the movie, Philadelphia, as Tom Hanks was listening to a Maria Callas aria, he was swept away on a tidal wave of emotion that was truly heart-wrenching. Many have praised this segment of the film as a cinematic triumph for its authentic expression of what gay men experience and identify as a 'gay sensibility'. What Maria Callas was to Tom Hanks' character, Gustav Mahler is to me.

I was introduced to Mahler at a very young age, when my parents would drag me to Roy Thompson Hall to hear the Toronto Symphony. Concert going was a regular occurrence in my family, blessed as I was to be guided by two yuppie parents totally dedicated to the philosophy of cultural force-feeding. I reacted mostly with typical childlike indifference.

However, all of my naive cultural ensui changed when I heard my first Mahler symphony. (Come to think of it, it was Mahler's First, too.) This may sound very strange, I know, but there is no question that this is when I discovered my sexuality. Most boys my age found it in the underwear section of Eaton's catalogue, but staring at bras and panties only made me yawn. I guess it was only fitting that I got my first huge one during a performance of the 'Titan'. The music was making me hard!

I think I noticed it first with deep rumbling of the great timpani, played by a square-jawed percussionist whose massive arms were beating the skin until the plush-headed sticks blurred. The vibrations traveled a direct path to my balls, squeezing them tight as marbles and prickling the base of my attentive prick, which stretched inside my pants.

It happened with the French horns, too—a tingle in my neck would begin its knowledgeable and inevitable journey down my back, sending pinpricks of ticklish pleasure straight into my anus.

Soon, I became aroused by the oboe, as it soared plaintively above the strings. And then by the soprano, as it wove a ball-gripping line through the densely thatched layers of the massed choirs. I was caught off guard more than once by the unexpected entrance of the pipe organ, slowly swelling from beneath the layers of choral sound to erupt in a thunderous domination of the frenzied orchestra, its reverberations echoed in every penile nerve ending.

What was I to do? My hand was cemented to my crotch, discreetly covered by my opened concert program, at which I glanced periodically. My face took on a rather distant, almost anguished look, which my parents recognized instinctively as precocious musical appreciation.

And suddenly—overnight—I had developed an interest in the arts! At age ten, I had developed a fully formed aesthetic sensibility!

Fortunately for me, Mahler was very chic in those days. Guest conductors, choirs, singers, festivals, you name it—they all did Mahler. I went to as many concerts as I could. Mahler's 'Resurrection' symphony was clearly named for what was going on in seat AA15.

Then, probably in my early twenties, it seemed as though there were a sudden migration of bears from Ontario's northland to Toronto—and all of them had chosen the stage of Roy Thompson Hall for their new home. Hunky bears in tuxedos, grappling with double basses, cellos, and kettle drums. More likely they had been there all along; creating a subliminal ambience of ursine sensuality that my growing gay consciousness had responded to for the past decade. As if I needed another reason to go to the symphony!

It was a splendid summer evening as I emerged from St. Andrew's subway station and walked the two short blocks to Roy Thomson Hall. The building, an architectural gem of gleaming glass, had turned to gold in the setting sun. I found my seat in the front row, and perused the program, imagining the intensity that the guest conductor, Seiji Ozawa, would bring to this performance. I watched intently as the musicians took their places on stage and began to tune their instru-

Editor's Note: Yeah, much of the fiction we publish in BEAR is about truckers and loggers and mechanics and... well, you know. So, I was eager as heck to publish this particular submission for a couple of reasons. Big hairy guys listening to Classical Music? And drawing all kinds of comparisons between musical elements like crescendos and sex? If you're not a classical music fan, enjoy the sex. If you dig a little Mahler with your butt-munchie—this one's for you.

ments, hoping to spot a hot bear among the tiers of tuxedos. Having an erotic focus always intensified the Mahler experience.

And then I saw him—a trumpeter, sitting in a separate brass section of four trumpets and three trombones. He had a massive frame; wide, thick shoulders and giant hands, which cradled a trumpet, making it look like a toy. He had short, dark hair and a round face, which was covered with a thick, black beard that grew up to his cheekbones. Full, dark eyebrows crowned large, deep-set brown eyes.

For a brief second he looked out into the audience, and his eyes met mine. I held my breath. Then he moistened his lips and tongued his mouthpiece, and glanced back at me. Was he cruising me from the stage? My heart pounded in my chest. I sat absolutely spellbound throughout the performance. His body defined ursine masculinity. And when he played, it seemed he was funneling that raw power into his instrument. His smooth, olive-toned skin reddened. His forehead muscles tensed and tightened, and beads of sweat began to appear, small rivulets running down into his beard. I gulped, as I thought of gliding my tongue across his moist face.

The reverie lasted until the final ear-splitting finale, when, sliding along the row toward the aisle, I glanced back toward the stage. The performers were making their way off the stage, but, oddly, the trumpet player was still in his seat. When he caught my eye, he tilted his head ever so slightly. An invitation? Then he mopped his brow with a large handkerchief, smiled, and headed straight for his exit.

It is one thing to live in a world of wild fantasy, but it something else altogether to find yourself face to face with the possibility of it becoming real. There was still a voice inside my head that said, Don't get yourself worked up for nothing—just go home and jerk off!

I decided not to listen to that voice. Instead I made my way outside to the stage entrance, where I waited. When he finally came out, and saw me, he beamed broadly, and I grinned sheepishly in return. Immediately, as though I were one of his friends, he said, "Hey, so what did you think of the performance?"

"Great, I mean, you were amazing. Well, I mean, the whole thing was... I just love Mahler," I stammered, suddenly feeling completely out of my depth.

"Oh, really?" He asked with genuine interest. "Well, that makes two of us. I guess what makes it doubly nice for me, is that I get to play him too."

"I can't imagine what that must feel like—I mean, it's intense enough to listen to, I think it would be overwhelming to be in the center of that whirlwind too," I said.

"Listen," he said, "How would you feel about listening to some more Mahler—the evening is still young."

"Where?" I asked, starting to tremble slightly at the suggestion.

"My place—I have an apartment just a few blocks from here. Maybe we can hear how George Solti does the 8th," he said, again smiling his warm smile.

"Sure," I grinned back. "Thanks to Queen Victoria's birthday tomorrow, I guess I don't have to get to bed too early."

His apartment was a loft on King Street, with ceiling-high windows and pine floors, dappled by moonlight filtered through white cotton we rolled ourselves into the middle. First a sleeve was yanked off, then a pant leg, and then all our clothes lay in a tangled heap on the floor. Smothering me with his entire hairy body, and his solid arms raising my shoulders up slightly, he looked deeply into my eyes. I could feel the heat of his breath as he moved his face down toward mine. I wanted his lips, his tongue, his scalding mouth. Moist tip to moist tip, our tongues hovered in the space where our eyes met and held each other transfixed. In the next moment our mouths were filled with each other, tongues probing eagerly. I felt his beard bristle softly on my face and around my mouth, and my hands reached up to stroke his face, massage his beard.

His hands were around my face, holding me securely, while his tongue moved rhythmically inside my mouth. It was Mahler's 8th Symphony that surrounded me, the strings and brass crescendoing like the sound of surf, then gliding on a whisper back out to the sea. Between our bodies, cemented together in a velvet crush, our two hard cocks were gliding gently over each other.

His mouth came off mine, and we rolled over, so now I was on top of him, my hands spreading like the incoming tide across the expanse of his furry chest, tracing the line of hair down the center of his belly. Taking one of his dark nipples in my fingers, I kissed the other, running my tongue in a circle around the edge of his tit. Then my mouth took it all in, and began to suck. I loved to hear the guttural growls that came from his throat as I pleased him. The soprano was rising and falling, and I went with it, my tongue now licking a path down his belly, down his massive thighs, and nibbling its way back up the inner part of his trembling thigh.

His legs were spread, and his ball sac was full, tightening just slightly as I began to lick his balls. Urged on by the voices of the children's chorus, the blessed youths, I lapped along his groin, tugging with my lips at the hair at the base of his cock.

His cock had begun to stir, and I watched its wrinkled darkness begin to stretch. The head was still covered by folds of foreskin, and I wanted it in my mouth before it slipped back. I opened my mouth, and placed just the tip of it in, then inserted my tongue inside the foreskin and traced around the inside around the head of his cock. It grew larger inside my mouth, and I pulled in more of that mobile skin, then, pushed it back with my tongue and took in all of the head of his cock, and slid my mouth forward to the base of his dark mystery. The chorus of youths was singing in my head: er wird uns lehren — he will now teach us. He was now completely inside me, thick and rigid: teaching me—indeed!

The soft skin of his ample foreskin glided smoothly along the 7-inch length of his shaft, and I pulled my mouth off to feel its silky movement with my hand, watching as the skin slowly enveloped the head, and then gradually exposed the and slid back. With my fingers, I stretched the wrinkled foreskin an inch or so past the tip. Then I placed my tongue inside and closed the foreskin around it. The sweetness of precum surrounded it. The tenor had added his voice to those of the choir of youths, an urgency mounting in his voice, as, my trumpet player, his body tensing with rising excitement, moaned, "I want your dick in my mouth!"

Without taking my mouth of his cock for one second, I moved my body around so that my dick was brushing his beard. Reaching behind me to hold my ass with one hand, he grabbed the base of my cock with the other, and began to lick the underside of the shaft. The moist firmness of his tongue and the coarse tickling of his moustache and beard as it traveled along my cock threatened to overload my nerve endings.

Then, in one movement, he swallowed me, the suddenness of the motion making me gasp, as he nuzzled his face deep in my crotch, his beard caressing my balls. I responded instinctively by pushing his cock deeper into my throat, inhaling, as I did so, the heady musk emanating from the dense thicket of crotch hair, now damp with sweat.

As he gurgled his pleasure at sucking my cock, he squeezed and tugged at my ass. A finger traced the crack down the center of my ass, and grazed my hole. A shiver passed through my body, and I slipped an arm between his hairy thighs, and slid my hand between his ass. It felt hot and moist, and I prodded the puckered hole with my finger. He groaned and started playing more intensely with my ass, stretching it, as he made a circular motion; his finger was in perhaps an inch and exploring my cave opening with a knowing familiarity.

I drove in a finger of my own into his bear cave, surprised at the warmth, softness and moistness that greeted it. I was slurping greedily now on his cock, and we were matching our rhythms now, thrusting our mouths in unison onto each other's fleshy instruments and probing our fingers ever deeper into each other's ass. I felt myself opening up, easing his finger's penetration, feeling it massage my prostate, and wondering how long I could last before exploding.

I knew then that I wanted his meat inside my ass. He must have felt my longing, for at the same time, we pulled off each other's dicks, and he knelt between my legs and lifted them up. He greased my hole again with a thick finger, while he continued to stroke his bear cock with his other hand. There was a fine mist of sweat on his forehead, and moon-shadows dappled his face, giving his features a richly exotic intensity. He was looking directly into my eyes, and slowly he brought his dick into contact with my ass. He leaned over me, resting his huge arms, like bronze pillars, on the bed beside my chest. I could feel my ass quivering in anticipation now, as I heard the tenor's voice continue to rise above the full, soaring choirs, and crescendoing orchestra. On top of the blasting of the brass, he was singing: Bleibe gnädig! over and over, which I knew meant Grant your mercy, but what I heard over the thundering of the kettle drums and through the contrapuntal melodies of the choirs was: FUCK THAT ASS!

I reached forward and pulled on his thighs just as he thrust himself inside me. He entered me about half way stopping my breath for an instant; then, relaxing into complete submission, I opened my ass wide for my musical daddy bear to paw his way to the rear of my cave. I pulled my legs back even farther to allow him to lean closer on top of me, rubbing his furry belly on mine. Slowly he began to move his thickened cock in and out, and as he did so, he bent his furry face to mine, and licked my lips; then his tongue entered my mouth and he sucked my tongue while he pounded my ass. I grabbed his chest with both hands and began to twist his tits.

The orchestra and tenor had faded to subito now, the sounds of the celeste like the drops of moonlight shining in his eyes. My bear was pumping steadily inside me, his balls slapping against my ass. The orchestra was silent now, and then the choir began again, in a mere whisper, its final ascent. Slowly the mystical choir gives voice to indescribable longings, and grows in volume as they are realized. The chorus mysticus was also resonating in every cell of my body. The music was inside me, in the tightening of my balls, in my engorged cock threatening to erupt, in my ass where waves of pleasure crashed with every stroke of the bear's thrusting, in my mouth full of my lover's sweet tongue.

We began to rock, and I started to moan involuntarily with every sensation of his cock, now plunging deeper and deeper inside me. The choir and orchestra were building again, and Faye Robinson's soaring soprano, like an electric current, was carrying us both higher and higher, as layer upon layer, wave after wave of pure ecstasy poured into our entwined bodies from all sections of the orchestra. Each ignited my body in turn: the percussion rumbling like an inferno in my ass with each mighty thrust; the blare of trombones setting fire to my tits—bite them harder!; the mighty pipe organ travelling like a wild brush fire the length of my body and ending at my cock, sliding deliciously against his hairy belly.

We were both grunting and groaning like a pair of mating autumn bears now; he was growling with the organ, at one with his magnificent instrument. I felt a surging excitement and then shudders go through his body; then his cock stiffened and he expelled his bear cum deep inside my ass. That was all I needed to make me shoot off my own load, and as he continued to thrust vigorously, I shot a long stream of white bear juice onto my chest and face. My bear lost no time lapping it up, and then licking his hot, cum-coated tongue all over my face, before he finally fell, spent, off of me.

I was fading into sleep now, while around me were the damp, furry arms of my musical, trumpet-playing bear, and fading now, too, into the moon shadows were the last orgasmic reverberations of Mahler's symphonic climax. ⑦

His mouth came off mine, and we rolled over, so now I was on top of him, my hands spreading like the incoming tide across the expanse of his furry chest, tracing the line of hair down the center of his belly. Taking one of his dark nipples in my fingers, I kissed the other, running my tongue in a circle around the edge of his tit. Then my mouth took it all in, and began to suck. drapes. A large chrome and glass entertainment center dominated the living space. Facing it, on a black and white abstract area rug, was positioned a Le Corbusier chaise lounge in black leather. A small, oval glass table sat next to it, with a vase of tall, white French tulips. I recognized an Yves Gautier print on one wall. Moving over to the CD, he pressed a few buttons, then turned back to me, and said, "Let's get us a couple of drinks and I'll show you the loft."

His smoothness captivated me, and disarmed me of any apprehensions. It also turned me on. With drinks in hand, we ascended the narrow spiral staircase to the loft, which looked out over the living space below, and gave an enchanting view of the glittering skyscape of Toronto.

I looked around and quickly took in the king-sized bed, which crowded the loft space, and was sumptuously padded with a cream-colored duvet and a few large cream and gold pillows.

From downstairs, the sounds of Mahler's 8th Symphony were drifting gently upward. We turned toward each other, wrapped our arms around each other in a solid bear hug and brought our eager lips together.

I untied his black tie, letting it fall to the floor. The collar broke free exposing a thick tuft of hair curling upwards. I began to unbutton the stiffly starched white shirt, my eyes widening as his fur-covered chest became exposed. I slipped in one hand first and then the other, parting the shirt and moving my fingers through the dense but soft hair embracing his solid chest. This man did more than practice a trumpet in his spare time. I imagined him hoisting steel girders in his workouts. My fingers groped for his nipples, and I let out a gasp of delight upon feeling his dark, swollen orbs the size of a watch face. As I rolled his tits between my fingers and thumbs, they grew thick and hard.

He arched his neck backwards, a barely audible moan escaping his moistened lips. I ran my hands over his furry belly, and began to suck his tits. Nibbling gently at first, then more firmly as he moaned with pleasure.

His shirt was fully open now, and I scanned the entire contours of his masculine chest, tits and rounded belly, my hands reveling in the dark hair that swept wave-like into a center line that plummeted south. Plenty of time for that journey, the music was still subito, soft and slow and sensuous in its self-restraint. Meanwhile, he had leaned into my face, his breath blowing like an August breeze, warm and deliciously scented.

With his Latin-brown eyes fixed on mine, he cupped my face with his thick hands and slowly lathered my mouth with his tongue. His tongue swirled and plunged, and I followed, sucking hard on his tongue, and then pulling back and kissing the soft prickliness of his moustache and beard, and nibbling his neck, slightly salty from the sweat that had begun to form.

It was late evening, but the moon was still high in the clear sky, and sent shafts of light across the bed; the white comforter had been pulled back and Smothering me with his entire hairy body, and his solid arms raising my shoulders up slightly, he looked deeply into my eyes. I could feel the heat of his breath as he moved his face down toward mine. I wanted his lips, his tongue, his scalding mouth. Moist tip to moist tip, our tongues hovered in the space where our eyes met and held each other transfixed. In the next moment our mouths were filled with each other, tongues probing eagerly. I felt his beard bristle softly on my face and around my mouth, and my hands reached up to stroke his face, massage his beard.

His hands were around my face, holding me securely, while his tongue moved rhythmically inside my mouth. It was Mahler's 8th Symphony that surrounded me, the strings and brass crescendoing like the sound of surf, then gliding on a whisper back out to the sea. Between our bodies, cemented together in a velvet crush, our two hard cocks were gliding gently over each other.

His mouth came off mine, and we rolled over, so now I was on top of him, my hands spreading like the incoming tide across the expanse of his furry chest, tracing the line of hair down the center of his belly. Taking one of his dark nipples in my fingers, I kissed the other, running my tongue in a circle around the edge of his tit. Then my mouth took it all in, and began to suck. I loved to hear the guttural growls that came from his throat as I pleased him. The soprano was rising and falling, and I went with it, my tongue now licking a path down his belly, down his massive thighs, and nibbling its way back up the inner part of his trembling thigh.

His legs were spread, and his ball sac was full, tightening just slightly as I began to lick his balls. Urged on by the voices of the children's chorus, the blessed youths, I lapped along his groin, tugging with my lips at the hair at the base of his cock.

His cock had begun to stir, and I watched its wrinkled darkness begin to stretch. The head was still covered by folds of foreskin, and I wanted it in my mouth before it slipped back. I opened my mouth, and placed just the tip of it in, then inserted my tongue inside the foreskin and traced around the inside around the head of his cock. It grew larger inside my mouth, and I pulled in more of that mobile skin, then, pushed it back with my tongue and took in all of the head of his cock, and slid my mouth forward to the base of his dark mystery. The chorus of youths was singing in my head: er wird uns lehren—he will now teach us. He was now completely inside me, thick and rigid: teaching me—indeed!

The soft skin of his ample foreskin glided smoothly along the 7-inch length of his shaft, and I pulled my mouth off to feel its silky movement with my hand, watching as the skin slowly enveloped the head, and then gradually exposed the head and slid back. With my fingers, I stretched the wrinkled foreskin an inch or so past the tip. Then I placed my tongue inside and closed the foreskin around it. The sweetness of precum surrounded it. The tenor had added his voice to those of the choir of youths, an urgency mounting in his voice, as, my trumpet player, his body tensing with rising excitement, moaned, "I want your dick in my mouth!"

Without taking my mouth of his cock for one second, I moved my body around so that my dick was brushing his beard. Reaching behind me to hold my ass with one hand, he grabbed the base of my cock with the other, and began to lick the underside of the shaft. The moist firmness of his tongue and the coarse tickling of his moustache and beard as it traveled along my cock threatened to overload my nerve endings.

Then, in one movement, he swallowed me, the suddenness of the motion making me gasp, as he nuzzled his face deep in my crotch, his beard caressing my balls. I responded instinctively by pushing his cock deeper into my throat, inhaling, as I did so, the heady musk emanating from the dense thicket of crotch hair, now damp with sweat.

As he gurgled his pleasure at sucking my cock, he squeezed and tugged at my ass. A finger traced the crack down the center of my ass, and grazed my hole. A shiver passed through my body, and I slipped an arm between his hairy thighs, and slid my hand between his ass. It felt hot and moist, and I prodded the puckered hole with my finger. He groaned and started playing more intensely with my ass, stretching it, as he made a circular motion; his finger was in perhaps an inch and exploring my cave opening with a knowing familiarity.

I drove in a finger of my own into his bear cave, surprised at the warmth, softness and moistness that greeted it. I was slurping greedily now on his cock, and we were matching our rhythms now, thrusting our mouths in unison onto each other's fleshy instruments and probing our fingers ever deeper into each other's ass. I felt myself opening up, easing his finger's penetration, feeling it massage my prostate, and wondering how long I could last before exploding.

I knew then that I wanted his meat inside my ass. He must have felt my longing, for at the same time, we pulled off each other's dicks, and he knelt between my legs and lifted them up. He greased my hole again with a thick finger, while he continued to stroke his bear cock with his other hand. There was a fine mist of sweat on his forehead, and moon-shadows dappled his face, giving his features a richly exotic intensity. He was looking directly into my eyes, and slowly he brought his dick into contact with my ass. He leaned over me, resting his huge arms, like bronze pillars, on the bed beside my chest. I could feel my ass quivering in anticipation now, as I heard the tenor's voice continue to rise above the full, soaring choirs, and crescendoing orchestra. On top of the blasting of the brass, he was singing: Bleibe gnädig! over and over, which I knew meant Grant your mercy, but what I heard over the thundering of the kettle drums and through the contrapuntal melodies of the choirs was: FUCK THAT ASS!

I reached forward and pulled on his thighs just as he thrust himself inside me. He entered me about half way stopping my breath for an instant; then, relaxing into complete submission, I opened my ass wide for my musical daddy bear to paw his way to the rear of my cave. I pulled my legs back even farther to allow him to lean closer on top of me, rubbing his furry belly on mine. Slowly he began to move his thickened cock in and out, and as he did so, he bent his furry face to mine, and licked my lips; then his tongue entered my mouth and he sucked my tongue while he pounded my ass. I grabbed his chest with both hands and began to twist his tits.

The orchestra and tenor had faded to subito now, the sounds of the celeste like the drops of moonlight shining in his eyes. My bear was pumping steadily inside me, his balls slapping against my ass. The orchestra was silent now, and then the choir began again, in a mere whisper, its final ascent. Slowly the mystical choir gives voice to indescribable longings, and grows in volume as they are realized. The chorus mysticus was also resonating in every cell of my body. The music was inside me, in the tightening of my balls, in my engorged cock threatening to erupt, in my ass where waves of pleasure crashed with every stroke of the bear's thrusting, in my mouth full of my lover's sweet tongue.

We began to rock, and I started to moan involuntarily with every sensation of his cock, now plunging deeper and deeper inside me. The choir and orchestra were building again, and Faye Robinson's soaring soprano, like an electric current, was carrying us both higher and higher, as layer upon layer, wave after wave of pure ecstasy poured into our entwined bodies from all sections of the orchestra. Each ignited my body in turn: the percussion rumbling like an inferno in my ass with each mighty thrust; the blare of trombones setting fire to my tits—bite them harder!; the mighty pipe organ travelling like a wild brush fire the length of my body and ending at my cock, sliding deliciously against his hairy belly.

We were both grunting and groaning like a pair of mating autumn bears now; he was growling with the organ, at one with his magnificent instrument. I felt a surging excitement and then shudders go through his body; then his cock stiffened and he expelled his bear cum deep inside my ass. That was all I needed to make me shoot off my own load, and as he continued to thrust vigorously, I shot a long stream of white bear juice onto my chest and face. My bear lost no time lapping it up, and then licking his hot, cum-coated tongue all over my face, before he finally fell, spent, off of me.

I was fading into sleep now, while around me were the damp, furry arms of my musical, trumpet-playing bear, and fading now, too, into the moon shadows were the last orgasmic reverberations of Mahler's symphonic climax. G

Has this ever happened to you? You're click-click-clicking away at any ol' link that looks like it might get you into trouble, heading deeper and deeper into the darkest bowels of the Web and YIKES—there's a picture of YOURSELF posted on the biggest heavy-fetish site in the world and all you can think is "thank God it wasn't one of those pics from that night when me and what's-his-name got too stoned and decided to have our own 'webcast' from a hotel room downtown."

Thankfully, that's never happened to me. Nope.

Anyway, I just want to thank everybody who has written in with suggestions. So far, none of them have been the "can-of-spam" that I've come to expect from personal sites. Some of them are even designed well. But by far, the most recommended site by our readers has been the major beefcake at www.musclebears.com. This one really kept me busy for a while; it's organized into weight classes and an "upgrade" section so you can track your favorite beefcake as he bulks up. Lots to look at and some decent links. As a matter of fact, the only thing wrong with this page is that there is no dick. Not to fret -- keep reading.

I know I promised you guys another hot trucker site, but here's a couple of them. First, check out the Truck Stop E-Zine at www.geocities.com/WestHollywood/Village/9186. This is a great site that you can, and should, come back to later. For now, do yourself a favor and follow the link that says "How To Pick Up Truckers" -- this FAQ (that's "Frequently Asked Questions" for you newbies) outlines some great suggestions and guidelines, do's and don'ts for real trucker cruising.

TRUCKERS, MUSCLES AND SOME GREAT ITALIAN SAUSAGES

After you bookmark this page, head over to the Trucker-Bear Webring site at www.webring.org/cgi-bin/webring?ring=88665896;list, owned and operated by TazBear. That should keep you occupied for a while... Oh! Wait, here's one more that's really hot but not a part of the ring: www.dirtytrucker.com. Who says I don't do right by you, baby?

I know you've been wondering about the "Wet Spot" Award for this issue. I saved it until now because this has got to be the hottest, most image-laden site I've come across yet. Run, do not walk, to your nearest computer and check out www.italianbear.com. Yes it's all in Italian, but how much reading are you going to do? You're here for cock. Remember?! The links you need are described in English anyway, with pages that are divided into subject matter like hairy, chubbies, etc. But the link you want is cocks. Cock, cock and more cock. Big cocks, small cocks, hard cocks, soft cocks all seemingly thrown onto the page in no particular order -- it's like the bin-o-cock. The biggest pieces of Meat you've ever seen (and some that really want to believe they're huge) trimmed clean of any distractions like faces or bodies. Amazing. That's why they win this issue's "Holy Shit! That's a lot of cock" award.

Last, but not least, a HUGE apology goes to The Glory Hole Gallery that was featured in Issue 56. We really screwed up the URL, which should have been <http://girlinfocom.com/dwall/adult.htm>. This one is a must-see. You won't be disappointed.

If you have any clue where there might be DICK for FREE on the WEB, got a pic you wanna send, or draw sex fantasy art of Doc Savage and Race Bannon, send mail to huntin_pecker@yahoo.com. All the opinions here are my own, and, as always, your mileage may vary. --hubba

GRIZZLY TALES

BY BRUTUS.

DESERT BEARS

Our buddies David and Joe (yeah, that's them floating in their capsule in the pictures to the right) have been busy guys this past year. Seems they headed south to Palm Springs for the winter, and they liked it so much they decided to stay! Well, luckily for us, they've been working on something we can all enjoy—something to make our get-aways more... didn't wanna say it—bearable. Kick me.

Their new place, appropriately called "The Desert Bear" is smack dab in the heart of Palm Springs. Yup. Where Sonny used to be mayor. Had that restaurant there for a while. Bob Hope still lives there, I hear. Is he still up in that flying-saucer shaped house on the hill?

Anyhow, looks like these guys are off to a belluva a start with their new place. They're doing things right. They've got a good name. They got The Frisch to illustrate their name into a real eye-catchin' banner. They've got the toll-free number. They've got the website (www.thedesertbear.com) that shows you the place, the rooms, the costs, and everthing else you need to know (including a couple of pictures of them. Mmmm...)

I don't know about you, but for us, it's kinda cool to see something done well, right from the get-go, isn't it?

They tell me that The Desert Bear is a "clothing optional resort for Bears and their admirers." So bring your sunglasses, your sunscreen, and something to wrap around yourself in case you ever decide to venture outside the serenity of The Desert Bear's walls.

I've spent my fair share of time in Palm Springs. Though I admit to having done little more when I was there than reading trashy fiction, floating on the pool, and chowing down on big-ass burgers and salads at the Hamburger Hamlet. I gotta tell ya - it's bliss. Hotter than hell, but it felt like a little slice-o-heaven.

A closer look at items that cross our paths

So, if yer scratchin' your chin right now, thinking you might be needing a holiday (don't we all?), get on the horn to these guys and see about getting down to Palm Springs to check out their new operation. Just a little heads-up: word's spreading like wildfire about this joint, and I'm hearing rumors of entire bear clubs renting the place out for weekend get-aways.

You can reach them at 1-877-Go-Growl, or take a look at their nifty website which actually has all the details at www.thedesertbear.com.

LA FIESTA DE LOS OSOS 2000

Bears of the Old Pueblo
January 14-17, 2000, Tucson, AZ

"A winter bear gathering in the warmth of the desert sun," says the poster. Mmmm... bears and sun. Bears of the Old Pueblo are gettin' ready for their annual event/southwestern love fest "La Fiesta de Los Osos 2000". This event is small enough to feel like a bunch of old friends getting together, but still big enough where you can find yerself rubbin' tummies with a stranger or two. They won't be strangers for long, though! Suffice to say, one of the guys here makes the annual Tucson trip for La Fiesta De Los Osos, and sweats it's the best bear event. Go see for yourself. For more information, contact the club at PO Box 43910, Tucson, AZ 85733-3910, 520.327.1620 or email 'em at fiesta@bear-net.com.

MAN-TO-MAN PERSONALS

HUNDREDS OF HUNGRY, HORNY BEARS IN HEAT

LOOKIN' FOR MR. GOODBEAR? —IT'S THIS EASY:

- 1 Place a Personal Ad
- 2 Receive a Voice Mailbox
- 3 Getcha Some Hot Sex!

PLACING AN AD

Text. Talk about yourself and be real clear as to what yer lookin' for. Avoid negative shit, like "no fats, feds or Republicans." We happen to dig big guys. Plus, it doesn't work, and we'll probably change it anyway.

Names. We can't run ads addressed to Occupant or Boxholder. Use your initials or a name your postal carrier knows.

Phone Numbers. We won't print 'em. That's it. Period.

Photo Ads. We'll run a shot of your face or dick, but only once. Your photo must have a signed model release (see "Show Yourself In BEAR") AND a photocopy of your picture ID. Don't bother sending us photos without this stuff. We can't legally print 'em. Each photo sent to BEAR must be signed with your name and phone number on the back. Photos are not returnable.

BEAR Postal Box Numbers. If you wish, we'll assign a BEAR Postal Box Number to your ad, collect your responses and forward them to your address. A word to the wise: your own address will get you more responses. For U.S. subscribers only. Free for BEAR Buddies, $5 for everyone else.

Voice Mail Box Codes. We assign a voice mail box to every domestic ad. Guys can leave phone messages in your box after reading your ad, and only you can retrieve them. Cost is $1.98 per minute for both parties.

Common Courtesy. If a guy gets in touch with you, write back. Even if it's just to say, "No thanks," he deserves to know you got his message.

Cost and Duration. Personal ads are free if you're a BEAR Buddy (an $85, two-year subscription). Otherwise, they're $.25 a word, per issue. BEAR Buddy ads are discontinued when the subscription runs out. You'll have to submit a new ad when you renew your subscription. Wanna discontinue your ad? Write in, and we'll pull it. You'll have to pay to have a pulled ad put back in, though.

Ad Changes. It's cool, but will cost you five bucks, and must be in writing. Hint: you'll get more responses by revising your ad from time to time.

Edits. We reserve the right to edit ads for editorial consistency and clarity. We also reserve the right to refuse any ad.

Submitting your ad. Compose your ad on a separate piece of paper, and for God's sake, write or print clearly so we can read the thing. Remember, no telephone numbers or "Boxholder/Occupant" addresses will be printed in ads! Photocopy this form, or copy it by hand, but we need all of this info!

RESPONDING TO AN AD

Voice mail box number. To respond to a voice mail box number, see details under "Voice Mail Explained." If the ad says "No voice mail," it's a good bet the fella won't be checkin' his phone messages. Respond via written letter, or e-mail, if it's listed.

BEAR Box Number. To respond to an ad with a BEAR Box number, seal your letter in an envelope. On this envelope, put the fella's box number in pencil where the stamp normally goes. Send this with $1 in a larger envelope to us.

Common Courtesy, Part II. Respond only to the ad: looking for your type, and don't be pullin' the old form letter routine. If you don't fit the specifications listed in the ad, don't come bitchin' to us if you don't get a response.

Prisons. Not a great place to send money, or pictures of your hairy ass. By all means, correspond and make friends. But know the potential for trouble to you as well as the guy on the inside.

VOICE MAIL EXPLAINED

Our BEAR voice mail system is designed to give you access to new friends, true love, or just a good fuck. It works. Remember, if you are placing a personal ad in BEAR, you will automatically be assigned a BEAR voice mailbox.

If you place a personal ad in BEAR, we will send you a letter with information about your voice mailbox, your passcode, directions on how to set up your free voice greeting, and general directions on using the system. But guys, give us a couple of weeks from the day you mail in your ad before you start calling us. We know you're horny, but these things take time.

You can also use our voice mail system WITHOUT placing a personal ad in BEAR. You can call to listen to ads and leave messages for guys. You can even setup your own voice mailbox, just like BEAR advertisers have. If you set up a voice mailbox without placing an ad, callers will hear your ad and can leave messages for you, but BEAR readers won't ever see a printed ad, so you might get fewer responses.

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

1-900-DVB-BEAR charges the call to your home phone or
1-800-347-BEAR buys a block of time with your credit card

When you call, a recording will automatically begin describing instructions and options. These instructions will explain everything you need to know about using our voice mail system. Be patient and allow yourself a minute to hear all the options. A few basic options are explained below:

- Press 1: to create additional mailboxes. These boxes won't be printed in BEAR, so you can be even sleazier or more discreet if you like.
- Press 2: to browse ads from other guys by area code.
- Press 3: to leave a message for one of the guys whose printed ad you see in BEAR.
- Press *: to pick up messages that other guys have left for you.

Remember that once you call and are at the main menu, it is not necessary to listen to all of the options before you make your choice. If you already know how the system works, you may start pressing buttons on your phone right away.

BEAR BALL

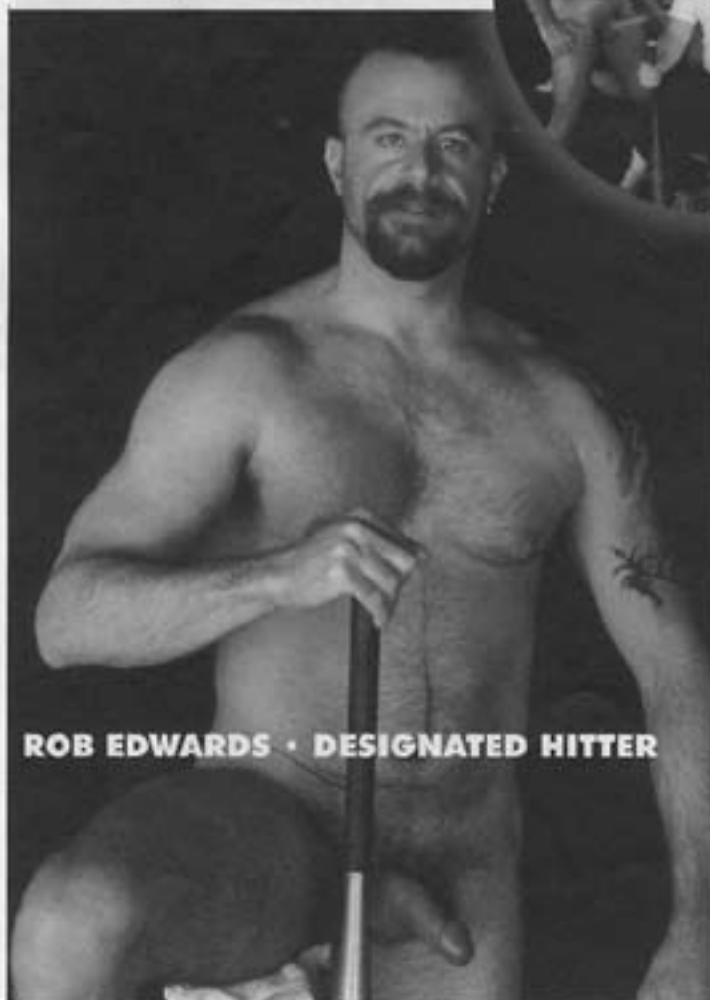

MIKE VESPA • CATCHER

LUKE STEELE • CENTER FIELD

ROB EDWARDS • DESIGNATED HITTER

RIC KAPPUS • PITCHER

There's nothin' soft about the ball these burly bruisers play. That's probably because they prefer action behind the scenes over that on the field. In this hot new fuckfest, these five jocks size each other up before a pitch is ever thrown, and soon they're engaged in some sloppy, steamy action in the sweat-filled locker room.

How'd you like to play on a team where jock-sniffing coach Michael (Cover, BEAR 54) bends over a bench to take superstud Luke Steele's big fat dick up his ass? Or, imagine a post-game pep session where designated hitter Rob (BEAR 55) swaps spit, sweat, and serious dick-sucking with the likes of Mike Vespa and Ric Kappus?

These studs work it up and get it off, working their dicks, mouths, and asses for your pleasure.

Welcome to BEARBALL.
